FIRE DRIVES COOKING CLASS FROM BUILDING.

Mrs. S. T. Rohrer and Twenty-five Pupils Compelled to Flee from Burning Structure at Springfield State Fair.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Fire which destroyed the Women's Building at the State Fair grounds tonight caused a panic among the young women who came from all parts of the State to attend the cooking school which was opened in the building on Monday, Sept. 16, by Mrs. Sarah T. Rohrer of Philadelphia.

There were twenty-five young women in the building besides Mrs. Rohrer and her assistants, making a total of thirty-two persons.

When the word was passed through the building that it was on fire the pupils became terrorized and those who had retired rushed to the outside in their night clothes.

The trunks containing the clothing of the pupils were gotten out, with few exceptions, and carried to the exposition building.

When Secretary W. C. Garrard arrived he sent four of the young women in their night dresses to his home for the night.

Mrs. Ben Rich, wife of the County Recorder, also took several of the pupils to her residence. Others then provided sleeping quarters for the rest of the pupils, and Mrs. Rohrer and her assistants went to the Leland Hotel.

MAN LASHED TO A RAFT IS PICKED UP IN LAKE HURON.

Owner of Wrecked Schooner Jupiter Alive After Buffeting by the Waves—Three Companions Washed Away.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 20.—W. D. Ragan, owner of the lost schooner Jupiter, who was supposed to have perished, was found by a fishing tug lashed to a raft, according to a message from Southampton, Ont., tonight. He was alive and it is thought he will recover.

The vessel was lost last Tusday. Ragan drifted about Lake Huron on the improvised raft without food and soaked to the skin by the seas which broke constantly over his support. The other members of the crew, who were on the raft with him, it is thought, were washed off and drowned.

The Jupiter was loaded with lumber, and waterlogged on Saginaw Bay on Sunday. The steamer F. R. Buell sighted the boat and went to the assistance of the chew, who refused to abandon the craft. The vessel drifted nearly across Lake Huron in the northwest gale before it was decided to abandon it.

Captain Hanson, his wife and child, and one of the crew took to the yawl boat and were picked up at Tobermorey on Wednesday. It is believed that Ragan and three sailors abandoned the vessel shortly afterward.

FUGITIVE IS NOT DEAD NOR INSANE

WILL PROVE HIS SANITY.

Escaped from the Bloomingdale Asylum Last Thanksgiving and Put Himself Under Care of Specialist.

MANY PASS ON HIS CASE.

Proceedings Now Instituted in His Native County of Albemarle to Restore Him to All Legal Rights and Property.

COUNSEL ISSUES A STATEMENT.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—John Armstrong Chanler, the divorced husband of Amelie Rives, Princess Troubetskoy, who months ago escaped from the Bloomingdale Insane Asylum at White Plains, N. Y., has again taken his place in the world as one returned from the dead, and backed by the best legal talent will make a fight to have his sanity acknowledged and to secure possession of his property.

Mr. Chanler was committed to the Bloomingdale asylum on March 18, 1897. He escaped in November, 1900. The most strenuous efforts were made to locate him, but he disappeared as if the earth had swallowed him up. Thousands of dollars were spent in following clews, dragging rivers, and in other ways to trace the missing man, until finally his friends came to the conclusion that he was dead.

Reappeared Last July.

On July 19 last a neatly dressed stranger arrived in Lynchburg and registered at the Arlington Hotel as "John Chilton, North Carolina." As afterwards appeared, the stranger opened communication with United States Senator John W. Daniel, to whom he confided the secret that he was the missing John Armstrong Chanler, returned to make a fight to what he deemed his rights and to prove to the world that he had been wrongfully incarcerated as an insane man.

In addition, Mr. Chanler secured the services of Augustus Van Wyck of New York and other eminent lawyers of Virginia.

Is Prepared to Prove Sanity.

To these Mr. Chanler has proven that he is a man of sound mind. He presented certificates to that effect from Dr. J. Madden Taylor of Philadelphia and other experts under whose care he spent six months after his escape from Bloomingdale.

Mr. Chanler arrived in Charlottesville, Va., today from Lynchburg. He was met at the train and driven to the residence of his friend and counsel, Captain M. Woods, in High street. After a brief consultation Mr. Chanler and Captain Woods took the 11:45 Chesapeake and Ohio train for Louisa Courthouse to attend Circuit Court.

Statement of His Attorneys.

"The appearance at Louisa Courthouse today at 2 o'clock of attorneys in a civil proceeding in behalf of John Armstrong Chanler with reference to certain property in that county in which he is interested being likely to revive or originate sensational newspaper stories about him, his attorneys, who are Senator John W. Daniel and his law partner, Frederick Harper of Lynchburg; Micajah Woods, Commonwealth's Attorney for Albemarle County, Charlottesville; Armisted C. Gordon, City Attorney of Staunton, and Augustus Van Wyck of New York, have deemed it advisable, with Mr. Chanler's approval, to give to the press the following statement:

"On the 13th of March, 1897, Mr. Chanler, then a citizen of Albemarle County, Va., visiting in New York, was committed to Bloomingdale asylum, at White Plains, N. Y., on an order of a Judge of the Supreme Court of that State.

Submits to Expert Test.

"On Thanksgiving evening, 1900, after numerous fruitless efforts to secure legal counsel, having managed to borrow from a friend a few dollars, he escaped from the asylum and went to Philadelphia. There, under the guise of an attorney representing a client, he submitted his case to a distinguished neurologist, Dr. J. Madison Taylor, and upon Dr. Taylor's expression of willingness to assume charge of his alleged client he disclosed his identity.

"In order to afford Dr. Taylor ample time and opportunity for observation Mr. Chanler of his own motion and without compulsion repaired to a private sanitarium in Philadelphia, under the charge of Dr. Taylor, and remained there for six months. During this time a number of eminent alienists, neurologists, and psychologists were called in consultation by Dr. Taylor, and the records of the proceedings in Louisa County disclose the unanimous opinion of all these experts as to Mr. Chanler's sanity.

Spends Some Time at Home.

"Later, having placed himself in touch with his counsel by correspondence, he came to Virginia and lived at Lynchburg up to Sept. 20, when he returned to his home, County of Albemarle, where he now is, and where proceedings will be instituted, under the Virginia statutes, to demonstrate before a court of competent jurisdiction and in affirmative manner his entire sanity.

Is Sound in Mind and Body.

"Mr. Chanler, who since his escape from Bloomingdale has been believed by many persons to be dead and by many others to be living abroad, is the picture of vigorous physical health, while his sound mentality is vouched for by such eminent scientists as Dr. John Taylor, who was Dr. Weir Mitchell's chief of clinics and is neurologist of the Howard Hospital, Philadelphia; and by Dr. H. C. Wood, professor of nervous diseases in the University of Pennsylvania; Professor Joseph Jastrow, head of the psychological department of the University of Wisconsin and President of the American Psychological association; Dr. Allen McLean Hamilton, President of the Medical College of Cor-

COLLERAN WILL BE TRIED.

CHIEF O'NEILL FILES CHARGES AGAINST HEAD DETECTIVE.

Sends Statement to Mayor, Who Transmits It to Civil Service Commission—Dunlap Case, When Evidence Against a Burglar Disappeared, the Principal Basis—Matter of Bringing Featherstone Back from Iowa Also Mentioned.

Charges against Captain Colleran of the Detective bureau were filed by Superintendent of Police O'Neill, his superior officer, yesterday. The charges were sent by the Superintendent to the Mayor and by the Mayor transmitted to the Civil Service commission. The special charge made is as to the action of the head of the Detective bureau in the Dunlap case. The Featherstone case is also referred to.

Mayor Harrison, in speaking of the matter last evening, said:

"I received from Superintendent O'Neill today a letter calling my attention to a letter he had received previously from Captain Colleran, in which the letter spoke of charges which had been made against his department and stated that he was desirous that they be looked into.

"Superintendent O'Neill speaks of several matters which have been published concerning the conduct of the Detective bureau, more especially what have been known as the Dunlap and Featherstone cases. With his letter he sent a copy of THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 6, in which the story of the Dunlap case was told at length, and with it was some reference to the Featherstone case.

"All of these communications I have sent to the Civil Service commission with a letter of my own stating that in my opinion the matter is one worthy of its investigation. I imagine the commission will take it up accordingly. The entire matter is now in its hands."

Filed at First Opportunity.

When Superintendent O'Neill was asked about the charges he said:

"The Dunlap case was called to my attention the morning of Sept. 6, the day on which President McKinley was shot. As I am again taken his place in the world as one returned from the dead, and backed by the best legal talent will make a fight to have his sanity acknowledged and to secure possession of his property.

POLICE OFFICIALS FAIL TO PASS.

Inspectors Heidelmeier and Hartnett Fail at Merit Board Test for Captains.

Inspectors Heidelmeier and Hartnett, who succeeded in passing a Civil Service examination for inspectorships, have failed to secure credits enough to pass a test for police captaincies. After the markings in the recent examination for Captain had been completed it was discovered that neither Heidelmeier nor Hartnett had been given 70 per cent. The eligible list has not been posted, but it is headed by Lieutenant Clancy, with Lieutenant Joyce (now of the force) second and Lieutenant O'Brien third.

DRIVE STREETER OFF LAKE FRONT.

Police Bring His Latest Invasion of the North Shore Property to an Inglorious End.

HAULED TO REPAIR YARD

Capitol, Courthouse, and the Manners Family Followed the Deposed Executive Away.

HOW THE VICTORY WAS WON

Captain George Wellington Streeter and his peregrinating District of Lake Michigan were evicted again yesterday. They were moved from the foot of Superior street to the city repair yard at the east end of Randolph street. There they rested last night.

After the Captain, as he was hauled down Superior street, went the judicial and legislative buildings, piled high on wagons, in a ludicrous parade, while bringing up the rear—a pathetic picture—were "Billy" Manners, his wife, and sick baby. They had lost the only home they knew.

Thus, at dusk, was the annual "Streeter war" reenacted, but without the pageantry of former years. No loss of life seemed imminent; no bloodshed was feared. Inspector Heidelmeier was not there. Acting under orders from the Street department, Captain Revere of the East Chicago Avenue Police Station swooped down on the doughty Captain and his few followers and dispersed them completely with the assistance of five garbage wagons from the Twenty-first Ward.

Hold a Council of War.

The day was not without its alarms, though when the sun set peace brooded over the repair yard. When daylight disclosed the "Cap," a large van (sheltering the seat of the district government), and two wagons, piled high with sections of the courthouse and council chamber, camped at the foot of Superior street, the police decided on action. The "Cap" trusted to masterly inactivity. The police officials called in the Street department officials and a long consultation was held. This resulted in the sending of a notice to the "Cap" that he must move. This ultimatum said the hours of grace would expire at 5:10 p. m.

The "Cap" was sliding on the tailboard of the moving van discussing federal statutes when the ultimatum was handed him.

"There ain't no law can touch me," he remarked, and tore up the warning. Then followed a second conference of city officials, in which the Lincoln Park police were included. After that began the marshaling of the forces.

Then came 5 p. m. Captain Revere was there with Lieutenant Collins, Inspector Goodman, and Assistant Commissioner of Public Works Blocki represented the Street department. Soon down the drive, with a clatter of hoofs, dashed three mounted park policemen, followed by seven more on foot.

Then down Chicago avenue, with a rumble as ominous as that which startled Brussels on the morning of Waterloo, came five large street department wagons.

Beginning of the End.

"I will not move," reiterated Streeter. "They can't put me out. There ain't power enough in Washington, Chicago, or any place else to do it, is there Manners?" he added as he saw his faithful friend from Michigan emerging from his tent. Manners gravely nodded his head.

"Now, by gum, what's that?" added Captain Streeter, with a yell, as he took an observation from the end of his "capitol." "Do they think they can haul us away in garbage wagons? There ain't no law, I tell you."

The crowd was driven back and the police closed in on the encampment. Streeter sat there alone. His followers had vanished.

The street department men lost no time. The wagons were driven alongside of the "district" capitol. The teams were unhitched from the garbage wagons and hitched to the wagons containing the partly constructed courthouse and council chamber. Then, with a crack of the whip, away went the horses.

The forces of the assaulting army were next directed to the Manners tent. Manners called out that he had a sick child and could not move. An ambulance was summoned. Captain Revere and Inspector Goodman went into the tent which covered the Manners' wagon, but soon came out again. Mrs. Manners had declined to move, and argued the matter with a knife.

Manners Family Moved, Too.

There was another council of war. Then the police removed Manners' tent, hitched another team to the wagon, and hauled the Manners mansion away. The Manners mules followed, led by a policeman.

During the enforced exodus of the courthouse, the army, and the other things belonging to the "District government," Captain Streeter was making a speech from the rear end of his capitol.

"Yes, and I be right here," answered the former sea Captain.

He was there only a few minutes, however, for his capitol was soon rumbling down Superior street toward the repair yard. Behind trailed the crowd, and they cheered the "Cap's" departing words:

"I'll come back and bring Maria with me."

CITY'S COUNSEL TAKES A REST.

Charles M. Walker, After Bagging Some Game in Chicago, Seeks More in the West.

Corporation Counsel Walker left last night on the first vacation he has taken for several years. He will hunt big game on the ranches of his brothers-in-law in Wyoming, near Sheridan, the homes of his sisters, Mrs. Malcolm Moncreiffe and Mrs. O. H. Wallop.

Before leaving Mr. Walker turned over to the city treasury $10,300. Part of this sum—$8,200—was collected from the Metropolitan Elevated railroad company and represents car license fees accruing since 1895.

The remainder—$2,300—was obtained from the Continental National Bank and represents the amount of checks forged by Michael J. Sampson, chief clerk in the Water bureau.

MAROONED ON POLAR ICE.

MEMBER OF PEARY PARTY SAID TO HAVE BEEN DESERTED.

Explorer Is Charged by an Engineer with Putting Ship's Physician Ashore in Far North and Leaving Him Alone to Seek Food and Shelter—Action Declared the Result of a Quarrel — Report of Gold Find in Arctics Denied.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Lieutenant Robert E. Peary, the arctic explorer, is charged by the engineer of the ship with putting ashore and abandoning far up in the North Dr. Diedrick, the surgeon and physician of the Windward. The action is said to have resulted from a quarrel.

The engineer, Staats, who was in the party on its voyage to the North, is direct in his accusations, and warrants the use of his name in the interview telling of the dispute.

Quarrel Early in the Voyage.

If the statements of Engineer Staats are true Lieutenant Peary and Dr. Diedrick, the surgeon and physician chosen to administer to the wants of the explorer and his men, did not live amicably, even from the time the party reached Sydney, Cape Breton, on the way north.

Constant quarreling between the chief of the expedition and Dr. Diedrick resulted in many threats being made by Peary and the latter. These resulted in the abandoning of the doctor at Etah, Greenland, in latitude 79° 10' north.

Put ashore at 2 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 17 last, Dr. Diedrick was without any food whatsoever, and the only means he had of protecting himself from the assaults of the polar bears and other wild animals of the North were a few guns and a little ammunition.

Must Shoot Animals for Food.

What his fate will be is hard to imagine. His only means of procuring eatables will be by shooting walrus and seal. According to Mr. Staats, little sorrow was expressed by Lieutenant Peary and the seven members of the expedition. Etah is a town in name only. It is as barren and cold as the rest of the surrounding ice fields, save for the inhabiting of the spot by a group of Eskimos, not more than fifty in number, and these live in small huts built of ice and snow.

One of the Peary storehouses is situated there, but nothing but hard biscuits is kept in stock. These, with the meat he might get from the killing of a walrus or the slaying of a bear, are the only encouraging prospects held out for the exiled man, according to the returned traveler.

It has been intimated in a private dispatch from Sydney that the real cause of the quarrel between Peary and his subordinate was due to a dispute in regard to the reported discovery of enormous gold and diamond fields in the far North.

Story of Gold Find Denied.

"This is absurd," said Engineer Staats. "In the first place there is no foundation for such a statement when one considers that it would be nearly impossible to dig deep enough through the ice to strike ground. I have had a varied experience throughout the world and have visited nearly every quarter of the globe. In that time I have had much experience in mining for gold and silver, but never heard of riches being found among the ice.

"To prove that the foundations for a report of a quarrel between Peary and Dr. Diedrick on these grounds is absurd I will say that few sane people believe there is any land beneath the ice of the arctic regions."

What the cause of the friction was Engineer Staats says he does not know.

DR. WILLIAM C. GRAY ILL AT HIS OAK PARK HOME.

Dr. William C. Gray, the venerable editor of the Interior, is ill at his residence in Oak Park. Dr. A. A. Mathews, his physician, says his condition is serious.

Dr. Gray underwent a surgical operation just before he left Chicago for his annual vacation in the Wisconsin woods. When he returned recently he was found to be in a weakened condition, not only as a result of the appeal to surgery but because of the growing infirmities of age. He seems to be gradually breaking down.

Dr. Gray is foremost among the Presbyterians of the West. His pen has made itself felt upon the readers of the Interior for thirty years. The "Campfire Musings" and his editorials are known to readers far and wide. He practically ceased active work two months ago.

SOLDIER KILLED IN FIGHT WITH A DEMENTED COMRADE.

Guard's Poor Aim Is Believed to Be Responsible for the Shooting of Three Cavalrymen at Fort Meade, S. D.

Fort Meade, S. D., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—One soldier is dead and two wounded as the result of an attempt to capture a demented trooper in the barracks-room here early this morning. It is believed all three were shot by the guard, who was firing at the crazy man.

Private George Lynch of Cavalry Troop 13, after discharge from the mess-house, seized his carbine, and, entering the mess-room, began shooting. The guard was summoned, and he, also, used a gun.

In the fight that followed Sentry McAninch was killed and Lynch and Private Caldwell were wounded. Both will recover.

THREE DIE IN FREIGHT WRECK.

Sudden Application of Brakes Piles Up Four Cars on Railway in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—Three men were killed and one probably fatally injured at Wayne, Mich., twelve miles west of here, tonight as the result of a freight wreck on the Père Marquette railroad. The men, it is supposed, were stealing a ride. The wreck was the result of the sudden application of the brakes by the engineer to avoid running into another car on the track ahead. Four cars piled up.

ASSET OF $500 FOR PHILLIPS.

Appraiser's Report on the Office Fixtures of the Dethroned Corn King.

Appraisers appointed by Referee Wean to place a valuation on the office fixtures belonging to the George H. Phillips company have made a report showing only $500 worth of stock. Bankruptcy proceedings against this concern are pending, but the examination of the members of the company will not take place for several weeks.

OPINIONS BARRED IN SCHLEY CASE.

EVIDENCE TO BE DIRECT.

FIGHT WITH COLON BRIEF.

One Officer Insists Ships Could Coal at Sea and Tells of Start for Key West to Take on Fuel Supply.

RAMSAY ACCEPTED AS MEMBER.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—A decision that opinions of witnesses were not to be admitted as evidence was the chief feature of the Schley court of inquiry today.

Four witnesses were examined, they contradicting each other on the question of the distance the "flying squadron" lay off the Cuban coast during the time previous to Sampson's arrival.

Bombardment at Harbor Mouth.

The chief point investigated today was the bombardment of the Colon while it was anchored inside the harbor within view of the blockading squadron. It was developed that Commodore Schley had his ships attack the Spanish vessel, but later withdrew.

Whether or not it was possible to coal the ships at sea was another question given considerable attention, one witness, Captain Harber, holding that he believed the Texas could have taken on fuel without seeking shelter. Captain Chester declared the sea too rough, and said he had suggested a spot thirty miles away for a coaling station.

Few Spectators Attend Inquiry.

The attendance was extremely small and at no time during the session today was the hall at all crowded.

There was nothing spectacular attending the opening of the court today, the members being attired in fatigue uniforms. The witnesses, however, were in full dress uniform and carried swords, upon the hilts of which was tied crape in memory of the dead President.

It developed today beyond question that the court, which is now complete by the swearing in of Rear Admiral Ramsey, to whom no objection was made, is entirely impartial. This was demonstrated when it ruled out a question in which Rear Admiral Higginson was asked his opinion as to whether every effort incumbent upon the commander-in-chief (Schley) was made to destroy the Colon, which was plainly visible in the mouth of Santiago harbor. Rear Admiral Higginson replied before he could be interrupted that he believed the Colon could have been destroyed when it lay at anchor in the harbor on May 31.

No "Opinions" Will Be Admitted.

This question and answer were ruled out by the court, after a long argument by Attorney Raynor, who cited a number of authorities against admitting mere opinions.

Before hearing the arguments Admiral Dewey himself expressed a desire to have the opinion of Rear Admiral Higginson on this point, but when he learned that it was contrary to the ordinary practice he demonstrated his impartiality by directing that the question be withdrawn.

Judge Advocate Lemly admitted that the weight of authorities was against admitting opinions, but at the same time contended that if the court desired it could obtain the opinion of witnesses.

Officers Differ Over Distances.

The other chief development today was direct contradiction of Captain Giles P. Harber, chief executive officer of the Texas, during the war, by Major Wood of the Marine Corps, who was on the Massachusetts when that vessel was a part of the blockading squadron off Santiago.

Major Wood testified that the ships of the flying squadron were only two to four miles from the Santiago harbor during the day and were nearer at night.

He also testified that in steaming eastward and westward of the harbor the vessels were never more than a mile and a half away from the entrance.

Captain Harber, however, testified that vessels of the flying squadron were from seven to eight miles away from the harbor during the day and were farther away during the night. He said they steamed a distance of seven and eight miles eastward and westward, thus leaving the mouth of the harbor uncovered, but later contradicted himself and said the ships were seven miles distant by day and ten miles distant by night. He will be cross-examined tomorrow and the log of the Texas will be produced, and this is expected to show that all the figures used by him are incorrect.

Harber Willing to Coal at Sea.

Captain Harber testified that he could have coaled at Santiago, notwithstanding the rough weather, which was given as Rear Admiral Schley's reason for starting toward Key West to coal. But Captain Chester of the Cincinnati, who was also on the stand, testified that it was doubtful if the rough weather would have permitted coaling.

The entire day's proceedings dealt with the campaign previous to the arrival of Rear Admiral Sampson at Santiago, and the witnesses were questioned with a view to bringing out information as to whether Schley had done his full duty in trying to destroy the Cristobal Colon, which was distinctly seen in the Santiago harbor three or four days previous to June 1, and which was fired upon by the flying squadron.

Ships Withdraw from Attack.

Major Wood testified that Rear Admiral Schley came upon the deck of the Massachusetts and in conversation with Higginson remarked, while the Spanish shells were flying over the ship: "Starboard your helm, and let's get out of this."

Upon being questioned further, Major

Wood was not positive that Schley made this remark, as there were a number of persons on the deck, there was considerable confusion, and Wood was eight feet distant.

Signals Not Known to Squadron.

A development of the day was the testimony of Captain Harber, which brought out the fact that neither Schley nor any of the officers of the flying squadron had been informed of the code of signals arranged between the Cubans on shore, at Cienfuegos, and Admiral Sampson. Captain Harber testified that the signals made by the Cubans had been observed by the officers of the fleet, who had discussed the signals, but were ignorant of their meaning. It was not until the arrival of Captain McCalla with the Marblehead that the meaning of the signals was made known.

Upon the arrival of the Marblehead Captain McCalla communicated with the Cubans, and it was then for the first time that Schley knew positively that the Spanish fleet was not in Cienfuegos.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Admiral Dewey called the court to order and the simple ceremony of organization was soon completed. The first business was the reading by Judge Advocate Lemly of the order of the Navy department appointing Rear Admiral Ramsay to succeed Rear Admiral Howison, as a member of the court. When the reading was completed Captain Lemly turned to Rear Admiral Schley and asked if the latter had any objection to the services of any member of the court.

Ramsay Acceptable to Schley.

Rear Admiral Schley arose and in a clear, resonant voice, said: "I have not."

Judge Advocate Lemly then swore the members of the court, the three officers clasping a Bible at the same time, and as the oath was being read to them each one kissed it. Captain Lemly was then sworn by Admiral Dewey. Then the Judge Advocate administered the oath to the three official stenographers. He then asked as to the order of business, and the court retired to arrange for its further proceedings. The members of the court soon returned to the room after a brief conference, after which the Judge Advocate, addressing Rear Admiral Schley, asked if he had any suggestions to make as to the methods of proceedings.

The Rear Admiral responded with a nod of his head and a move of his hand, after which the business of the court was in full swing.

Official Charts Introduced.

Captain Lemly presented the report of the Bureau of Navigation for 1898, a hydrographic chart of the West Indies and adjacent seas, and other charts. He stated explicitly that they were introduced, not as testimony, but as books of reference.

"Will they preclude the introduction of original documents?" Judge Wilson asked.

"Not at all," was the reply. "On the contrary, we shall desire to introduce the original document when opportunity offers."

Captain Parker made objection to the hydrographic chart when it was presented. "It is grossly incorrect," he said. "As a matter of fact, the coast line of Cuba is six miles farther south and four miles farther west than it should be." He, however, withdrew his objection when assured that the chart was not to be used as evidence.

Higginson Is First Witness.

Rear Admiral Higginson, commander-in-chief of the north Atlantic squadron, who was the first witness called, gave his full name as Francis J. Higginson, rank as that of Rear Admiral, said he was now in command of the north Atlantic squadron, that as had as Captain commanded the battleship Massachusetts during the Spanish war, and that for a part of the time the Massachusetts had been a part of the "flying squadron" of which Admiral Schley had been in command. He told of joining the fleet at Newport News, of going to Key West, and then, on the 22d of May, of going to Cienfuegos, Cuba. Key West had been left on May 19, 1898, and Cienfuegos reached on the 22d.

"What was then done to secure communication with the Cuban forces on shore?" asked Captain Lemly.

"Nothing to my knowledge," the witness replied. "I did not see that anything was done, but I understood that information concerning the Cubans was received through Captain McCalla."

Rear Admiral Higginson said, in response to questions, that this was later. He also told, in reply to questions, of the presence of the collier Merrimac and of the departure from Cienfuegos and the arrival at Santiago on the evening of the 26th. He said that the Massachusetts had at that time taken on about 130 tons of coal, but that as the weather was rough this was done with difficulty.

Start for Key West and Recoil.

The witness also told of the fleet's leaving Santiago for Key West on the night of its arrival at the former place and of how, after steaming westward for some time, the vessels all, in response to Commodore Schley's signals, returned and steamed to within two or three miles of the mouth of the harbor.

"What happened to cause the decision to return to Key West?" the witness was asked.

"I don't know," was the reply.

"What was the condition of the weather as the time for coaling at sea?"

"It was not impossible to coal, I think."

"Did you have any conference with the commanding officer in regard to returning to Santiago after you had gotten on the way to Key West?"

"None. We acted under general orders. All we did was to follow the signals of the flagship—the signals of the commander-in-chief."

Colon Seen in Outer Harbor.

Speaking of the conditions when Santiago harbor was again reached the Admiral said that he could see well into the harbor and that he saw the Spanish ship Colon lying in the outer harbor. He did not remember seeing other vessels, but the Colon was then 1,000 yards beyond Morro Castle. The vessel had lain there until it was fired upon, which was done on May 31, and had then retired.

Describing this engagement Rear Admiral Higginson said it was on the day before the arrival of reinforcements under Sampson. He said that Schley had come aboard and said that he wanted "to go in and fire on the Colon."

"So we went in and fired," continued the witness. He said the shots fell short of the Colon and that the Spanish shore batteries had in turn fired at the bombarding ships.

Learns Strength of Shore Battery.

In reply to questions as to what had been accomplished by the bombardment, the witness replied that it had served to draw the fire of the Spanish shore battery and to give an idea of what it was composed of.

"What idea did you get of its composition?"

"I didn't think it amounted to anything."

"Where was Admiral Schley during the bombardment?"

"At one time he was with me in the conning tower, but most of the time he was on the outside of it. I was near him most of the time."

"Describe the Admiral's manner in this engagement."

"I hardly know how to answer that question, except to say that his manner was that of a commander-in-chief."

The Judge Advocate then asked: "What impression did the Admiral's manner in that engagement make upon you?"

Mr. Raynor of counsel for Schley objected to this question, and after some contention the question was withdrawn.

Judge Advocate Lemly stated before withdrawing the question that he considered the point as embraced in the precept, and said that, while the task was a disagreeable one, he considered it his duty to press it, and intimated that he would do so at another time.

Not Ordered to Destroy Foe.

"Why did you not go in and destroy the Colon in the engagement on May 31?" Judge Advocate Lemly asked the witness.

"Because we were not ordered to do so," replied the witness.

Later on the witness volunteered the statement: "I think the Colon could have been destroyed where it lay at anchor that day."

Rear Admiral Higginson stated in reply to questions from Captain Lemly that there were no written orders, and so far as he could recall the only verbal orders were to "Go in."

The Judge Advocate then offered Rear Admiral Higginson's report of Aug. 5, saying the report had been made in line of duty. Judge Wilson of counsel for Rear Admiral Schley said no objection would be made, but that counsel for the applicant did not desire the unobjected acceptance of the report to operate as a precedent.

Court Asks More Details.

Captain Lemly announced that he had no further questions to ask of Rear Admiral Higginson, and counsel for Rear Admiral Schley stated they had no questions to put. It was then stated by Captain Lemly that the court had some questions of its own to ask.

These were written, and the first was concerning the elevation of the guns during the bombardment of the Colon on May 31. The reply was that at first they were 7,900 feet and latterly 9,000 feet. The next question was as to whether "there was any place of shelter near Santiago where the flying squadron could have coaled after its arrival at Santiago?"

Rear Admiral Higginson replied that Guantanamo was only forty miles to the east.

Sensation Caused by Question.

The third question, coming, as it did, from the court, created something of a sensation, which was added to by the reply. The question was: "Was every effort made by Admiral Schley to destroy or capture the Spanish steamer Colon as it lay at anchor in the harbor at Santiago between the 27th and 31st of May?"

"Object," "Object," "Object," came from each of Admiral Schley's counsel, but before a halt could be called the witness had replied: "No, I don't think it was."

The question and the reply led to a legal controversy. Judge Wilson and Mr. Raynor both gave reasons for their objections. They contended that the question called for the opinion of the witness, whereas only facts were admissible.

Judge Raynor asked: "May I ask the court if, according to the method of procedure here, the court has ruled that we are not at liberty to object to any question at all that may be asked?"

Dewey Wants Answer Admitted.

To this Admiral Dewey replied: "While this court is ordered to investigate all the facts we have the right to ask any question that will bring out the facts. One of the questions to be decided is whether or not every effort incumbent upon the commanding officer of the fleet under such circumstances was made by Commodore Schley to capture or destroy the Spanish cruiser Colon as it lay at anchor in the entrance to Santiago harbor on May 27 to 31st, inclusive.

"We have asked that question and we have his (Admiral Higginson's) opinion. This court, by the precept, is obliged to give an opinion upon the conclusion of the investigation. Now in the opinion of the court and in order to form our opinion we wanted Admiral Higginson's opinion on that subject."

Wilson Opposes Hearsay Evidence.

Judge Wilson said: "I understand that precept, reading it through from end to end, to be simply this, that there shall be an investigation to get at the facts. And when you have gotten at the facts then you express your opinion, but you are not called upon, and, I must respectfully submit, are not permitted to take somebody else's opinion.

"You have a right to get all the facts you can, and that is what we want, but otherwise, you will see at once that you might have a great variety of opinions, and all the opinions of subordinates. In other words, the precept doesn't call for anybody's opinion except the opinion of the honorable court."

Admiral Dewey—In the opinion of one member of the court, and perhaps of the others, we do not ask his opinion, but for a statement of a matter of fact. We ask, "Was everything done?" We don't say "in your opinion."

Hour's Recess for Luncheon.

Judge Raynor made an extended argument, quoting many legal authorities against the admissibility of opinions on the part of witnesses, and he was speaking when, at 1 o'clock, the court took a recess of an hour for luncheon.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the court was called to order by Admiral Dewey, and Mr. Rayner resumed his argument in opposition to the admissibility of questions intended to call out the opinions of witnesses.

He contended that if testimony giving opinions should be admitted the inquiry would be interminable. If, for instance, opinions were to be taken as to the propriety of the loop made by the Brooklyn practically the entire navy could be summoned, as all its members were experts and each would have his opinion. Witnesses were expected to relate facts; the court to give opinions.

Replying, Judge Advocate Lemly quoted the record in the trial of Admiral Keppel, arguing that it was entirely within the discretion of the court to decide whether the opinion of a witness who had been on the ground should be called for by the court. He thought, however, that "the weight of authority was against asking the opinion of a witness."

Entire Matter Is Ruled Out.

The court then withdrew its question as to Rear Admiral Higginson's opinion as to whether Commodore Schley had done all that could be done to destroy the Colon while that vessel lay at anchor in Santiago Bay.

Another question put by the court was in regard to the distance the squadron lay out from Santiago, and the reply was that it was three or four miles out during the day time and two or three miles out at night. In reply to a question he said that after the bombardment of May 31 no further effort had been made to destroy the Colon, because the vessel had gone inside the harbor.

Captain Chester Is Called.

Rear Admiral Higginson was then excused and Captain C. N. Chester, who commanded the Cincinnati during the Spanish war and who is now in command of the naval war college at Newport, was called.

Captain Chester related an interview he had had with Commodore Schley on board the Brooklyn off the south coast of Cuba on May 20, 1898. He had told Schley that from his examination of the charts he believed coaling feasible, but he thought it would be done under great disadvantages. He had expressed the opinion that boats might be used or that a more secure point might be gained under the lee thirty miles to the eastward.

Major Wood Tells of Blockade.

Major Thomas N. Wood of the Marine corps, who commanded the marine force on the Massachusetts during the Spanish war, testified to the circumstances connected with that vessel's operations during the siege of Santiago. He said that the second day after Santiago Bay was reached by the "flying squadron" he had seen the Christobal Colon lying inside the harbor; that there was at that time another Spanish vessel of the Viscaya class partly visible. He thought both were in view for three or four days.

The witness also said that when Schley had come aboard the Massachusetts previous to the bombardment of the Colon, on May 31, he had heard that officer say to Captain Higginson: "We are going in, but we will not go in sufficiently near to endanger the vessels." He had been told that the distance was to be 10,000 feet.

After the bombardment ceased, Major Wood said, the Spanish shore batteries continued to fire at the American ships. At this point he had gone forward, where he had again seen Commodore Schley.

Ordered to Retire from Attack.

"Did you hear orders or instructions given by Commodore Schley after the bombardment?" asked the Judge Advocate. The witness replied:

"I went upon the superstructure to ask if we were going in again or going any closer so as to know whether we would have a chance to use the six-inch batteries, of which I was in command, and I heard, as I believe, Commodore Schley say to Captain Higginson: 'Starboard your helm, and let's get out of this.'"

"How clear is your recollection? Were these his exact words?"

"As I remember, these were the exact words, and at the time I considered them as having been made by Commodore Schley. There was quite a number of people there upon the forward part of the deck at that time, and from the recognition of the voice and the general direction from which it came, I took it to be a remark made by the flag officer. I suppose I was probably eight feet away from the speaker when I heard this remark made."

"Did you hear it distinctly?"

"I heard it fairly distinctly. There was a bit of confusion going on at the time, caused by persons walking around."

Harber Describes Operations.

Captain Giles P. Harber, now naval attaché at Paris and St. Petersburg, who was executive officer on board the Texas during the Spanish war, was asked to give a detailed account of the operations of that vessel during the war, and he did so. The Texas had been a part of the "flying squadron," and the witness said that when they steamed for Cienfuegos the flagship signaled, "We go to Cienfuegos to bag the Spaniards; wish you good luck."

In reply to questions he said that when Cienfuegos was reached earth works were discovered there, but no effort was made to destroy them.

"Now, Captain," the Judge Advocate said, "I want to ask you as executive officer of the Texas, in case of the sudden death or disability of Captain Philip, who would have taken command of that vessel?"

"I would naturally have," was the reply.

No Plan of Battle Prepared.

"What instructions did you have, written or verbal, respecting the order of battle which the 'flying squadron' was to follow in case the enemy should suddenly appear?"

"The matter never was broached. The commanding officer never gave me any nor did I know that he had any."

"You had no knowledge, then, of the existence of any order of battle or written or verbal instructions covering such a contingency?"

"No, sir."

The witness said that while lying off Cienfuegos he, with others, had seen lights, from the shore which, from their nature, they took to be signals, but that no attention had been paid to them until the 24th, when the Marblehead had arrived, and, he understood, had responded to the signals and communicated with those on shore.

He also said that the Texas had been in no great need of coal while lying off Cienfuegos, but that it could have taken more and would have been glad to get it. The Iowa had coaled there, he said.

Rough Weather Delays Texas.

Describing the sail to Santiago, the witness said there had been rough weather, but the Texas could have made better time than it did. He said that when the squadron arrived in sight of the Yale and other American vessels off Santiago on the evening of May 26 all the vessels cleared for action, thinking they were vessels of the enemy. When they discovered their mistake Captain Philip had signaled Captain Wise of the Yale, saying: "Have you got them in there?" to which the reply was: "I think we have."

Mr. Hanna, who conducted the examination of this witness, asked him particularly concerning the trip from Santiago toward Key West, when the squadron started for the latter place in order to coal. He said that no effort had been made on the 26th, the day of the arrival off Santiago, to coal ship.

The questions and replies on this point were as follows:

"Have you had any experience in coaling vessels in the waters of the West Indies or in that part of the world?"

"If, as executive officer of the Texas, you had received instructions at that time on the 26th to coal ship, what would you have done?"

Not Impossible to Load Fuel.

"Was there anything in the conditions of the weather or the sea then prevailing to have prevented the Texas from taking coal on the 26th?"

"On the evening of the 26th I do not think the sea was any heavier than existed when I successfully coaled ship at Tortugas, although the collier was a heavier vessel. I coaled ship in Tortugas with a considerable sea, the collier having only about 3,500 tons."

"Of course, I can understand you don't go to sea to coal ship, but in an emergency you think you could have coaled the Texas on that day?"

"I believe we could have taken coal on the Texas, yes."

Relating the particulars of the return to Santiago, after starting for Key West, the witness said that coal had been taken on the night of the 27th. When Captain Philip had been asked if the Texas could coal he had replied: "We can try." The trial had been made and the effort had proved successful, the witness said.

Captain Harber also told of seeing the Colon inside the harbor at Santiago on the morning of May 29, and said it had remained there until June 1. The American fleet, he said, lay seven or eight miles from the mouth of the harbor at night and farther than that in the day time.

Can Tell Naught About Loop.

Asked concerning his knowledge of the Brooklyn's loop during the battle off Santiago, the witness said he did not see the loop made. He said, in reply to questions, that the blockade was maintained by the vessels steaming in column back and forth in front of the mouth of the harbor at a distance of from seven to ten miles out, the greater distance being that maintained at night.

At this distance there was no difficulty in seeing the shore during the daytime and on clear nights, but when the weather was bad it was difficult to see the shore in the laytime, and sometimes, under those circumstances, impossible to see it at night.

Captain Harber volunteered the statement that on May 27, before the new supply of coal was taken on the Texas, there were about 400 tons of that fuel on the vessel.

Referring to the Brooklyn, Captain Harber was then asked concerning the position on the Brooklyn relative to the Texas and to the other ships when he first saw it after the turn.

Position of Vessels Explained.

"The Brooklyn," he replied, "was on the port bow of the Texas, standing at an angle, I should say, approximating one-half point to the southward of the heading of the Texas. At that time the Oregon was just forging past, on the starboard side, inshore. The Iowa was still farther inshore and pointing up, so that the bow overlapped our bow. At one time I know that we fired across the stern of the Iowa."

"Where were the Spanish vessels with reference to the heading of the Texas?"

"The head of the line was then on our starboard bow. I should say, approximately four points on the bow."

The Texas was not then moving at full speed because the Oregon was passing, if the Texas at that time backed or stopped he was not aware of the circumstances.

At this point the court adjourned promptly at 4 o'clock until 11 o'clock tomorrow.

LAST SCENE OF THE MARTYRED PRESIDENT'S FUNERAL. BODY BEING BORNE INTO VAULT OF CEMETERY AT CANTON.

WOMAN GIVES FOR STATUE

M'KINLEY MONUMENT IN LINCOLN PARK PROPOSED.

Agnes D. Miller Makes the Suggestion to Mayor Harrison Accompanied by Donation—City Executive Approves Idea and Agrees to Receive Other Contributions—Plan to Make This Solely a Chicago Tribute—Senator Dolliver to Speak at Coliseum.

At the suggestion of a woman a fund has been started for a statue of William McKinley to be placed in Lincoln Park. The beginning is small, consisting thus far merely of the contribution made by the originator, but the idea has the support of Mayor Harrison, to whom it has been explained, and he has expressed a willingness to receive other contributions.

Agnes D. Miller, 1738 Buckingham place, has given the suggestion to the Mayor, and hers is the first donation. In her letter was $1. That is in the possession of Deputy Controller Frost, the nucleus of a McKinley monument fund.

Letter to the Mayor.

Mrs. Miller's letter to the Mayor said:

"Inclosed please find $1 with which I sincerely wish to start a fund for the erection of a monument to President McKinley—life size—to be placed in Lincoln Park. I send this in behalf of all the men, women, and children of Chicago."

Whatever other contributions may be received will be placed in the custody of Deputy Controller Frost. The fund, if it grows, will be taken care of by the city. If the suggestion meets with popular favor it is probable a committee will be named to have charge of the contributions.

"It is an idea which should appeal to the people," said Mayor Harrison. "Personally I should favor it, and I believe it will be taken up by the citizens."

THE TRIBUNE has received a subscription of $1 from J. H. Jumper, 1365 West Lake street, to be devoted to a McKinley monument fund. The amount has been turned over to Deputy Controller Frost to be added to the nucleus for that purpose.

Senator Dolliver to Speak.

Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa notified Mayor Harrison yesterday that he would accept the invitation to address the memorial meeting at the Coliseum on Sunday night. A similar response was received from Governor Richard Yates by the Council Committee on Arrangements. Daniel W. Lawler of St. Paul will address the children's meeting in the afternoon. The Rev. Father Dorney is expected to speak. Mayor Harrison hopes to be well enough by Sunday to preside. In the event of an overflow Tattersall's may be secured for another meeting.

In deference to the wishes expressed by many persons the hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," to be sung at the afternoon and evening Coliseum meetings, will be rendered according to the original music, by which the song is known to the great mass of the people. The entire audience will join in the hymn.

Although admission to the meetings will be unrestricted, tickets will be issued to those who have contributed to the success of the memorial procession and meetings by money gifts. Otherwise seats will be given without tickets. The Street department, under orders of Superintendent Doherty, is cleaning the streets in anticipation of the meeting.

Memorial of the Jurists.

Joint memorial services for President McKinley and Judge William Woods will be held in the rooms of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the Monadnock Building on Oct. 1. The Chicago Bar and Patent Law associations will have charge of arrangements. Resolutions in memory of Judge Woods will be presented, to which Judge James G. Jenkins probably will respond. Resolutions on the death of President McKinley will then be read, and Judge Peter S. Grosscup probably will speak for the court. The court then will adjourn for the day.

LAW AGAINST ANARCHISM ASKED

Building Trades Council Calls for Suppression of Literature and Teachings.

At a meeting of the Chicago Building Trades council held last evening resolutions were unanimously adopted deploring the assassination of the President and denouncing the doctrines of anarchy. Special legislation for the suppression of its literature and teachings were advocated.

Dennis O'Neill of 700 Thirty-first street, secretary of the local Painters' union, has complained that his patriotism on Thursday cost him his position. According to O'Neill he was discharged because he took a holiday from his work on Thursday to view the parade.

Justice Quinn imposed a fine of $10 on Peter Meskel as a sequel to Meskel's public declaration that Czolgosz was all right and should not be executed. Meskel made the declaration in a Hyde Park saloon on Thursday night and was at once assaulted by the crowd. He was arrested in time to save him from serious injury. He resides at 3855 Prairie avenue.

Emma Goldman denied the truth of the dispatch from Buffalo which purported to show that she and Czolgosz were well acquainted.

ALLEGED DYNAMITER IS CAUGHT

Captain Colleran received word yesterday that George McFarland, indicted on a charge of being implicated in the attempt to blow up Patrick Ellsworth's stone quarry, had been arrested in Dowagiac, Mich. Policeman Connors of the Thirty-fifth Street Station left for the Michigan town last night to bring back the prisoner.

MRS. M'KINLEY OUT OF DANGER.

Dr. Rixey Says He Feels Sure the Widow of Dead President Will Recover.

GOES TO THE CEMETERY.

Canton Home Kept Quiet and She Has Considerable Rest.

SOLDIERS STILL ON GUARD.

Canton, O., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. McKinley is physically stronger tonight than she was yesterday. Dr. Rixey announced that his distinguished patient, in fact, has gained so much that he is hopeful that she will survive the shock that came to her in so unexpected a manner.

The policy of Dr. Rixey in treating Mrs. McKinley was shown today. He allowed her to go to the vault in which rests the casket containing the remains of her husband. Accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Barber, Dr. Rixey, and Postmaster George B. Frease, she was driven to Westlawn. The detail of the Fourteenth United States regulars was all attention.

Kneels by the Coffin.

Mrs. McKinley entered the vault and knelt beside the sealed casket. As she entered the vault the guard hastily closed the entrance, standing shoulder to shoulder, thereby screening her from public gaze. She remained five minutes. She bore up bravely, and was able to walk to the carriage with as much ease as has been her wont for years past.

The visit to the cemetery was part of Dr. Rixby's plan. He has decided to allow her to have her own way as far as possible. He is trying to interest her in the business affairs of the estate.

Many Visitors in Canton.

Canton is not yet cleared of the crowd of visitors. Many people remained all day and still others will stay several days longer.

The McKinley home, the First Methodist Church, in which the final funeral services were held, the place where the floral tributes have been arranged near the receiving vault in Westlawn Cemetery, and Camp McKinley, where the troops dwelt several days, were the points of interest today. Thousands of visitors went to the places named. All day long a stream of people passed through the church and courthouse. The cars on the electric line leading to the cemetery were taxed to their utmost. All the floral pieces displayed to the public have been put on a slight elevation near the receiving vault.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church will be draped in mourning for thirty days.

May Not Defend Assassin.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Former Justice Robert C. Titus is reluctant to undertake the defense of Assassin Czolgosz and said tonight that he would not make known his decision until tomorrow. Mr. Loran Lewis will make known his decision at the same time.

Subpœnas were issued today requiring all the witnesses to be in court on Monday morning.

Fund for National Monument.

Litchfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The women of this city have subscribed $100 to a national fund for the erection of a national monument to the memory of the late President William McKinley. Mayor W. J. King has wired Secretary Gage at Washington to become custodian of the fund.

BLOW IS AIMED AT MOB RULE.

Resolution Offered in Virginia Constitutional Convention Requires Reward for Arrest.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 20.—In the constitutional convention, Mr. Pedigo of Henry offered a resolution requiring the Governor to offer a reward of from $300 to $500 for the arrest and conviction of "multitudes guilty of murder, commonly known as a mob." Mr. Wysor of Pulaski presented a new suffrage clause prohibiting negroes from holding office and requiring voters to write their names and to read in English the State constitution.

NEWS OF NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.

President Roosevelt has no notion of guarding himself from the bullet of an assassin by any extraordinary means. From the time of his arrival at Buffalo the President has persistently frowned down upon the well meant efforts of the secret service and other officials to provide him with a bodyguard day and night. The suggestion of it seemed to annoy him exceedingly. He has been guarded persistently, nevertheless, although the detectives were always at a distance. Today he stole a march upon them, and upon the White House attachés as well, and put in practice his favorite theory that he is safe in the hands of the people in spite of the fate of President McKinley.

President Does Not Think Guard Needed.

Soon after noon today, having finished some temporary work in his office up-stairs, President Roosevelt seized his hat, and in his usual impetuous fashion, and before any one knew what was going on, bolted through the doors of the White House and soon was steaming along through the parks in front of the Executive Mansion. The President had passed the White House gates and was well along on his way to Captain Cowles' residence, more than half a mile away, before the astonished officials realized what had happened.

President Roosevelt is not endowed with any spirit of bravado, but he feels that as guards could not save the life of President McKinley at Buffalo, they cannot do much more here. He does not propose to be imprudent, and will neglect no reasonable precaution.

He believes, however, and has so expressed himself to his friends, that 999 out of every 1,000 American citizens would defend their President at the risk of their own lives, and he is willing to take his own chances with the odd men. In fact, President Roosevelt would be a formidable antagonist for anybody at close range. He swings along with all the activity of an athlete, and his powerful shoulders, with the sturdy poise of his neck, show the effect of his long training among the cowboys of the West.

The President expects to remain with his brother-in-law on N street two days more, and then will take up his abode at the White House on Monday, being followed by Mrs. Roosevelt and the children on Wednesday.

Roosevelt Gets Down to Routine Business.

There was absolutely no demonstration attending the arrival of the President and his Cabinet, who reached the White House at 9:40 this morning. There were no loungers on the portico as the President stepped out of his carriage, and the only ceremony of reception was a bow from the policeman at the door, which was responded to in a cheery fashion, and the President was in the corridor, into the elevator, and up-stairs before the others in the party knew what had become of him. He made his way at once into the Presidential office, and dictated to his private secretary, Mr. Loeb, with extreme rapidity for half an hour or so before the Cabinet arrived. The first formal Cabinet meeting under President Roosevelt in the White House was, of the necessity of things, distinctively a routine affair. The President for some time to come will be obliged to go into the details of every matter presented to him for his original action.

He heard today from each Cabinet officer a brief summary of the situation of the public business in each department. The summary of President Roosevelt and his Cabinet was that the affairs of the nation are much less in arrears than might have been expected.

President Roosevelt has adopted one general policy, which is to carry out every plan which had actually been adopted by President McKinley. Each Cabinet officer has been requested to bear this fact in mind, and all matters of departmental policy, as well as all appointments, which had been submitted to President McKinley or which were in accordance with his general instructions, are approved now without hesitation.

President Roosevelt will not even accept responsibility for any of these plans or appointments, preferring to take the grounds that he is merely executing the wishes of his superior officer. As to all new plans and appointments President Roosevelt insists upon being thoroughly informed, and he has asked each Cabinet officer to supply him with abundant information regarding each matter brought to his attention.

Senator Cullom One of the Early Callers.

One of the first callers upon President Roosevelt was Senator Cullom. He called merely to assure the President of his loyalty, but Colonel Roosevelt at once assured him that the appointment of his son-in-law, Mr. William Barrett Ridgely, was one of those which had been agreed upon by President McKinley and which President Roosevelt desired to ratify without even so much as making inquiry as to the character of the appointee. Immediately after the Cabinet meeting instructions were given to prepare the necessary papers, and it is probable that the appointment will be made tomorrow.

Controller Dawes, who is to be succeeded by Mr. Ridgely, expects to leave here by Oct. 1. He has taken the Clayton house in Evanston, and will remove there at once with his family. The Controller of the Currency was probably closer to President McKinley in a personal way than anybody here in an official line. He was deeply affected by the tragedy at Buffalo, and has determined to observe the usual official period of thirty days of mourning, although he goes out of office before the conclusion of that time. He has, therefore, decided not to attend the State fair in Illinois on Oct. 3, and has sent on his regrets for the reason stated.

In view of rumors regarding his political intentions, Controller Dawes was asked directly today whether he intended to keep up his Senatorial fight, or whether his failure to go to the State fair was to be construed as the practical abandonment of his aspirations. "I am as much a candidate for the Senate as ever," said Mr. Dawes. "I resigned my position as Controller of the Currency so that I might enter into the Senatorial fight and not be accused of using my position to further my own political prospects. I intend to go to Illinois and make the best fight I can for the place.

"I cannot, under the circumstances, however, engage in political work actively, at least until after the usual period of mourning has passed over. As the State fair came during the thirty days of mourning it seemed best for me not to go there. I am sure the public will understand my motive, and I do not fear any misconstruction in this regard."

Governor Wood Tells About Cuban Affairs.

Among President Roosevelt's callers today, and one in whom he seemed to take the greatest delight, was Governor General Wood. General Wood told the President that the situation in Cuba was entirely satisfactory on the whole. The constitutional convention did not desire to adjourn until the attitude of President Roosevelt had been ascertained and the convention probably would not be dissolved until General Wood returned to Havana and made an oral report. The situation, as presented by General Wood, was gone over by the President and the Cabinet. The only disquieting feature is the fact that the Cuban constitution provides for a half dozen general elections every year, so that the chances for turmoil and even for revolutions are quite excellent.

At the Cabinet meeting today, however, it was decided that this country could not assume to exercise any more supervision of the Cuban constitution than can be found in the Platt amendments.

They represent the conditions laid down by Congress, and as they have been accepted in the Cuban constitution, the administration is forced to take the grounds that all other matters must be considered as purely local to Cuba.

The President has suggested to Governor General Wood that he should counsel the Cubans in a friendly fashion to consolidate some of their elections, and thus to reduce the minimum these dangers which have beset the early history of every one of the Latin American republics. It is a fact well known to President Roosevelt and all his Cabinet that the revolutions in Spanish-America always originate in an election, because the Spanish-American people have never yet adopted the Anglo-Saxon plan of abiding by the result of an election. Instead of that the Spanish-Americans look upon a resort to arms as perfectly natural on the part of the defeated candidate. Hence the President of a South American republic, after he is once fairly in office, generally at once proclaims himself a dictator, and forgets to have any election for his successor, because he knows that no matter how large the majority the unsuccessful candidate will inevitably organize a revolution.

The Cuban system, with its provision for an election every two or three months, seems to be especially devised to bring about a period of anarchy. In that case the United States, under the Platt amendments, will step in and restore order, and the friendly message which General Wood has been directed to carry to the Cubans is that if they wish to avoid armed intervention by the United States they will do well to abolish two-thirds of their elections, and thus reduce the chances of anarchy in the same proportion.

RIDGELY PROPOSES A REFORM

New Controller of the Currency Says Subtreasury System Should Be Changed.

William Barret Ridgely, whose appointment as Controller of the Currency has just been announced, said yesterday he could not do better than try to keep the office up to the standard established by the three Chicagoans who preceded him—Lacey, Eckels, and Dawes.

Mr. Ridgely placed himself on record as opposed to the Subtreasury system and in favor of a United States bank. The first, he said, tied up money when it was most needed by the commerce of the country, and the other contributed to easy circulation at all times, thereby tending to ease financial stringency.

"The worst feature of our present system is the Subtreasury," said Mr. Ridgely. "Through its agency money is tied up in the treasuries when money is tight, and is turned out into the country when it is easy.

"I believe in a United States bank similar to the Bank of England. I get it from heredity, I suppose, for my grandfather, Nicholas Ridgely, was an officer of the old United States Bank, which Jackson broke up.

"The Bank of England is the largest discounter of notes in the world. The money deposited in it is not idle, as ours is. We lose the use of our money, which manifestly is a bad economical proposition. Worse than that, the tying up of a lot of money is apt at times seriously to affect the private citizen.

"The gold standard act is not perfect. There are a good many loopholes in it. But I don't know whether it will be remedied. I should like to see the greenbacks retired, too, but there does not seem to be any immediate prospect of that, either. People have a sentimental attachment for greenbacks. If anybody is going into the business of non-interest bearing loans, however, of course the government ought to be the party; but I hope to see the greenbacks eliminated by the simple process of self-retirement."

Mr. Ridgely is a native of Illinois. He was born in Springfield, as also were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ridgely. He was appointed postmaster at the capital by President McKinley in 1897, but resigned two years later, coming to Chicago as secretary of the Republic Iron and Steel company.

SEEK STRANGER WITH BOX.

Washington Police Want Foreigner Who Was Making Inquiries for Cowles House.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The police are looking for a man who approached several pedestrians early today and asked the address of President Roosevelt's sister, the wife of Commander Cowles of the navy. Several officers were detailed to guard the Cowles residence. The man is described as about 40 years old, speaks with a foreign accent, has a light mustache, wears dark clothes, and carried a box about eight inches long and three and a half wide.

Colonel James M. Bell Promoted.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The President has appointed Colonel James M. Bell, Eighth Cavalry, and President of the Military Board of Review, to be a Brigadier General, vice Brigadier General Ludlow, deceased. General Bell will retire about Oct. 1, thus leaving a vacancy for another appointment.

PATTISON BOLTS THE TICKET.

Former Governor of Pennsylvania Refuses to Support Democratic City Nominees in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 20.—Ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison tonight announced his resignation as chairman of the Democratic City committee as a result of the action of the county convention in nominating a straight-out Democratic ticket.

Coupled with this announcement was a suggestion from Mr. Pattison that a new Democratic organization be formed in the city.

Efforts have been made by Mr. Pattison and his supporters to have the organization fuse with the Union party in this city, which has nominated P. F. Rothermel, the incumbent, for District Attorney, against the Republican nominee, John Weaver. These efforts failed, and tonight the Democratic convention placed a straight-out ticket in the field.

NATION TO MARCH AHEAD.

SENATOR ALLISON DISCUSSES THE COUNTRY'S FUTURE.

Iowa Statesman Expresses Belief That the Atlantic-Pacific Canal Will Be Built and Says That the Merchant Marine Probably Will Be Encouraged in a Way That Will Be a Real Benefit to Trade—Tariff Revision on the Program of Congress.

Iowa's triumvirate of statesmen—Senator Allison, Senator Dolliver, and Speaker Henderson—stopped over in Chicago yesterday long enough for Senator Allison to declare that in his opinion the policies established by President McKinley will not be affected by his death.

The Senators and the Speaker came direct from Canton, where they were present at the burial of the President. All expressed the deepest sympathy for Mrs. McKinley and deplored the tragedy which cost the nation its Executive.

In forecasting the program of Congress, Senator Allison expressed the opinion that a canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans would be built, and that the merchant marine would be encouraged, although not to the extent of the subsidy proposed at the last session of Congress. The tariff, he said, probably would be modified. The duty on many of the articles of the iron and steel schedule, said the Senator, would be subject to reduction.

"My impression," declared Senator Allison at the Auditorium Annex, "is that we shall be greeted on our return to Congress next December by a treaty drawn up between the State department and Great Britain. I do not know that such negotiations are being carried on, but it is natural to suppose that they are.

"If the State department and the British Foreign office cannot come to agreement, and no treaty is presented to the Senate, there probably will be an effort to proceed with the canal without a treaty. Undoubtedly this fact is realized, and consequently it will be easier for the two parties to the negotiations to come to an agreement. It seems to me likely that a convention satisfactory to our State department will be constructed. Such convention necessarily will receive the sanction of President Roosevelt before it is submitted to Congress.

"There is not a strong disposition on the part of the Senators, so far as I have been able to gather, to hold out for the right to fortify the canal. Fortification would not be fraught with particular strategic advantages for us. We want the right to police the canal, and to prevent the warships of our enemies from passing through, but that is all, I believe, that Congress will demand.

As to Merchant Marine.

"President Roosevelt has declared that he will follow out McKinley's policies, and McKinley said that we should 'encourage our merchant marine.' 'Encourage' means 'subsidize,' but 'subsidize' has a good many meanings. We subsidize now when we pay fast ships high rates to carry our mails. Many people would favor a subsidy bill who did not favor the subsidy bill of last winter. That bill bound us for too long a time—thirty years—and it seemed to favor certain big lines to the exclusion of the rest.

"We should endeavor to encourage our ships to open up new fields of trade. We should help build up a sufficient line of steamers to South America, along down the Western coasts of the continents, as Mr. McKinley proposed. We should help fly the American flag over ships in the China trade—where it cannot be seen now. It is the new fields we ought to take care of, for the old ones will be attended to without aid. The Congressmen from the interior of the country are in favor of such a policy, and a bill to carry it out undoubtedly will be presented to Congress at its next session.

For Tariff Revision.

"There is a disposition on the part of the Republican party to make some changes in the present tariff schedule. Our Iowa State platform of last summer made the demand. The belief is that the iron and steel tariffs are considerably too high now and that they will bear lowering. There are some iron and steel products, however, that concern small independent companies which compete with one another, and the tariff on such articles may not bear touching. On the whole, however, it is the iron and steel rates that demand the greatest reduction. We do not wish to cause or to give excuse for the lowering of wages, however.

"The Judiciary committee of the Senate has been investigating the powers of the federal Congress to deal with the trust problem. I do not know a Congressman who favors great monopolistic corporations which regulate prices. The trust question will be gone into thoroughly.

"At any rate," concluded Senator Allison energetically, "it can be promised that the Republican party will bend every effort to correct existing evils and to prevent the onset of future evils resultant from the control of the nation's commerce in the hands of monopolies."

Other members of Congress who were in the city yesterday were Senator W. A. Clark of Montana and Congressman J. Hamilton Lewis of Washington.

ANOTHER STAR FOR THE FLAG.

New Mexico's Governor Visits Chicago and Tells of Determined Effort Toward Statehood.

Governor Otero of New Mexico, who has issued a call for a convention to be held at Albuquerque on Oct. 15 to promote the Territory's claim to Statehood, stopped over in Chicago yesterday.

"We deserve the rights of Statehood," he said. "Our people are industrious, prosperous, and patriotic. We furnished the largest proportional representation of soldiers in the civil war and also in the Spanish war. More than half of Roosevelt's Rough Riders came from my Territory.

"Our census showing is large enough to entitle us to admission, but the census does not do us justice. I believe that at least 260,000 people are now living in New Mexico, and the number is increasing steadily."

WRECK IN STORE VIEWED.

FIRE AND BUILDING DEPARTMENTS MAKE INVESTIGATION.

Chief Musham and Timothy O'Shea Hold That Fall of Water Tank Caused Trouble at Rothschild's—John Barry, Who Was Doing Some of the Alteration Work, Has Explosion Theory—Superintendent of the Damaged Concern Has Same Idea.

Inquiry into the cause of the accident by which a valuable section of the State street store of A. M. Rothschild & Co. was wrecked was made yesterday under the direction of the heads of the Fire and Building departments. Building Commissioner Peter Kiolbassa, accompanied by Inspectors Barry and Peters, visited the scene early in the morning to make an examination. Fire Marshal Campion, acting under instruction from Chief Musham, went through the building and made a careful inspection.

The wrecked portion could be seen plainly from State street, where hundreds of persons assembled during the day. Through the openings in front, where the windows had been broken by the force of the collapsing structure, or by the explosion which the proprietors say preceded the accident, the débris was visible, the iron cross-pieces which sustained a water tank, sticking up through the broken boards. Opinions still are at variance, some insisting that the wreck was caused by an explosion, while others appear equally positive it was caused by supports giving way.

Employés whose services were not required were informed by the superintendent that they could take a vacation until Monday, their pay continuing regardless of the accident.

Awaiting Report of Inspectors.

Building Commissioner Kiolbassa stated that he was awaiting the official report of his inspectors and would not decide what action he would take until it had been received. Fire Chief Musham said he attributed the accident to the lack of the necessary columns to support the heavy weight.

"I believe the accident was due to the weakness of the walls after the intervening section had been cut away on the second floor," said the chief. "The heavy weight above naturally forced its way downward, carrying everything with it. Workmen informed Marshal Campion that they heard the walls creaking some time before the accident and had sent for a house mover to put stringer braces beneath them."

Think Tank Caused Wreck.

Inspectors Barry and Peters reported to Deputy Building Commissioner Timothy O'Shea that they had come to the conclusion that the weight of the upper stories and the 12,000 gallon water tank had proven too heavy for the weakened walls. They said seventy feet of the dividing walls in the building had been removed.

"After the walls had been taken out by men employed by the John Berry iron works," said Chief Inspector Barry, "three columns were put in as supports. The tank on the roof weighed forty-eight tons and rested on these dividing walls. When they gave way the tank fell, carrying everything down under its weight."

"I had the contract for the furnishing and placing of the beams and columns in the wall that collapsed," said John M. Berry of the Berry iron works. "I was given the dimensions of the opening and told the kind of iron wanted. This I furnished and was to have put in place by last Monday, but all was not ready, and some of the beams are still in the alley behind the store. It must, to my mind, have been caused by an explosion. It could not have been due to faulty iron work."

Statement of Store Manager.

"We have not as yet discovered the exact cause of accident," said Superintendent P. J. Dunne of the Rothschild establishment yesterday afternoon. "But from my investigation I still believe that it was due to an explosion of escaping gas. I can see no reason for believing that the tank went down, for we have not found and do not know that it was on the roof at that place."

W. S. YOUNG SENT TO PRISON.

Former Public Guardian Sent to Joliet to Undergo Punishment for Embezzlement.

After having been a prisoner in the County Jail for twenty-six months, William S. Young, former public guardian, was taken to the penitentiary yesterday morning to serve an indeterminate sentence of from one to ten years for embezzling from his wards. Every legal measure to save the embezzler had been exhausted. Young, who is 70 years old, had been a public official for a number of years when, in the winter of 1898, irregularities in his books as public guardian were discovered, and later the shortage was placed at at nearly $28,000. Young left the city, and it was not until May, 1899, that his arrest at his former home in New Jersey was accomplished. He was extradited and brought back, not only to face fifteen indictments on charges of embezzlement, but, also, to mourn at the grave of his wife, who had died during his absence, supposedly from the shock of the disclosures.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE.

Joseph Dorai and Steve Laporte, Accused of Killing Andrew Stark, Freed by a Jury.

Joseph Dorai and Steve Laporte, charged with the murder of Andrew Stark, were acquitted by a jury in Judge Smith's court yesterday. The death of Stark was the result of a fight in a saloon in South Chicago, in which a number of men participated. The defense was that there was no evidence the defendants inflicted the blows and knife thrusts which caused Stark's death.

ARMY DESERTIONS ON INCREASE

General Otis Comments on the Spread of the Crime in His Annual Report.

Desertions are increasing in the regular army, according to the annual report which Major General Elwell S. Otis, commander of the Department of Lakes, forwarded yesterday to Secretary of War Root at Washington. So many soldiers have been guilty of this crime that General Otis comments on the lack of accommodations for prisoners for which this offense is responsible.

SMALL BOY AS A MARTYR.

SUFFERS FOR CRIMES COMMITTED BY HIS NURSE.

Herman Klahre, 5 Years Old, Whipped and Threatened with Imprisonment in an Asylum Because Emma Dobblestein Set Fire to Hudson Avenue House and Slashed Clothing to the Value of $700—Girl Confesses Uncontrollable Desire to Destroy.

Herman Klahre, 5 years old and small for his age, who lives with his parents at 290 Hudson avenue, has had a lesson in unwilling martyrdom.

Until yesterday the child was whipped as an incorrigible and his parents, finally convinced that he was without moral understanding, were about to send him to a private insane asylum. Now, instead of blows, the boy is getting tears and kisses.

Behind the story is a suggestion of hypnotic influence. Although the boy seemed unable to convincingly deny that he was guilty of a long series of household depredations, Emma Dobblestein, a 14-year-old girl who was employed to nurse Herman and his younger sister, has confessed that she is guilty of arson, theft, and the malicious destruction of $700 worth of property in the Klahre residence. It was for these crimes that the boy was punished.

The girl says that at times she is seized with an irresistible desire to do wrong. She is a prisoner at the East Chicago Avenue Police Station.

The mother of young Herman, Mrs. Henry J. Klahre, employed the Dobblestein girl three weeks ago. A week later some money was missed from Mrs. Klahre's purse. The next morning some clothing was found slashed. The girl said that Herman had done the damage, and, though he denied it, he was whipped.

From that time there was scarcely an hour that some new discovery failed to show that other clothing had been ruined.

Mrs. Klahre became frantic. Dr. J. G. Spray was called and concluded that the boy had a mania for cutting clothing. He recommended that a consultation of physicians be called, and that the boy be placed in a private institution.

On Wednesday morning a bedroom was found to be on fire. Suspicion was directed against Herman, and his father took him away from the house.

Mrs. Klahre left the house in charge of the girl on Thursday, and soon after a neighbor was startled by Emma screaming that there were ghosts in the house. An investigation showed that all the furniture had been turned upside down, pictures thrown from the wall, and carpets torn. Herman was not at the house, and this started suspicion against the girl. The Halsted street police were notified, and yesterday the girl admitted that she was guilty.

"I cut things whenever I could get a chance," she said. "I set the room on fire and I cut the baby's hair. The next thing I would have done would have been to cut the baby's ears and legs off."

The boy once said, when accused, that Emma could not tell a lie. His utterance is taken to support the hypnotism theory.

COUNTY GETS TAX LISTS FROM BOARD OF REVIEW.

Total Amount of Real Estate Available for Revenue Purposes Is Put at $279,747,312.

County Clerk Knopf received the books from the Board of Review yesterday, showing the total real estate valuations for Cook County for the year 1901. The total amount for the purposes of taxation is $279,747,312, or a gain over the Board of Review's figures for 1900 of $75,889,663. Chicago real estate is assessed $76,254,510 more than last year.

Jefferson	3,305,248	5,205,141	5,699,117

The valuations are considerably higher than the figures of the Board of Assessors, showing a gain of $30,619,680 in the county, and approximately $33,000,000 in the city. The figures represent an actual valuation five times as great, or $1,398,736,560.

It is expected that the total value of taxable real estate will be increased largely by the addition of the railroad real estate discovered during the last days of the board's session, which is estimated at $10,000,000. This will make the total assessment over $400,000,000, estimating the personal property valuation at $90,000,000 and the amount raised by the State Board of Equalization at $35,000,000. The personal property returns will be made this morning.

County Clerk Knopf will not spread the assessment upon his books until the State Board of Equalization makes its return in November, at which time he will begin suit to secure a legal interpretation of the 5 per cent limit law. Until this suit is decided there will be uncertainty as to the rate of taxation and the amount of revenue to be received by the city.

MISSIONS BOARD DEBT GROWS.

Organization Is Said, However, to Be in a Stronger Financial Condition than Last Year.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—The annual statement of the American Board of Foreign Missions for the fiscal year was made public today. The total receipts of the year, applicable for current expenses, was $697,370; total expenditures, $717,081; the excess of expenditures over receipts, $19,710, which, added to the debt of a year ago, makes the present debt $182,341. The board is said to be in a much stronger financial condition than a year ago, notwithstanding the increased debt.

Mrs. Shiells Now Legally Sane.

After two doctors had pronounced her insane and she had passed one week in an asylum at Batavia, Ill., Mrs. Fannie L. Shiells, wife of Hugh Shiells, 3561 Prairie avenue, was pronounced sane in the County Court yesterday and given her liberty. The order had been forecasted by Judge Carter.

DEATH OF C. C. DELMONICO

NEW YORK'S FAMOUS RESTAURANT LOSES ITS PROPRIETOR.

Goes to Colorado Springs in May in Search of Health and Improves So Much That He Believed His Life Would Be Prolonged—He Dies Unexpectedly—Story of the Well-Known Resort in Gotham from Its Founding in 1827.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Charles C. Delmonico of New York died in Colorado Springs this morning. Mr. Delmonico came to Colorado in May, hoping that the climate would check the progress of consumption which had several years ago secured a hold upon him. At first he went to Denver, but a week or two later came to Colorado Springs, and remained here till his death.

His death was unexpected, as he had apparently improved considerably in health, and it was believed his life would be prolonged even if he did not completely recover.

Mrs. Delmonico left for New York at 8:40 tonight with the remains of her husband, and the funeral will be at the New York home, 48 East Eighty-second street.

The history of "Delmonico's" in New York dates back to 1827, when John and Peter Delmonico, the founders of the famous restaurant, came to America from Switzerland and opened a modest bakery at 21-23 Williams street.

They were the fairest specimens of their class, straightforward, honest, and putting all the eggs and sugar and top coating into their cakes that was desired, and they served people whose ambitions were humble then, but have grown.

First Venture a Success.

The cakes and ale went, of course, like the proverbial hot ones, so that in 1832 John and Peter Delmonico opened an additional house at 76 Broad street, and soon after Lorenzo Delmonico was invited to come over from Switzerland and assist his uncles in providing the good things prepared after foreign fashion for old New-Yorkers, who hitherto had known little or nothing of French cooking and had lived on the ham fat of Amsterdam.

John Delmonico died in 1842, and a year later Peter took his nephew, Lorenzo, into partnership. Fire again pursued the fortunes of a family that cooked so well, and in 1846 the Delmonicos took possession of the premises at the corner of Broadway and Morris street, long known since as the Stevens House. In 1848 Peter Delmonico retired from business and left his nephew, Lorenzo, sole proprietor of the William street and Broadway houses. In 1855 the old Stevens property was given up, and a new restaurant opened at the corner of Broadway and Chambers street. In the meantime Siro and Charles C. Delmonico, attracted by the growing fame of the family, had also come over to share in its honors.

Moving Up Town.

In 1861 the Delmonicos again moved, this time to Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue.

It was on this corner of Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue that Delmonico's began to assume something more than a mere restaurant influence over New York. Lorenzo and Charles, now pressing onward the fortunes of the house, began to see how easy it was for people to give entertainments out of their own homes, provided they were guaranteed the same sort of privacy and service that could be given at home, and at the same time with so much more room and facility.

Two years ago Delmonico's moved still farther "up-town" and opened their present place at Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue.

RECOVER $200,000 OF FUND IN CAPTAIN CARTER'S CASE.

Government Officials Trace Large Sum to Huntington, W. Va., and Take It—Was Held by Prisoner's Brother.

Two hundred thousand dollars in cash and securites has been seized by the government at Huntington, W. Va., on the claim it was part of the funds for the embezzlement of which Captain Oberlin M. Carter is now serving sentence at Fort Leavenworth. The government officials say they have recovered $360,000 of the money lost at Atlanta, Ga. A recent move in the effort to regain the government funds was the filing of bills in the United States Circuit Court here against former Captain Carter, his uncle, Lorenzo D. Carter, and his brother, I. Stanton Carter.

The announcement of the West Virginia find was made here yesterday by Marion Erwin, Special Assistant Attorney General of the United States, who is stopping at the Victoria Hotel. Mr. Erwin has been working under the Attorney General for some time in the litigation instituted by the government to recover the funds diverted from the river and harbor improvements in the Savannah district. He will remain in Chicago for some time to push the proceedings here.

The funds at Huntington were in the name of Ditson P. Carter, a brother of the convicted army officer. The federal authorities secured the appointment of a receiver, who took possession of a safety deposit box in which the funds had been placed.

"About Sept. 1," said Mr. Erwin, "I filed a bill in the Southern District of West Virginia, and had a temporary receiver appointed to reach the $200,000 of securites traced to Ditson P. Carter. The government had evidence that Ditson Carter, through an attorney, recently had converted the bulk of the securities in his hands into money. Three days ago, with the aid of Edward J. Johnson, an expert accountant, I traced these assets into a safety deposit box in a bank at Huntington, W. Va. We recovered and turned over to the receiver there $120,000 in cash, the identical gold-certificates traced, and the balance of the $200,000 in gilt-edge securities.

"The money has been placed for safe keeping with the Subtreasury officials at Cincinnati. Evidence shows that these securities were received by Ditson Carter from I. Stanton Carter of Chicago.

BOND JUMPER CAUGHT IN EAST.

Richard Davis, who jumped his bond on charge of trying to pass a forged check for $583 on the Metropolitan National Bank, was captured yesterday in New York. Davis was to have been arraigned before Justice Prindiville last week, but when the case was called it was found that he had left town, leaving A. S. Beamish, his bondsman, responsible for $5,000. John Simonson, charged with complicity in the crime, also jumped his bond, and is still at large.

STOLEN JEWELS ARE FOUND.

Money and Valuables Taken from Chicagoan While Crossing Lake Found Concealed on Boat.

Holland, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Money and jewels valued at $700, which Charles Hendricks stole from a Mr. Roberts of Chicago, on the steamer Père Marquette, were found on the boat today, where Hendricks had hidden them.

Mr. Roberts, while returning from Michigan to Chicago, a few days ago, missed a considerable sum of money and valuable jewelry. Officers arrested Hendricks on suspicion, and on searching him recovered some of the money. He claimed he had accidentally dropped the jewelry overboard.

Hendricks was bound over to the Circuit Court.

MISS LONG REGAINS HEALTH.

Daughter of Navy Secretary Will Return to Colorado After a Visit with Her Family.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Miss Long, daughter of the Secretary of the Navy, who has been here for three years, has regained her health and now is on her way East for a visit with her family. Miss Long, however, intends making Colorado her permanent home, and will return after a brief stay in the East.

CAR FRANCHISES WORTH $74,394,000

GREAT PROFITS SHOWN.

COUNCIL TO MAKE GRANTS.

The first estimate of the true value of street railway franchises in Chicago—based on the examination of the companies' books by expert accountants—has been issued with a report from the Franchise committee of the Civic federation. The maximum estimate places the value at $74,394,000. By another basis of computation the estimate is reduced to $64,222,000.

These values represent what the City Council has the power to grant to existing or to new street railway companies. They place the privileges at a much higher figure than has been considered in the discussion of the Committee on Local Transportation on the subject. There had been one proposition from Alderman Bennett, chairman of the committee, that the companies should pay a lump sum of $20,000,000 for the privileges.

The estimates are made by Milo R. Maltbie, editor of Municipal Affairs, and accompany the report of the Civic federation committee. The privilege of having an expert accountant go over the books was obtained from the companies, and this is noted as a remarkable concession from corporations. Edmund Bard made the examination for the committee, which consisted of W. A. Giles, J. L. Lombard, Adolph Nathan, Newton A. Partridge, and Professor John H. Gray.

There are other things discussed than the value of franchises, and not the least interesting is how Widener, Elkins, Kemble, and Yerkes exploited the North and West Side street railway systems.

Computing the Value.

Mr. Maltbie undertakes a discussion of franchise values from the data furnished by the accountant. According to his method the market value of all the outstanding securities must be found. This he computes on the basis of quotations of the securities on the Chicago Stock Exchange the first two weeks in July this year. To this he adds all other liabilities and securities, a total of $120,235,539. The examiner's report showed a total of all property on Dec. 31, 1897, of $41,328,379. Estimated additions since that date to July 1, 1901, make a total of $56,013,500. This amount is deducted from the $120,235,539, and the value of the franchises is found to be $64,222,039.

Figuring on another basis, estimated depreciation is deducted from the assets, the amount of the latter then being $45,841,488, which, deducted from the total of securities and obligations, shows the value of franchises to be $74,394,056.

Construction Company Overpaid.

To arrive at these conclusions Mr. Maltbie takes the report of the accountant showing the terms of agreement between the original lines on the North and West Sides and the terms upon which the United States Construction company, consisting of the identical men who let the contracts for the construction, undertook to build additions to the roads.

Down to Dec. 3, 1897, which is as late as the examination goes, the construction company had built eighteen miles of cable road, eleven miles of horse road; had erected and equipped three power-houses; had also built the Clark street barn and the Clark and Wells street bridges at a total cost of $3,141,741. The examiner then says:

"For these improvements the United States Construction company has received $4,500,000 in the capital stock of the North Chicago Street railroad company, $998,000 in 4½ per cent bonds, and $710,908 in cash from the North Chicago Street railroad company, a total of $6,208,908, or $3,067,167 in excess of the approximate cost of the betterments furnished."

West and South Side Lines.

Of the West Side lines the report says:

"The cost of constructing the West Side cable system, as represented by Mr. Yerkes, is disproved by this examination. While the books of the construction company were not submitted, Mr. Bard demonstrates beyond any reasonable doubt that the actual cost was a great deal less."

The cost and book value of the assets of the West Chicago Street railroad company and the two underlying companies on Dec. 31, 1897, are summarized as follows:

Book value	$29,078,0[illegible]
Cost value	19,046,7[illegible]
Depreciation	10,031,3[illegible]

The bonds and floating debt of the three companies at that date were $25,892,409. The total capital stock of the companies was $15,779,300.

The finances of the Chicago City railway also are analyzed, but the accounts of this company are said to be "less complicated."

The report says: "The total assets of the company in 1897 were $11,603,690; liabilities, including capital stock, $16,851,988; deficit, $5,248,027. There was capital stock of $12,000,000 and bonds of $4,619,500, but the capital stock has since been increased to $18,000,000 and the bonds retired."

PEOPLE'S GAS AUTHORIZED TO INCREASE ITS CAPITAL.

Additional Stock to the Amount of $5,000,000 Can Be Issued—Funds for Mains and Other Improvements.

The Secretary of State at Springfield yesterday authorized the People's Gaslight and Coke company to increase its capital stock from $30,000,000 to $35,000,000. The increase, declares one of the attorneys for the company, will be made for the purpose of meeting the expenses of new mains and other improvements and for other matters in contemplation.

Only $28,668,800 of the $30,000,000 capital previously authorized has been issued, the remainder being in the treasury. Under the new authorization a 15 per cent increase on the amount of stock now out will be made, which amounts to $4,300,320, or a total capitalization of $32,969,120.

"The increase in the stock has been authorized for the purpose of improvements," said James F. Meagher of Winston & Meagher, counsel for the company. "New mains will be laid and other matters in contemplation will be cared for. The increase has nothing whatever to do with the Ogden gas properties."

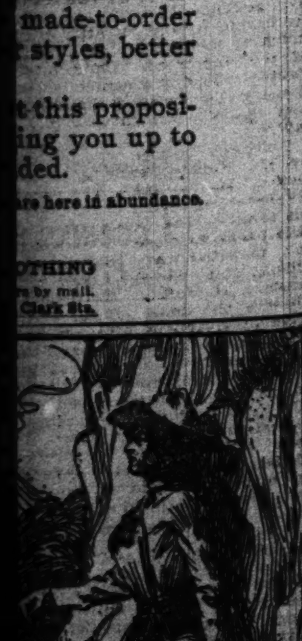

Makes Charges Against Policeman.

Lieutenant Cronin of the Twenty-second Street Police Station is investigating charges made by William McIntyre of 2014 Wentworth avenue that Policeman William O'Brien was intoxicated on Thursday night and pointed a revolver at McIntyre's head, threatening him with death if he refused to go to the station. It was said last night that McIntyre had decided not to make formal complaint. Lieutenant Cronin declares O'Brien was sober.

Bethel Pastor Is Acquitted.

At a session of the conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, which lasted until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the Rev. A. L. Murray was acquitted of charges of improper conduct. Mr. Murray has been pastor of Bethel Church at Dearborn and Thirtieth street for two years. The conference before which he was tried is in annual session at St. Stephen's Church, 682 Austin avenue.

CZAR ENJOYS A DAY OF QUIET.

PARIS IS NOT PLEASED.

People Disgusted Because the Emperor Does Not Visit the Capital.

REVIEW ENDS FETE TODAY.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
COMPIEGNE, Sept. 20.—There was no definite program for the Czar and Czarina today, and their Majesties rested at the château. They were tired after the long military maneuvers of yesterday. The royal pair took luncheon in their private apartments at the château.

The Czar remained in his apartments after breakfast until 10 o'clock, when he took a short promenade in the gardens with the Czarina. The Empress carried her camera, with which she took a number of views.

After returning to the château the Emperor had a long interview with M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the French Premier. It lasted at least two hours. Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Foreign Minister, also conferred with M. Delcasse, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Count Lamsdorff and M. Delcasse had a long conference again in the afternoon. The Czar has conferred upon Prime Minister Waldeck-Rousseau, M. Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and M. Fallieres, President of the Senate, the Grand Cordon of the Order of Alexander Newsky. The Ministers have also received the decoration of the White Eagle.

Rides Without Escort.

It being understood that he would go to Pierrefonds, the Czar left the château with the Czarina in a victoria at 5 o'clock with no escort, except a few detectives on bicycles, who kept discreetly in the background, thus giving him the illusion of a private drive and the life of an ordinary mortal.

Measures were taken within the park, however, that absolutely precluded the approach of any stranger. The entire outer circuit of the park was patrolled by cuirassiers, while every few yards along the palisade inclosing the park were stationed foot soldiers with fixed bayonets. Numerous detectives were hidden in the woods.

The Emperor changed his route quite unexpectedly, and, instead of proceeding to Pierrefonds, took a short drive to the Village of Beaurevoir, returning to the Château Compiegne at 5 o'clock.

Presents a Strange Contrast.

In strange contrast to the extraordinary precautions taken to guard the Czar every step he takes was the simplicity attending a visit of President Loubet to the town hall in the afternoon. With Premier Waldeck-Rousseau and General Dubois, the President, unannounced, emerged from the gates of the château and proceeded to the town hall on foot. There was no guard.

All ceremony was absolutely excluded and the whole proceedings were carried out in the most informal fashion. M. Loubet chatted cordially with the Mayor and Councilors.

Receives General Boisdeffre.

Two interesting incidents of the day were the reception by Emperor Nicholas of General Boisdeffre, former chief of the French staff, and the baptism of the infant son of the Count de Montebello, French Ambassador to Russia.

General de Boisdeffre, who had requested an audience, arrived at the château in civilian clothing from Paris and was received by the Czar at 3 o'clock, having previously changed his costume to the uniform of a General. The meeting was based on a purely personal acquaintance and had no political significance.

The crowning feature of the day's events was the gala performance in the château theater, which followed a grand banquet in the famous Hall of Columns, at which the members of the French Cabinet, the officers of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, and leading members of the suite of the Czar and M. Loubet were present.

Brilliant Scene in Theater.

M. Loubet entered the theater at 9:15, with the Czarina on his arm, Emperor Nicholas following with Mme. Loubet. The orchestra intoned the "Marseillaise" and the Russian Hymn. The audience stood as the heads of the two powers advanced to the front and took their seats in the Presidential box. This was situated in the center of what would be the dress circle in an ordinary theater.

The program began with verses of homage to the Czar, written by M. Rostand and recited by Mme. Bartet of the Comédie Française, the leading members of which participated in two acts of Alfred de Musset's witty comedy, "Il Ne Faut Jurer de Rien." Dances executed by the Corps de Ballet of the Grand Opera concluded the performance.

Emperor Nicholas laughed heartily at the brilliant sallies of the comedy and led the applause, clapping his hands slowly. He appeared to enjoy the entertainment thoroughly.

The Czar and Czarina took their leave of President and Mme. Loubet and retired to their apartments immediately after the conclusion of the performance, as all must rise early tomorrow in order to leave by the 8 o'clock train for the review at Betheny.

The review will be followed by a luncheon, at which the political toasts, for which all France is waiting, will be pronounced.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
PARIS, Sept. 20.—Although it was publicly announced that the Czar was not coming to Paris a large number of the inhabitants did not believe it, and crowds gathered at the Alexander bridge, the Champs Elysées, Rue Lafayette, and around the north side of the railway station until their numbers stopped street traffic. When it was finally impressed upon the people that his Majesty was really not going to visit Paris the bitterest disappointment was expressed.

Senators Feel Insulted.

The afternoon papers are filled with complaints from Senators, Deputies, and members of the press at the scurvy manner in which they were treated as the invited guests of President Loubet at Dunkirk. One Senator, writing to the Figaro, says:

"The government shall pay dearly for this insult."

It is rumored this afternoon that, notwithstanding the government's warning, the Czar will visit Paris on Sunday.

Drinks Wine with Czar.

The treatment of the Czar by the Mayor of Rheims, which was in nowise in accordance with the protocol, is much commented upon. Citizen Arnould, who is a Socialist, addressed the Czar as he would a plain individual, not using the words "Sir" or "Majesty" once. Moreover, when the Czar was withdrawing he was stopped with an invitation to drink a glass of wine. The Czar accepted, whereupon Mayor Arnould clinked glasses with the Emperor, the protocol authorities meanwhile showing great annoyance.

Day for Diplomacy and Art.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
PARIS, Sept. 20.—The third day of the imperial visit has been one of comparative rest. Nicholas II. has had a long conversation with Premier Waldeck-Rousseau and Foreign Minister Delcasse, and after the gala theatrical performance given by the artists of the Comédie Française the Emperor and Empress chatted affably with M. Legues, Minister of Fine Arts; with Jules Claretie, daaministrator general of the Théâtre Français; and with Victorien Sardou and Edmond Rostand of the Académie Française.

It should be recollected that the theatrical performance which came off tonight with brilliant success, recalling the most splendid days of the second empire, had at first been countermanded out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley, but the funeral having taken place on Thursday, it was decided that there was no reason for suppressing it this evening.

The magnificent hospitality of the French republic to the imperial couple continues without any serious hitch, and the grand review tomorrow is looked forward to with intense enthusiasm as the climax of the imperial visit. C. I. B.

AMERICAN ENGINES IN SPAIN.

Locomotives Made in the United States Purchased in Preference to Those Built in England.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
LONDON, Sept. 20.—The English Consul at Bilbos, commenting on the importation of American locomotives into Spain, says all the orders were at first offered to British firms, but went to America owing to the quickness of delivery guaranteed by the American firms and also because the price was lower than that asked by the English. The Consul admits the superiority of the American locomotives over the British for Spanish railroads.

DUKE OF YORK AT OTTAWA

CANADIAN CAPITAL GREETS HEIR TO ENGLAND'S THRONE.

Royal Party Welcomed by Great Crowds of People in Streets Gay with Soldiers and Decorations—Premier Laurier and All the Dignitaries of the Dominion Assemble at Parliament House to Present Addresses—Children Sing "God Save the King."

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 20.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York reached the Canadian capital today, and there was another great outpouring of people to give them a greeting of loyalty and warmth. They left Montreal in their special train at 9 o'clock in the morning. The train reached Ottawa at 12:05, and the Duke, attired in his favorite uniform of Admiral of the British navy, alighted at once, accompanied by the Duchess and the members of his staff.

They were formally received by Lord Minto, Governor General, and escorted to a state barouche. An escort from the Royal Canadian Dragoons, reined their horses alongside the barouche and the Duke and Duchess were driven to Parliament Hall.

It was in Parliament Hall that the formal ceremony of greeting the heir apparent took place, and here was gathered the largest crowd of all. Here were gathered Premier Laurier and his Cabinet, Mayor Morris and the city Aldermen, the Supreme Court Justices, the Bishops of the Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches, and representatives of a score of municipalities and organizations.

The several addresses were presented at once, and the Duke made an extended reply, expressing his appreciation of the honor shown. Among the addresses presented was one by Dr. Robert Upham, President of the Canadian club of Boston.

At the close of the address of the Duke 8,000 school children raised their voices in the strains of "God Save the King."

The party then left the stand, the royal couple driving at once to Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor General, where they are to live during the four days they remain in Ottawa.

Tonight at Rideau Hall there was a state dinner, and all of the notables gathered here were bidden to attend. The Parliament buildings were outlined in light, and every structure in the city was brightly illuminated.

Tomorrow the Duke will unveil Victoria monument, present medals to the Canadians who served in south Africa, and attend luncheon at the Rideau club. Later in the afternoon there will be a garden party at Rideau Hall.

France Finds a New Complaint Against Turkey Which Must Be Satisfied with the Others.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
PARIS, Sept. 20.—M. Constans, the French Ambassador to Turkey, has received a complaint from M. Bartissol, a former Deputy, stating that the Sultan had refused to allow the collection of duties stipulated for when M. Bartissol formed a French company with a capital of 40,000,000 francs which constructed the quays at Salonica on the Sultan's private account. M. Constans says this matter must be settled before diplomatic relations between France and Turkey can be resumed.

Seventy thousand square feet of cement driveways and sidewalks will be laid on the University of Chicago campus next week. A driveway will be extended across the entire campus from the Hull gate to the Midway, passing Haskell Hall. Fifty-ninth street will be paved for two blocks, from Divinity Hall to Nancy Foster Hall, along the midway.

STATUE OF KING ALFRED UNVEILED

English Memorial to the Great Saxon King Dedicated at Winchester.

ROSEBERY IS THE ORATOR

DOES NOT FORGET AMERICA.

[Copyright: 1901: By the New York Tribune.]
[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
WINCHESTER, England, Sept. 21, 3 a. m.—The statue of Alfred the Great was unveiled here yesterday in the presence of a large concourse of people. The streets were lined with troops in brilliant uniforms, and a great procession, military, naval, civic, ecclesiastical, and academic preceded the unveiling of the statue.

Lord Rosebery was the orator of the day, and he did not forget to refer to the unity of the Anglo-Saxon race, for in the course of his address he said:

"King Alfred wrought immortal work for us and for our sister nation over the sea, which, in the supreme moment of stress and sorrow, is irresistibly joined to us across the centuries and across the seas."

Lord Rosebery's Oration.

Lord Rosebery's oration was the crowning event of the three days' festival in which British and American educators have united. It was delivered in the open air a few yards in front of Thornycroft's statue, and although only a small group of favored spectators immediately surrounding him could hear him the vast assemblage rapturously cheered his appearance and the close of his address without having caught a single word. It was an elegant tribute to the highest qualities of manhood and leadership which the Saxon King had displayed, and it followed, singularly enough, the remarkable and spontaneous demonstration of homage to the patriotism and exalted character of the late American President from the English-speaking world.

Lord Rosebery described Alfred the Great as the pioneer of English greatness and the embodiment of English civilization. While the orator attributed to the great Saxon none of the glories of Solomon, save wisdom alone, he did not withhold recognition of the best quality of Anglo-Saxon character—absolute devotion to duty.

Monarch with High Ideals.

Lord Rosebery's eulogy was happily phrased and was delivered with graceful gestures and distinction of manner. It closed with a description of the immortal work which the monarch, with a high ideal burning in his heart, had done for the English people and for the sister nation which in supreme moments of stress and sorrow were irresistibly joined across the centuries and across the seas.

When the oration was finished the great green curtain, which had been flapping like a sail in a stiff wind, was rung down and the spectators, led by the massed bands, sang "God Save the King." The royal salute was fired by the artillery and, after a series of frantic rushes by the boisterous crowd, the bottom of picturesque High street was emptied.

Colossal Statue Described.

The colossal statue represents King Alfred as holding a shield with one hand and as lifting high with the other hand a reversed sword transformed into the symbol of the Christian religion.

This artifice is open to criticism, although not lacking in ingenuity, but the statue on its rough-hewn pedestal is a strong work of sculpture, with real dignity and distinction.

Lord Rosebery and a large number of guests, including Lambert Tree, Colonel T. W. Higginson, General A. C. Rockwell, E. D. Mead, Charles F. Adams, and other Americans, and several Canadian college professors were entertained at luncheon at Guild Hall.

Rain Mars Exercises.

St. Swithinwhile, the patron saint of the town, was not a good clerk of the weather, for there was a downfall of rain during the afternoon which interfered with the procession of school children to the statue and diminished the attendance at the special service at the cathedral. There had been at noon a chorus of praise composed by the organist of the cathedral and sung by a strong choir to the accompaniment of a military band. At the later services at the cathedral, after a sermon by the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury, there was an impressive rendering of the "Hallelujah Chorus." I. N. F.

FRENCH CRUISER IS ACCUSED.

Venezuelans Claim That the Suchet Guarded Colombian Vessel from an Attack by Gunboats.

CURACAO, Sept. 20.—Venezuelan official circles are perturbed over the reported action of the French cruiser Suchet when the steamer Alexandre Bixio landed Colombian troops at La Hacha on Sept. 9.

It is alleged that the Suchet perceived three gunboats without flags, supposedly Venezuelans. In order to ascertain definitely the commander compelled the gunboats to show their flags, which proved to be Venezuelan. Later during the same day the Colombian gunboat General Pinzon arrived, whereupon the Suchet—according to the story of the Venezuelans—was placed between the General Pinzon and the Venezuelan gunboats, thus preventing an exchange of shots.

About noon the same day, the Venezuelan officials assert, the Alexandre Bixio arrived under a French flag. The Venezuelan gunboats showed no intention to molest it, but they were apparently anxious to attack the Colombians on the shore, who were landed there from the Alexandre Bixio. The Venezuelans say the Suchet was placed between their gunboats and the Colombians during the landing.

STORM SWEEPS THE AZORES.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
LISBON, Sept. 20.—A hurricane has swept over the Azores. The chief sufferers were those on the Islands of Flores and Corvo, where there was serious loss of life owing to the collapse of buildings. The Governor cables asking for relief for the people. He says he is unable to state the extent of the devastation owing to the destruction of the telegraph lines.

BOERS GET BRITISH GUNS.

LORD KITCHENER'S REPORTS CAUSE ANXIETY IN LONDON.

Company of Royal Horse Artillery, Escorted by Company of Mounted Infantry, Surrounded and Captured at Vlakfontein — Seventeenth Lancers Have Sixty-nine Killed and Wounded Out of One Hundred—London in State of Renewed Anxiety.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
LONDON, Sept. 21, 3 a. m.—The anxiety with regard to the situation in south Africa is intensified by Lord Kitchener's latest message announcing the loss of two more British guns. The war is certainly not over, and even some of the Unionist papers are blaming the government for the manner in which the country has been deluded into the belief that the Boers were at the end of their resources.

Lord Kitchener, in a dispatch to the War office from Pretoria under Wednesday's date, states that two guns of the Royal Horse Artillery were surrounded by a superior force of the enemy at Vlakfontein and captured, Lieutenant Parry was killed. The artillery was escorted by a company of mounted infantry.

Heavy Casualty List.

Corrected casualty returns show that the squadron of the Seventeenth Lancers in their fight with the force of Boer Commandant Smuts sustained a remarkable loss. Of a total force probably not exceeding 100 they lost three officers and thirty men killed and two officers and thirty-four man wounded.

Botha May Raid Natal.

Botha has for a week past been meditating a raid into Natal, and no doubt he is acting in coöperation with the other Boer leaders. Whether he has enough material at his command to enter upon a campaign on a large scale in northern Natal is open to doubt, but at the same time Lord Kitchener may not have enough men to successfully oppose the Boer Commandant General unless he considerably reduces the number now employed in chasing the raiding commandoes throughout the length and breadth of Cape Colony.

Natal is almost the only position in south Africa which is beginning to recover from the misfortunes of the last two years, and it offers tempting prey to the raider. A fresh invasion of the colony, which has not had to face Boer opposition since Buller cleared the passes in June, 1900, would be regarded here as a real calamity.

Rumor of New Bond Issue.

The financial outlook is also far from satisfactory. On the Stock Exchange rumors are current that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will ultimately have to float another large issue of consols. I. N. F.

Kaiser Decorates Prince Chun.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Emperor William has given the decoration of the Grand Cross of the Red Eagle to Prince Chun, the brother of the Emperor of China, who came here on an expiatory mission for the murder of Baron von Ketteler, the late German Minister at Pekin. The action is criticised by the press.

BIG BROOKLYN BRIDGE A DANGER

Expert Report Said to Give Alarming Figures as to Its Weakness.

LOAD LIMIT TOO LOW.

District Attorney Philbin Says It Is Safe Now but Will Not Be by Next August.

GENERAL GOSSIP OF GOTHAM

Experts Declare Brooklyn Bridge a Menace.

The dangerous condition of the Brooklyn bridge has not been half told in the few words which District Attorney Philbin gave out concerning the report of the two experts employed by him to examine into the strength and safety of the structure. The full report is still kept secret by Mr. Philbin, but it became known today that it gives alarming figures which show that if something is not done to strengthen the bridge there is danger of a collapse. That the danger is now imminent it is admitted, but the necessity for making the bridge stronger is immediate if it is to be kept in a condition of safety.

Only a few more tons of weight massed together on the bridge would make it unsafe, according to the convincing figures which District Attorney Philbin now has in his hands.

From other sources it is learned that the report declares that the bridge is now loaded to its extreme capacity, and that it should be greatly strengthened to enable it to carry its present burden.

Mr. Duryea's report calls for material changes in the construction of the present bridge structure. The suggested improvements will cost less than $1,000,000, and the report says that the bridge can be made perfectly strong for the sum named.

District Attorney Philbin, when asked about the matter tonight, said:

"The Brooklyn bridge is safe. At least until next August, by which time a protracted hot spell and the resulting expansion may have gotten in their work in the weakening of the great structure. It is as safe as it was the day it was opened to the public."

William Drysdale, who was connected with the New York Times for more than twenty years, died at his home in Cranford, N. J., today. Mr. Drysdale was born in Lancaster, Pa., in 1852. He married Adelaide Louise Bigelow, the daughter of the founder of Cranford. She, with one son, survives him. In addition to his work on the newspaper Mr. Drysdale was a prolific author.

Banker Glad to Bunk in Barber Shop.

"Much of a crowd this time?" asked the newspaper men of Purser Schmidt of the Fuerst Bismarck when that vessel berthed in Hoboken at noon today. "Much of a crowd?" gasped the purser. "Why, we have even got a man in the barber shop." Investigation showed that in the barber shop there had come across a New York banker who, in view of his absolute inability to secure other and better accommodations, had taken the barber shop as his stateroom, and to get it he had to pay a handsome premium.

E. R. Holden of the banking firm of E. R. Holden & Co., 20 Broad street, was the occupant of the apartment. He said he considered himself fortunate in being able to come across as he did.

He added that there were about 2,000 Americans on the other side who would have been glad to take his place.

Mr. Holden only got the barber shop after he had signed an agreement not to go to bed before 11 p. m. and to get up before 5:30 a. m. Belated customers of the barber often kept the broker out of bed after midnight, and he lost much sleep.

Friends of James J. Van Alen have learned that he suffered a painful accident in Germany. It is understood that he sprained his ankle while getting into his automobile. The accident, however, is said to have been slight, and he was much improved at last accounts.

Marquand & Co. Schedule Is Put on File.

Schedules in the assignment of Henry Marquand and Frank B. Poor, who composed the firm of Henry Marquand & Co., bankers and brokers at 160 Broadway, who assigned on June 28 to Frank Sullivan Smith, were filed today in the Supreme Court. They show liabilities, $9,198,676; nominal assets, $8,992,230; actual assets, $5,098,496. The assignees report filed with the schedules indicates the firm's trouble was largely due to its heavy interests in the Pittsburg, Shawmut and Northern railroad in Pennsylvania and to a large number of unmarketable securities on which the firm was forced to borrow money. The firm, it appears, bought about $6,000,000 of the 5 per cent bonds of the railroad in question.

This was practically the whole amount issued. The railroad was not completed and the firm did not sell the bonds, it appears, but borrowed on them, preferring apparently to await better prices when the road was finished. It has been stated that one of the large railroad interests in Pennsylvania offered to buy the bonds at cost, but Marquand & Co. refused to sell them on these terms.

The collateral held by the defunct Seventh National Bank for loans consisted, among other securities, of 3,856 shares of Gas and Electric company, Bergen County, and 339,900 shares of Pittsburg, Shawmut and Northern railroad.

Among the items in the schedule is "Cash, $1." Among the secured creditors are the Seventh National Bank, $1,607,523; Russell Sage, $366,029; J. P. Morgan & Co., $230,598; American Exchange National Bank, $244,[illegible]; Bank of America, $101,183.

Anarchist Most, Arraigned, Refuses Counsel.

John Most, who was arrested last week on a charge of violating the penal code by publishing a radical article on anarchy in his paper, Die Freiheit, was arraigned for pleading in the Court of Special Sessions today before Justices Holbrook, Jerome, and Hinsdale. "Have you a lawyer?" asked Justice Holbrook, presiding.

"No, and I don't believe I need one," replied Most. "I can defend myself. I wish to plead not guilty."

"We will have no spectacular work here," said Justice Holbrook. "Your case will go over, and when it is called you will appear at this bar with a counselor to defend you."

Anarchists Are Arrested for Making Threat.

Detectives from the West Thirtieth Street station made a descent upon an anarchistic resort at 130 West Twenty-seventh street tonight. They arrested one of the men present and locked him up on a charge of disorderly conduct. They also learned of the whereabouts of the leader of the band and his arrest followed. Both the prisoners are Italians and cannot speak English. They are Buratty Guido di Giovanni and Gubernati Erminirio.

Several detectives have been working to get evidence against this band of Anarchists since last Tuesday night, when John Somma, a member of the firm of Kilian Bros. & Somma, manufacturers of furniture, reported to Captain Flood the existence of a plot laid by the band to kill him and his partners.

Mr. Somma told Captain Flood that on the day President McKinley was shot at Buffalo a number of Italian cabinetworkers in his employ danced and shouted with delight at the assassination act. Mr. Somma discharged twelve of them. The following day he received a number of anonymous letters in which his life was threatened.

The police also have a report that John R. Duvaney, a lawyer of Goshen, had denounced Anarchists because of the assassination of President McKinley, and that this morning the porch was blown from his home by a dynamite bomb filled with nails and scrap iron.

E. M. Grout Chosen by Anti-Tammany for Controller.

Edward M. Grout, the President of the Borough of Brooklyn, was selected by the anti-Tammany conference this evening as the candidate for Controller on the fusion ticket. The selection of Mr. Grout was unanimous, except that Herman Ridder and Charles Lutz, the representatives of the German-American union, were absent from the conference and the representatives of the City Democracy, led by James O'Brien, declined to vote. Mr. Ridder remained away with the avowed intention of refusing to support Seth Low, the selected candidate for Mayor, in case of the nomination of Controller Coler for Mayor by any other organization.

Mr. O'Brien and his followers said they did not believe they could support the fusion ticket if the regular Democratic organization nominated Mr. Coler.

The anti-Tammany ticket, as thus far made up by joint conferees of all the anti-Tammany organizations, consists of Seth Low for Mayor and Borough President Edward M. Grout of Brooklyn for Controller.

The nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen, which is the only other nomination to be made, has been left to the Committee of Eighteen with full authority to act. This committee will meet tomorrow.

It was rumored tonight that during theater hours there had been a "big" robbery at Daly's, where James T. Powers is appearing, and that a box containing hundreds of dollars' worth of opera-glasses had been stolen. Mr. Lawrence denied that there had been any robbery.

Devery Declares His Intention to Stay in Office.

Deputy Commissioner Devery went to police headquarters today after an absence of a few days and promptly announced that he had not resigned and was not going to. Mr. Devery doesn't see any reason why he should resign, he says.

"I'm here and I'm goin' to stay here," he said. "I'm here to do my duty and protect the people against thugs, crooks, and Anarchists."

Then Mr. Devery added, addressing the reporters: "You can say for me that I'm not goin' to get out. I'm here to look after the people, and I'm goin' to look after you fellers a little, too."

It was learned today that in three instances where Devery had announced that he would have two roundsmen and a sergeant "broke," Colonel Murphy has rebuffed his deputy commissioner, reversing the deputy's recommendations.

Senator Depew Rebuked for Not Having a Home.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew, while repairs are being made upon his house in Fifty-fourth street, is living at one of the big hotels. Some time ago he went there and reserved a suite of rooms. When he came back from Washington on Wednesday, after attending the funeral of President McKinley, he went directly to the hotel. As he stepped up to the desk there was a woman arguing with the room clerk. The argument ran something like this. The clerk said:

"I am sorry, Madame, but we have no rooms."

"I want a parlor, bedroom, and bath, and I must have them," said the woman, decisively.

"We have none," said the clerk, courteously.

"Who is taking up all the rooms?" asked the woman, combatively.

Just then Senator Depew stepped up and the clerk said affably:

"The rooms you engaged are ready, Senator. I hope they are satisfactory."

The woman turned and looked at Senator Depew, recognized him in a moment, and said to another woman with her, in withering scorn: "I should think that these people who pretend to live in New York would have homes here and not go to hotels," and she flounced off.

Miss Murphy and Caliph Have Fierce Fight.

Caliph and Miss Murphy, the two old hippopotami in the Central Park menagerie, became involved in a fight today while an attempt was being made to transfer them from their open-air tanks to their winter quarters in the lion house. An actual disaster was averted only through the prompt interference of Director John W. Smith and his staff of keepers, but it was a close shave. Blood was spilled and Caliph had one ten-inch tusk broken off at the base.

When the keepers started to move Miss Murphy and Lotus the latter refused to follow its mother and began to squeal. Then Caliph tried to break out of its tank. Miss Murphy, too, hearing the baby hippo's call, also refused to go any further. Finally, Caliph, who was let out of its private quarters, attacked Lotus. Miss Murphy's ire was aroused in a moment and the battle was on. Caliph was seen to snap viciously at the female, but bit the top of the iron fence instead. The animals were finally pacified and led away.

AMELIE RIVES' DIVORCED HUSBAND SANE.

He reappears in Richmond, Va., after his escape from the asylum for insane at Bloomingdale last November. It prepared to prove his right to freedom and his property.

NOT DEAD NOR INSANE.

JOHN ARMSTRONG CHANLER IS SAFE AT HIS OWN HOME.

Former Husband of Amelie Rives, Who Was Once in Asylum, Escaped Last Thanksgiving and Was Given Up as Lost by Friends, Makes His Appearance—Asks His Legal Rights—Has Had Case Under Long Observation.

nell University and consulting physician to the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane of New York; and by other prominent alienists and neurologists.

Commitment a Mistake.

"Mr. Chanler's commitment and confinement in New York grew out of his necessary seclusion of himself, for a long period of time, in the study of experimental psychology, a field of science that has received a tremendous impulse of development in the last few years, and in which those who are competent to judge award Mr. Chanler the encomium of having made an interesting discovery.

"It will doubtless please the many friends of Mr. Chanler in Virginia and elsewhere to know of his sound condition of mind and body, which is vouched for as disclosed to them by personal contact and through frequent correspondence during these months by all of his counsel."

Story Reads Like a Romance.

No romance ever written is more remarkable than the story of John Armstrong Chanler's life. Years ago, when a young man, Mr. Chanler was a civil engineer. He had inherited considerable money and by his energy augmented his fortune until, when he gave up business pursuits, his possessions were estimated at several millions. He was a great traveler, but after seeing many lands finally settled down among the beautiful mountains of Albemarle County, Va., where he met the woman who has exercised such an influence on his life.

Amelie Rives, the authoress, resided at Castle Hill, a fine old Virginia home near the Chanler estate. She was only a girl when he first located there, but from the first she exercised a marked influence over him. The young men of the county flocked to Castle Hill to see the Virginia beauty and no one thought that the grave young-old John Armstrong Chanler would be the favored suitor.

Amelie Rives Not Congenial.

It is said that he was one of the first to whom she showed the manuscript of her daring novel, "The Quick or the Dead," and that he strongly advised her not to publish it, not approving of the sentiments expressed. Notwithstanding he married her a few years later, and for a while their married life seemed to be a happy one. But there was no congeniality between the grave, polished Chanler and the beautiful, willful creature whom he had made his wife. First came rumors of dissensions, then prolonged separations, and finally an absolute divorce, followed quickly by the marriage of Mrs. Chanler to Prince Troubetzkoy, whom she had met while traveling in Italy.

Not long after came the incarceration of Mr. Chanler in Bloomingdale as an insane person. The story is now approaching its climax. Skilled physicians have pronounced Mr. Chanler of sound mind, and the suit which he is about to enter may produce developments of a startling nature. Meanwhile the Princess Troubetzkoy, his former wife, ignorant of his return to life, is spending her time beneath the sunny skies of Italy.

John Armstrong Chanler is a cousin of John Jacob Astor and William Waldorf Astor, and a great-grandson of the first John Jacob Astor. He is about 41 years old and has an income reported to be in the neighborhood of $30,000 a year.

FALL SEASON OF HOLDUPS BEGINS.

MASKS WORN AS IN PAST.

DETECTIVE PROVES A FROST.

Holdups inaugurated their fall and winter operations early yesterday morning, and the ever-ready ice box again was utilised as a temporary prison for the victim. Michael Morris, bartender in Barney Sweeneys' saloon at Jackson boulevard and Center avenue, was the first to fall in the hands of the masked invaders.

Morris was alone in the place when two men entered. He turned to serve them, when he saw the masks and attempted to escape. Two revolvers, however, were quickly pointed at him.

"Not so fast there, my friend," warned one of the robbers. "Stand where you are or we will shoot."

Morris stopped and he was ordered to hold up his hands.

"We'll put him on ice for a few minutes," said the other man. "The ice box is the best place. It's sure and safe."

Morris protested, but was forced into the box and the door slammed behind him. Then the robbers raked the money from the cash drawer and escaped with $23 and some change.

The bartender kicked on the door and shouted for help. A customer entered the place a few minutes later and released the shivering man. Police at the Desplaines Street Station were notified, but no trace of the robbers could be found.

Robbed and Thrown Down-Stairs.

Robbed, beaten, thrown down a flight of stairs, and tossed into a corner of an alley, is believed by the Desplaines street police to have been the experience of John R. Adams, 458 West Randolph street, who was found yesterday morning at the rear of 89 Halsted street, unconscious. He was removed to the County Hospital, where it was said his condition is serious. Adams' lower jaw is fractured, his face lacerated and bruised, his right foot broken, and the left arm fractured at the elbow. The sum of $17, which he had earned the day previous, is missing.

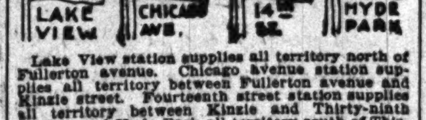

Adams, who is 36 years old, sold newspapers on Thursday at State street and Jackson boulevard. The unusual demand for papers by the public made the day a prosperous one. Toward night he went to the West Side and, he says, drank at several saloons. He spent about $2, he says, and remembers nothing more until he was revived at the hospital. The police think he was robbed in one of the resorts visited.

Try to Hold Up Detective.

Holdup men waylaid Detective Sergeant Timothy O'Brien of the Harrison Street Station early yesterday morning at Harrison and Sangamon streets. As a result one of the men, Paul Linse, was captured by the detective and taken to the station. There it was learned the prisoner was a long-sought man. The police say he has been arraigned several times, but always has succeeded in escaping sentence.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Chicago's champions defeated the Athletics today with such ease that the score—8 to 3—does not begin to indicate the size of the victory.

The game was played under cold, gray skies which threatened to terminate proceedings at any moment either by rain or snow, and a drizzling mist fell at intervals all through the engagement.

The White Stockings, anxious to get back to their warm hotel, did not punish Fraser as severely as they might have, but permitted themselves to be put out between bases in the last two innings. In the same round Griffith saved himself by simply handing the ball over the plate and was hit harder than in all the rest of the game. A lucky double play by Isbel and Sullivan was all that kept the Athletics from scoring in the ninth.

Griffith, eager to get the pennant nailed beyond the probability of losing it, went to the slab himself and for seven innings held the Athletics' sluggers down to three hits and one run, and that run was the result of Sullivan's passed ball. The White Legs backed him up so magnificently that their work several times provoked applause from the few hundred spectators. McFarland's fielding was the real feature, with seven flies caught in all parts of the suburbs, including one liner which he picked off his shoe laces and a foul which he went way outside to get. Shugart and Mertes shared honors with a phenomenal apiece.

Hurry to Beat the Rain.

Griffith, at that, was hit almost as hard as Fraser, but "Chick's" seven passes made things easy for the White Stockings. For two innings the team struggled fruitlessly to break the ice. Griffith opened the third with a "Texas league" hit over Fultz, and Lajoie made a mess of Hoy's easy bounder. Jones bunted three fouls in unsuccessful attempts to sacrifice. A base on balls filled the circuit. Then Hartman smashed the first ball straight at Fraser. It nearly knocked him off his feet, but he recovered in time to force Griffith at the plate. McFarland cut a safe one past Lajoie for two runs and moved up a notch along with Hartman on the throw to the plate. Isbell hit the right field fence, scoring both runners, but was out himself trying to stretch his hit into a double.

Fraser opened Philadelphia's half with a single, took second on a passed ball, and scored on Davis' two-bagger.

The next two innings were played rapidly to beat out the threatening rain, but in the sixth the White Stockings took another run as a result of Hartman's hit, a base on balls, a passed ball, and a long fly.

Griffith Careless in Ninth.

The champions then began to hurry things along, but could not help scoring two runs in the eighth on a pass to McFarland, Sullivan's double, and Griffith's single after two were out, but "Grif" permitted himself to be caught at second on the return of the ball. Again in the ninth Chicago lost opportunities to score through not trying.

In their last half the Athletics landed on Griffith hard, and with four singles pounded in two runs before three of them could be retired. Score:

Notes of the Game.

Patterson or Platt will pitch tomorrow's game.

Jones broke his pet bat in the fifth inning and now he threatens to leave the team as soon as it gets a secure grasp on the pennant.

The White Stockings dislike the proposal to transfer the final series from Washington to Chicago as it would knock out their proposed barnstorming trip here in the East week after next.

President Shibe of the Athletics asked Manager Griffith to postpone the game on account of the cold and double it up tomorrow, but the White Stocking magnate could see no sign of an improvement in the weather, so declined.

Detroit intends playing four games in Boston this trip, the extra one being transferred from Detroit. That would require the permission of all other clubs, which has not been secured, but it is unlikely there will be any objection, as the finish does not promise to be close enough to justify a kick from Comiskey. It will make it necessary for the champions to win twice more, however, before they can cinch things.

SAYS JOHNSON FAVORS PLAN.

Ellis of Grand Rapids Talks About the Revival of the Old Western Baseball League.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Deacon Ellis today admits the details of the proposed new baseball deal. The towns included are Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Grand Rapids, Indianapolis, Toledo, and Columbus. Joe Cantillon is to have the franchise for this city, and it is said he already has the necessary financial backing. Ellis is not actively interested except putting in money as a stockholder. He believes the revival of the old Western league will prove a winner. Ellis says the plan has the support of Ban Johnson, and has nothing to do with the deal which Quinn is trying to manipulate in Milwaukee. The new move will make trouble for Wilmot, who is planning to stay here next season, but Ellis thinks the city will gladly jump at the chance to get back into the old league.

Boston won both parts of a chilly double-header against the Remnants at the West Side Park yesterday. The weather was too cold for the occasion to be a cheerful one and only a handful of spectators saw the not unexpected defeats.

Although unable to hit consecutively the offerings of the veteran Nichols in the first game, the Remnants had an advantage of one run—their only run of the day—from the fourth inning until the eighth, when two hits, two errors, and a sacrifice tied the score. Then, in the tenth, Menefee weakened under the long strain and three hits yielded the two runs which settled the issue.

The second contest did not possess even the merit of being close. Eason, who started for the Remnants, was hit hard from the start. After the visitors had accumulated ten hits for seven runs in six innings, he was sent to the bench, and Ferguson, a new man from Minneapolis, was given a two-inning trial. No more runs were secured, but it would be unfair to pass judgment on the short trial, in which he gave two bases on balls and was saved from trouble only by a running catch by Hartsel.

Willis, of accentuated height, twirled for Boston and went the record of Nichols—five hits—two better, allowing three safeties and striking out eight of the locals, not one of them seeing the third cushion. Umpire Dwyer finally became as tired of the joke as the few spectators who remained and called the game on account of darkness at the end of the eighth inning. Scores:

Notes of the Game.

Two games again today, first one called at 2 o'clock.

The flag on the pole which to pennants is a stranger was still at half-mast.

McCormick was back at third, because Dexter complained of sickness.

Doyle's coaching was responsible for the only run of the day. He perished on a foul fly to Kittridge and coached McCormick to go down to second after the catch. Kittridge threw wild, and Hartsel trotted home from third.

Green's attempt to steal third base in the ninth inning cost the first game. Opening with a double, he tried to steal third and was caught out several feet. McCormick followed with a single, and Doyle struck out.

FOOTBALL GAMES TODAY.

NORTHWESTERN AND CHICAGO WILL BOTH HAVE CONTESTS.

Purple Team to Meet the College Eleven from Naperville, While Stagg's Players Will Line Up Against Lombard — Hollister's Pupils Have Some Practice with the Evanston High School Team — A. F. Johnson Returns to the Playing Field.

The football practice season will be in full swing today. There will be many practice games throughout the West, the most important of which are the contests of Northwestern University against Northwestern College (of Naperville) at Evanston and University of Chicago against Lombard College at Marshall field.

Dr. Hollister's protégés will meet the eleven of the Northwestern College of Naperville on Sheppard field. The little school usually puts a light team on the gridiron and it is not thought the beefy purple warriors will have any difficulty in piling up a good-sized score. All of the men who played on last year's team and who were expected to return, with the exception of Hanson, left tackle, and A. Baird, left guard, are now in Evanston, and these two are expected at the beginning of the week.

A. F. Johnson, who for three seasons has been the purple star, was out for practice yesterday.

Seventeen candidates were on the field yesterday and hard practice was the order of the day. A ten-minute half was played with the Evanston High School team. After three minutes of playing Sabin carried the ball over the high school line, but Daly missed the goal. It took but little longer to score again and Daly made the second touchdown, from which he kicked goal.

A second half was played in which the high school backs and ends were replaced by the regular varsity players, although the center of the school line was retained. Neither team was able to score, but the ball was kept in the territory of the team composed entirely of the varsity players. "Dad" Elliott heralded his return to the game with a twenty-five-yard run around the varsity's left end.

Dr. Hollister decided on his back field formation yesterday. The only thing which prevented that action before was the lack of a quarter back and this trouble has been settled by Johnson's return. Stratford, the former Penn State Dental College player, will alternate with Smiley at the last place in the tandem, while Captain C. E. Dietz and his brother, G. O. Dietz, will fill the first and second positions in the favorite formation of the little coach. Elliott and Davidson will be the ends, while Johnson will play quarter. Until the return of Arthur Baird and Hanson no decision in regard to the other positions will be made, although they will be filled as follows today: Flenger, left tackle; Ward, left guard; Allen, center; Knox, right guard; Paddock, right tackle.

MAROONS WILL PLAY LOMBARD.

Serious Lack of Football Material Is Reported at the University of Chicago Campus.

There is a serious dearth of football men at the University of Chicago, and unless some good material shows up at the opening of the college session in October, Coach Stagg will be in a bad way for a team. Usually at this time of the year enough players are on the field to make two teams, and lively scrimmages are the feature of every evening practice. This year there has been at no time more than sixteen men in suits at one time.

The worst of it is that the resources are apparently exhausted. Of the old men all have returned except Atwood, MacNab, Carey, and Pettit. Snider has a position with a railroad company in Mexico, and it is doubtful whether Garrey will be in the game this year. It is obvious that Stagg will have barely enough men for one team, with scarcely any available substitutes. The only hope lies in the freshmen and medical students whom the fall registration may produce.

Today, for the first time, the maroons will line up against a college team—that from Lombard College. Lombard usually has one of the strongest elevens of the smaller Illinois colleges, and this year is said to be no exception, although the team is light, averaging but 158 pounds in weight. Judging from the result of the Englewood game on last Saturday, Lombard is likely to score against Stagg's raw recruits, and it would be nothing astonishing if Chicago lost the game.

Stagg will use about fifteen men in the course of the game. The lineup of the two teams at the start will be as follows:

Chicago.		Lombard.
Ellsworth	R. T.	Jansen	L. T.
Cook	R. G.	Bruner	L. G.
Wheeler	C.	Bartgrove	C.
Flanagan	L. G.	Van Camp	R. G.
Kennedy	L. T.	Miller [Capt.]	R. T.
Conrad	L. E.	Collins	R. E.
Horten	R. H. B.	Ayars	R. H. B.
Walters	L. H. B.	Eustace	L. H. B.
Perkins	F. B.	Andrew	F. B.

Flanagan was in the practice again last night. He gained ten pounds on a three weeks' vacation and now weighs 218. He expects to train down to about 205. Floyd Harper, the baseball catcher, was added to the squad. He weighs 155, and is fairly fast. A. J. Walters of last year's scrubs also came out for practice.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL GAMES.

Schedule Recommended by the Managers for Adoption by the Board of Control.

The Schedule committee of the High School football managers met yesterday afternoon in the Board of Education rooms and prepared the schedule for the season. Two new schools, Chicago Manual and La Grange, entered the league, which makes fourteen schools to start the season. The Schedule committee consists of H. W. Kleppinger of Englewood, B. G. Parker of Hyde Park, E. V. Marsh of Evanston, L. A. Munger of West Division, and Harry Walker of Austin.

The league is divided into two divisions, eastern and western, there being eight teams in the former and six in the western. The schedule which was made is subject to adoption by the Board of Control. The schedule follows:

EASTERN DIVISION.

Oct. 12—Englewood High at Lake High, Chicago Manual Training at Evanston, South Division at Lake View, North Division High at Hyde Park.

Oct. 19—Chicago Manual Training at Englewood, Lake High at Evanston, Hyde Park at South Division, Lake View at North Division.

Oct. 26—Englewood at Lake View, South Division at Evanston, Hyde Park at Chicago Manual Training, Lake High at North Division.

Nov. 2—North Division at Englewood, Evanston at Lake View, Chicago Manual Training at South Division, Lake High at Hyde Park.

Nov. 9—Evanston High at Englewood, Chicago Manual Training at Lake, South Division at North Division, Hyde Park at Lake View.

Nov. 16—Englewood High at Hyde Park, North Division at Evanston, Lake View at Chicago Manual Training, Lake High at South Division.

Nov. 23—South Division at Englewood, Evanston High at Hyde Park, Chicago Manual Training at North Division, Lake View at Lake.

WESTERN DIVISION.

Oct. 12—English High at Austin, La Grange at Medill, West Division at Marshall.

Oct. 19—Austin High at Medill, English High at West Division, La Grange High at Marshall.

Oct. 26—West Division at Austin, La Grange High at English, Medill High at Marshall.

Nov. 2—Austin High at La Grange, Marshall High at English, West Division at Medill.

Nov. 9—Marshall High at Austin, English High at Medill, La Grange High at West Division.

Many of the Chicago high school football teams leave the city today to play games with out of town teams. The following games are scheduled: Englewood at Aurora; Austin at St. Charles, Ill.; West Division vs. Marquette Athletic club; Hyde Park vs. University of Chicago scrubs.

HARVARD'S SQUAD CALLED OUT.

Only Three Men on Last Year's Team Report, but More Will Play—Head Coach on Hand.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The practice of the Harvard football squad on Soldiers' Field this afternoon looked more like the opening of a Harvard football season than did the morning's work.

Princeton Candidates Are Light.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The football candidates from the entering class at Princeton reported on Osborn Field for the first time this afternoon. There were about fifteen in the squad, making the total number of players about sixty. The freshman squad compares in numbers favorably with those of former years, but in other respects it is somewhat of a disappointment. There is a noticeable lack of big men, a feature which is all the more discouraging because many of the veteran players are none too heavy. The most promising looking line candidates among the new men are short.

A tackle from St. Paul's School, Concord; Rhodes, a center from the same school; Gordan, a tackle; Barney, center, from Andover; Kafer, from Lawrenceville, and Foule from St. Paul's, who play half back; and Freeman, from St. John's, and Whitehead, from Lehigh, both quarter backs, look as though they might make suitable varsity material.

Badgers Are Given Hard Practice.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Football is livening up things in the Latin quarter. Today the men were put through the most rigid practice of the season. Coach King took part of the players, and with the assistance of Larson gave the men who are trying for the positions back of the line considerable work in end runs and bucking the center. Captain Curtis took the rest of the squad, and, assisted by Earl S. Anderson, gave those who are trying for end positions practice in getting down the field on punts. The mascot this year will be a real live badger. Emil Skow, center, who lives at Arcadia, has sent for one he captured himself, which it is now expected will be a feature at every game. It is admitted here there is no possibility of a game with Michigan.

Sixty Candidates at Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The football squad at Illinois is daily increasing and now consists of sixty men who are working hard under the guidance of Coach Holt. The practice was light today on account of the hard lineup of the varsity against the scrubs, which will take place tomorrow on Illinois Field. Bob Martin, for two years end on Illinois varsity, today took charge of the scrubs, and will coach the backs and ends. Several new men showed up, but on account of the light practice no line on their ability could be had.

Riverside High School Eleven.

BOWLING ALLEY KEEPERS UNITE

Form Organization for Mutual Protection and for Betterment of Sport—Will Aid State Association.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Star alleys, it was decided to form the Chicago Bowling Alley Keepers' association.

The need for such an association was caused by certain owners offering large financial inducements to leagues to leave the alleys on which they were located and go to those managed or controlled by the parties making these offers. Then, again, some leagues had been going the rounds of the alleys looking for the best financial inducements they could get.

In the interest of the alley keepers and the sport itself, several of the influential owners called the meeting for yesterday. W. V. Thompson was elected temporary chairman and W. P. Mussey, Fred Worden, A. C. Anson, William Lee, and Joe Weber will constitute the committee to draw up the constitution and by-laws.

Three officials of the Illinois Bowling association will be elected to membership in the new association, so that the two bodies can work hand in hand for the betterment of the sport.

The next meeting will be held at the Sherman House on Friday afternoon.

WOULD CHALLENGE PROMPTLY.

New York Yacht Club Prepared to Try to Win Back the Cup if Shamrock Triumphs.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—In the event of Shamrock II. winning the America Cup a challenge will be issued at once by the New York Yacht club for a race to be sailed next year. The cup will then be held by the Royal Ulster Yacht club and the course over which the yachts will sail will be off Belfast. It was learned today that arrangements had already been made to issue a challenge, but this does not mean that the members of the club think Columbia is going to be beaten, but as there is always a possibility of the challenger being successful several members of the club have agreed, if necessary, to send a yacht to try to win the cup back again.

The challenge will be handed to the representatives of the Royal Ulster Yacht club as soon as it is known that Shamrock has won.

It could not be learned who the challengers would be, but it was intimated that the syndicate of men who had Constitution would have that yacht put in the best possible trim and send it across the ocean to meet the defender of the cup on the other side.

Naval Reserve Crew Race Today.

The Naval Reserve crew race for the silver cup given by the Chicago Yacht club, which was slated for last Saturday but postponed on account of the death of the President, will be rowed this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The start of the race will be made from Van Buren street and the finish will be at a buoy placed directly east of the Chicago Yacht club. It was not known yesterday who the members of the two crews would be, but it is said the men have been in training for three weeks preparing for the event. Tomorrow afternoon there will be another race for the Naval Reserve Cup between the crews of the second and third division.

Chicago Billiardists at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20.—George Sutton and Frank Maggioli divided honors again today in the eighteen-inch balk line billiard play. Two games of 250 points were played, Maggioli taking the afternoon game and Sutton the evening match. In the afternoon Maggioli averaged 19 3-13, with high run of 62. Sutton averaged 12 10-13, with high run of 71. Sutton's average in the evening was 15 10-16; Maggioli, 9 11-15, with a total of 146. Alexander Taylor of Chicago and George Spears of Minneapolis will play tomorrow.

Progressive Council and Bankers Today.

The Progressive Council team, the champions of the Royal Arcanum league, and the First National Bank nine will play a benefit game at American league park this afternoon, when they will be presented with a banner.

TRAVIS-EGAN MATCH TODAY.

Championship of the United States Golf Association to Be Determined.

POSTPONED LAST WEEK.

Champion Is Expected to Win, but Chicago Player Has Many Supporters.

HAVE PRACTICED ALL WEEK

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The struggle for the amateur golf championship of the United States will open on the Northfield links tomorrow morning at 9:45. It will be the final of the tournament, which was postponed from last Saturday because of the President's death. Walter J. Travis of New York, the present champion, is to defend his title against Walter Egan of Chicago.

Both men have been playing an excellent game, and, while Travis is picked for the winner, there seems to be a reserve force in Egan which may land him the trophy, to the surprise of the friends of Travis.

Egan's admirers are certain he will win if he can play in the form which has brought him in from the large field to meet the old champion of the links, who never seemed to have trouble in winning from whoever opposed him. Egan is a Western strippling alongside of Travis, but he proved a steady and sure player throughout the tournament and turned in cards that were the source of both surprise and admiration.

Travis and Egan have been practicing during the week on the course and are in perfect trim for the event tomorrow. The game will be played, no matter what the weather may be. The links have been overhauled and are in splendid shape. Preparations have been made for the entertainment of a large gathering of spectators.

Champion Travis when seen this evening said: "The start will be at a quarter of 10 and the afternoon round will be started as soon as it is convenient for Egan and myself. Egan has shown himself to be a wonderfully clever player, and while I have confidence in winning I could not say that I would win for a certainty.

"If Egan did not play a championship game he would not be where he is. In the West he has been known more than in the East, where his recent brilliant playing won him deserved applause. For a young man he has come forward with a bound and is sure to have a place among the leading players of the country."

MUCH GOLF SCHEDULED TODAY.

Annual Open Tournament to Be Held at Exmoor—Semi-Finals and Finals at Riverside—Other Fixtures.

Local golfers will have a busy time today, the events regularly scheduled and those postponed from last Saturday making up a long program. The annual open tournament of the Exmoor club at eighteen holes, which starts at 2 o'clock, is expected to attract many contestants. At Riverside the semi-finals and finals in the open tournament begun last week will be finished. At Midlothian the qualifying round for the club championship at thirty-six holes is scheduled. The qualifying round for the Hoyt Cup will be played at Skokie.

Windsor Park—Qualifying round in club championship.
Auburn Park—Qualifying round in club championship.
Evanston—Team match with Edgewater.
Westward Ho—Finals for Ainslee Cup.
Hinsdale—Semi-finals for Robbins Cup.
Belmont—Team match with Elmhurst.
Onwentsia—Class matches for Byron L. Smith Cups, women's bogey handicap.

Gans Wins from Crosby.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Joe Gans was given the decision over Steve Crosby of Louisville before the Eureka Athletic club in the twelfth round of what was scheduled to be a twenty-round bout. Although Gans had by far the better of the battle, Crosby was still fighting when Referee Mentz disqualified him on a foul.

Young and Gibbs Fight.

Ashtabula, O., Sept. 20.—Joe Young of Buffalo and George Gibbs of Cleveland fought eleven rounds here tonight. Gibbs claimed to be injured in the tenth round and was unable to continue.

Cresceus Will Not Go to Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—George Ketchum, owner of Cresceus, has notified Secretary Murray Howe of the Memphis Trotting association that the champion will not be sent south of Lexington. The local association had offered Ketchum a big purse for a meeting between The Abbot and Cresceus.

Yale's Arctic Kicker Returns.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—George Goss, the Yale football player who went on an arctic trip and who, it was feared, would not return, reported for practice today.

Moweaqua Defeats Mount Pulaski.

THE PRIDE WINS IN NOSE FINISH.

VERDICT IS BY THE NOD.

Dick Furber Captures Steeplechase Handicap Over the Full Course.

PINK COAT COMES TO LIFE.

The Pride, from T. H. Ryan's stable, beat Miss Bennett "by a nod," as Associate Judge Apperson put it, in the third race at Hawthorne yesterday, after one of the most sensational finishes seen at the local tracks this year.

The event was a six and one-half furlongs dash, a half furlong farther than Miss Bennett had been asked to go this season, and was run in 1:19¼, track record time, hung up by Georgie two years ago. Bennett's filly opened at even money and went to the post heavily backed at 15 to 20. The Pride, all cocked and primed for a hard race, was backed from 4 to 1 down to 16 to 5.

Miss Bennett took the lead from The Pride in the first twenty yards, and showed the way into the stretch a length to the good of the Ryan trick. The filly was running game and true, and looked a sure winner after passing the eighth pole.

Pair in a Desperate Finish.

Then Winkfield began riding The Pride for all that was in him and inch by inch began cutting down the space which separated him from the filly. A hundred yards from home they hooked up on even terms and from that point to the wire it was nod and nod, with The Pride crossing the line a nod to the good. It looked like a dead heat from almost any viewpoint and none but the judges could separate them. Winkfield and Coburn were greeted with cheers upon their return to the stand.

The Emulation Stakes, a steeplechase over the full course, was the monetary feature and resulted in a victory for Dick Furber, at 11 to 2. Saintly led by a good margin, when he fell going over the tenth jump. Furber took command the last time around and won by a length. Captain Conover came fast on the flat and captured second money from the Hood pair.

Pink Coat came to life rather suddenly and galloped away with the Free Handicap. He was backed heavily, despite his poor effort the last time out, and won with surprising ease, after indulging Odnor with the lead for two-thirds of the journey. A weak finish on the part of Davisson on Strangest gave Vulcain the place in the last two strides. Monos, Harry Preston, J. V. Kirby, and Baird won the other events.

Hawthorne Summaries Sept. 20.

First race, 1 mile and 70 yards, purse $400, 3-year-olds, selling:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	¼	¾	Str.	Fn.

Time, 1:40¾. Hanswurst, 94 [R. Steele]; Artena, 104 [R. Sullivan]; Bonnie Lissak, 100 [J. Walsh]; Guy H., 107 [Dominick]; Carlovingian, 91 [Gormley]; Big Injun, 96 [Seaton]; Woodstick, 94 [Munro]; and Adelante, 95 [Davisson], finished as named. Winner—G. C. Bennett & Co.'s b. c., by Inspector B.—Rosa Buckden. At post 10 minutes. Start good. Won driving. Hanswurst showed much improvement. Bonnie Lissak was never a contender. Guy H. was right there for seven furlongs. Woodstick showed speed for six furlongs.

Second race, 1 mile, purse $400, selling:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
11-5	H. Preston, 96 [Gormley]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1
[illegible]	Fantasy, 100 [J. Hicks]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	2

Third race, 6½ furlongs, purse $500:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
16-5	The Pride, 110 [J. Winkfield]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1
16-1	Goal Runner, 103 [T. Knight]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	3

Time, 1:19¼. Obio, 101 [Blake]; Gonfalon, 105 [T. Meade]; and Sim W., 99 [Otis], finished as named. Winner—T. H. Ryan's b. g., by Dundee—Brewing. Start good. Won in a vigorous drive. The Pride laid along second to Miss Bennett up to the last sixteenth, where he moved up on even terms and the two fought it out desperately to the wire. Gonfalon moved up fast when entering the stretch, but fell away.

Fourth race, full course, steeplechase, handicap, the Emulation Stakes, $800 added:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	8	15	Str.	Fn.

Time, 3:52¾. Mazo, 135 [Slater], and Globe II., 138 [Bartley], finished as named. Saintly, 132 [Gaddy], fell. Winner—S. S. Tracey & Co.'s br. c., by Fordham—Duchess Caroline. Start good. Won driving.

Fifth race, 1⅛ miles, purse $700:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
[illegible]	Pink Coat, 115 [Landry]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1

Time, 1:52¾. Orontas, 108 [Blake], and Odnor, 80 [Gormley], finished as named. Winner—Woodford & Buckner's br. h., by Leonatus—Alice Brand. Start good. Won easily. Orontas tired badly in the last eighth. Odnor quit badly when the pinch came.

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fn.

Seventh race, 1 mile, purse $400, selling:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
[illegible]	Baird, 100 [Otis]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1

Time, 1:41¼. Laureate, 91 [Gormley]; Captain Hamm, 105 [Bassinger]; Nettie Regent, 93 [Davisson]; Formero, 110 [Alexander]; Hard Knot, 103 [T. Knight]; and Oliver Mc., 105 [Dominick], finished as named. Winner—Keating & Hecker's ch. c., by Huron—Lime Tree. Start good. Won in a canter. Captain Hamm ran well for seven furlongs. Hard Knot was badly cut off just after passing beyond the first quarter. Oliver Mc. showed speed for six furlongs.

The Iroquois Stakes, a handicap for 3-year-olds, with $1,000 added; distance one mile, is the feature event at Hawthorne today.

The program book of Hawthorne's eighth racing week was issued yesterday, with the Autumn, Endurance, and Speculation Stakes as features.

Little Elkin was undoubtedly the best horse in the first race. He was off last and remained there for half the distance, then finished a bang-up second.

The time 1:19¼ for six and a half furlongs hung up by The Pride yesterday is within a quarter of a second of the world's record for the distance, made by Sly at Harlem two years ago.

VICTORY FOR LORD DERBY.

BORALMA IS EASILY OUTFOOTED AT READVILLE TRACK.

Lawson Horse Is Allowed to Lead in the Early Part of the Heats, but Is Passed in Each with Little Effort Nearing the Finish—Heavy Track May Interfere with the Cresceus-The Abbot Match, Which Is Scheduled for This Afternoon.

Readville, Mass., Sept. 20.—Over 8,000 people saw Lord Derby defeat Boralma without apparent effort this afternoon in straight heats. The Lawson horse seemed to be outclassed and utterly unable to hold Lord Derby on the home stretch, and in the last two heats Geers eased the Hamlin horse up perceptibly.

The time, considering the heavy wind that blew up the back stretch and met the horses for a full half-mile, was remarkably fast. In two of the heats Boralma led until within 200 yards of the wire, at one time in the last heat being four lengths to the good. But Lord Derby was driven in masterly fashion by the veteran Geers, who was warmly applauded at the conclusion of the race.

The track was dry and fast, but the weather was cheerless, and the last race was trotted in a light rain, which has increased tonight to a downpour and may possibly prevent the big $20,000 race tomorrow between the champion trotter Cresceus and The Abbot.

Boralma, ch. g. [illegible], by Earl [Gatcomb] 2 2 2
Time by quarters—First heat, :32½, 1:05, 1:37, 2:07¼; second heat, :31½, 1:04¾, 1:36, 2:07¾; third heat, :31½, 1:03[illegible], 1:37, 2:0[illegible].

Dolly Dillon, b. m. [Sanders] [illegible]
Little Dick, br. g. [Pope] [illegible]
Alcidalia and Onward Silver started.
Time—2:11¾; 2:13¾; 2:12; 2:11¾.

HARNESS HORSES IN MATCHES.

Matinees at Three Local Tracks—Gentlemen's Driving Club Offers Its Tenth Card.

The tenth matinée of the Gentlemen's Driving club, which was postponed last Saturday out of respect to the late President, will be held this afternoon at Washington Park track.

While the entries for the seven events do not show the speediest performers owned by the members, five of the contests are in the nature of match races, and between several of the owners there is keen rivalry. In the 2:20 pace Will Davis, Van Duzen, and Josh will come together again. Here are the entries:

2:15 pace—W. C. Brown's Harry G., C. K. G. Billings' br. g. Dan Westland.
2:15 trot—C. M. Marks' May [illegible]; F. G. Hartwell's [illegible].

The West Chicago Driving club will hold its tenth matinée this afternoon at Twelfth street and Central avenue. On Oct. 5 and Oct. 12 the club will hold its championship races, two cups and four gold medals being offered as prizes. Only members can enter horses, the limit for membership expiring on Sept. 28.

FILLY A RIVAL TO BLUE GIRL.

Eastern Horsemen Think Endurance by Right Can Beat the Whitney Crack—Racing at Gravesend.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—In two races the crowd at Gravesend today became aggressively demonstrative, loud hisses from the backers of beaten horses greeting the display of the numbers of both The Rhymer and Glenwater.

Two stakes were on the afternoon's card, one of these being the Willow, originally set for Thursday. For the Willow six smart fillies ran, but the great 2-year-old, Endurance by Right, so far outclassed the others that the stake was conceded to her. Horsemen now think Schorr has a better filly than has William C. Whitney in Blue Girl.

Brooklyn Summaries Sept. 20.

Weather cloudy. Track slow.

First race, about ¾ mile (165 feet short), $1,000 added, handicap:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
5-1	Musette, 115 [McCue]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	3

Time, 1:11 2-5. Belle of Lexington, 107 pounds [Rice]; Military, 109 [O'Connor]; and Ziri, 102 [Cochran], finished as named. Winner, b. c., by Laureate—La Tosca. Start good. Won easily. Chuctanunda outclassed the field and was well handled. Belle of Lexington broke slowly and was pocketed.

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.

Time, 1:49 1-5. The Amazon, 100 pounds [Wonderly], and Himself, 85 [Creamer], finished as named. Winner, b. c., by The Bard—Equipoise. Start good. Won driving. The Rhymer was well handled, but bored into Herbert, nearly putting him over the fence. The latter was given a bad ride. Dublin was handicapped on the slow track, but struggled home gamely.

Third race, 5½ furlongs, 2-year-olds, fillies, the Willow Stakes, $1,000 added:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	¼	¾	Str.	Fn.
1-2	En. by Rig't, 119 [J. Woods]	2	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1

Time, 1:08 2-5. Early Eve, 99 pounds [Cochran]; Amicitia, 119 [Bullman]; and Pretoria, 99 [O'Connor], finished as named. Winner, b. f., by Inspector B.—Early Morn. Start fair. Won easily. Endurance by Right was extended to get away from Hanover Queen, but had the field decisively beaten on the stretch turn. Hanover Queen was easily the best of the others and had brilliant speed. Rockwater closed a tremendous gap. Early Eve ran a promising race. Amicitia probably found the going too slow and tired.

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.

Time, 1:48 3-5. Kilogram, 112 pounds [Wonderly]; Louisville, 104 [Cochran]; and The Musketeer, 106 [Mounce], finished as named. Winner, b. g., by Domino—Royal Gem. Start good. Won driving. The Regent showed the most speed. Wild Pirate finished strongly. Kilogram quit badly in the stretch.

Fifth race, 1 mile and 70 yards, $700 added, selling, mares and geldings:

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
5-2	B. Frietchie, 88 [J. Martin]	2	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1

Time, 1:46. Balloon, 88 pounds [Creamer]; Alsike, 101 [Miles]; Maximo Gomez, 111 [Bullman]; Elsie Skip, 98 [Smith]; Kalib, 92 [Shea]; Lee King, 105 [J. Woods]; Welsh Girl, 85 [Hewitt]; Major Gilroy, 97 [Wonderly]; San Luis, 102 [Brennan]; Glengar, 97 [Cochran]; George Simons, 99 [Cummings]; Missionary, 109 [Simms]; and Potasi, 88 [Henderson], finished as named. Winner, b. f., by St. Maxim—Frances S. Start fair. Won eased up. Barbara Frietchie got a lucky start and had clear sailing. Vesuvia came from a long way back after much interference on the first turn. Alsike and Elsie Skip, both off badly, closed a big gap. Maximo Gomez was bumped on the first turn.

Bet.	Horse, weight, jockey.	St.	½	¾	Str.	Fn.
7-1	Glen Water, 112 [T. Burns]	3	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	1

The Devil Turned Loose Again.

The Devil, which ran last year in the name of Woodard & Anderson, has been reinstated by the Harlem Jockey club. The horse was well known about the Chicago tracks and ran a series of inconsistent races which culminated in his being ruled off last year. He was generally regarded as a horse which ran best when the "checks were down," but nevertheless was popular with the "pikers."

Columbia Club Races Today.

The annual fall regatta of the Columbia Yacht club, postponed from last Saturday, will be sailed this afternoon. There will be open races for all boats, and, in addition, Siren and Vanessa will sail over the short course for a cup presented by Mayor Carter H. Harrison.

TRADE HALTS AS NATION MOURNS.

Week of Quiet in Business Is Due to Grief for Dead President.

OUTLOOK STILL BRIGHT.

CORN INJURED BY FROSTS.

New York, Sept. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

"Universal sorrow placed a calming hand on the rush and turmoil of the market place. Everything that could be conveniently postponed was put aside out of respect for the man whose life was devoted to developing the wonderful activity in all branches of trade and industry. Exchanges suspended operations for two days, and the distribution of merchandise was, in many cases, limited to immediate requirements.

"Mercantile payments continue prompt, but it was to be expected that bank exchanges would not show the customary heavy gains over previous years. At leading cities outside New York there was a gain of .8 per cent over 1900 and a loss of 7 per cent from 1899. Yet prices were stronger and there were many indications of great latent power that may be expected to appear as normal conditions return.

"After two months of controversy at the steel mills a settlement has been reached, although the terms are not entirely satisfactory to the Amalgamated association and there is much complaint among the men regarding the conduct of the strike. Managers are confident that the outcome means no further interruption to work for a long period, and there is hope of making up for much of the delay by operating overtime.

Big Mills to Double Capacity.

"In preparing for an exceptionally active year in 1902, some of the largest mills are to double their capacity. Fictitious prices disappear with the prospect of full production, but it will be some time before immediate deliveries are made at list figures. Meanwhile, the pig iron market revives at the assurance of heavy consumption, and Southern furnaces are already asking higher quotations.

"Forwardings of fall footwear to the West and South have about ceased with the advancing season, but producers are still busily engaged turning out goods for jobbers at Eastern cities. Quotations for shoes are unchanged, though there is a general advance of 2½ to 5 cents on boots. Abundance of work in prospect has made operators more anxious to secure material, and the leather market averages about one-half cent higher.

Mourning Goods Stocks Exhausted.

"In dry goods the feature of the week was the phenomenal movement of mourning goods, which advanced in price as the available supply was reduced. Mills having stocks of crêpe and bunting were able to dispose of everything on hand, and large shipments went West.

"Of standard staples the supply in first hands is light, and supplementary orders arrive freely. Export buying of brown goods is not heavy and domestic orders only fair, but prices are firm, and holders offer no concessions. Print cloths are steady at the recent advance to three cents, and a strong undertone throughout all lines of cottons promises well for the future. Some strength was given the raw material by fears of frost and reports of heavy rains. Woolen goods remained firm, but quiet, while the wool market is hardened by advances at the London auction sale.

Corn Has Another Setback.

"Corn has met with another setback. After passing through the vicissitudes of heat and drought, which curtailed the crop severely, notwithstanding an unusually large acreage, it was subjected to the other extreme of temperature. How much injury was done by frost cannot yet be determined, but it forced prices to an extremely high price on Tuesday. It was not possible to retain all the advance and there was evidence of much manipulation during the movement. One result of inflated quotations was further reduction in exports from the Atlantic coast to 290,801 bushels, against 1,518,820 a year ago and 3,118,215 in 1899.

"Wheat is stronger, with less speculative support and more actual cash demand. Shipments abroad continue heavy, despite much interruption during the last week, amounting to 4,033,455 bushels, against 3,219,211 last year and 3,242,764 two years ago.

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"The sad events of the week have naturally been repressing features, even on days when the sense of national bereavement did not seek expression in total or partial suspension of all but the absolutely necessary activities.

"The reduced figures of sales of products or securities dealt in speculative and the lessened volume of bank clearings were among the most prominent measures of the repression under which the business world has labored, but the course of prices of nearly all stocks and staples shows that repression and not depression is the word to express the steadiness and confidence with which the commercial and financial world awaited and received the change in Executives, though not in government, entailed by the lamentable occurrence of two weeks ago.

"Among the more favorable of the purely commercial or industrial features of the week have been the continuance of the good demand from jobbers, the heavy shipments of goods with which to fill these demands, the better call for goods at retail, induced by the arrival of cool fall weather, and last, but not least, the settlement of the steel strike, which restores at least 50,000 men to their work.

Unfavorable Features Are Few.

"The unfavorable features are few, the most notable being the advices of the arrival of heavy frosts in the corn belt, affecting, however, only the latest planted product. The strength of corn has been indeed the feature of the cereal markets, and has been shared in by other grains though realizing later cut down some of the gains noted earlier.

"Cotton alone of all the leading staples showed hesitation and irregularity, advancing early, but weakening in the middle of the week on poor cables, and, despite crop reports, to firm up again toward the close on a repetition of the later reports and a rather better tone abroad. The changes in price are not marked, however.

Strike Costs $25,000,000.

"The resumption of work in the hoop, sheet, tinplate, and tube mills has been a feature of the week. The loss in wages to the men as a result of two months of idleness is estimated at $10,000,000, and the gross earnings of the companies are said to have been reduced $15,000,000. Much of the latter loss will, however, be made up, as there is an immense amount of business offering, guaranteeing activity for months to come. Steel rails are being well taken at the West, and steel mills are reported sold ahead to next year.

"Jobbers in iron and steel are busy supplying small lots to bridge over consumers until the mills recently on strike can come into the market. Pig iron is in rather better inquiry, and Bradstreet's Birmingham correspondent reports an advance of 25 cents per ton. Export business is slow. The other metals are without much change. Tin is excited, but copper is steady, despite stock market rumors of heavy distributors' stocks.

"Wheat, including flour, exports for the week aggregate 3,840,574 bu., as against 6,648,000 bu last week, and 3,535,237 bu in this week last year. Wheat exports, July 1 to date (twelve weeks), aggregate 72,182,179 bu., as against 37,468,416 bu last season.

"Corn exports aggregate 611,528 bu., as against 777,831 bu last week, and 2,134,205 bu last year. July 1 to date corn exports are 12,133,204 bu, against 39,586,476 bu last season.

"For the week business failures number 158, as against 182 last week, 183 in this week a year ago, 147 in 1899, 182 in 1898, and 237 in 1897. Canadian failures number 23, as against 16 last week, 21 in this week a year ago, 13 in 1899, 19 in 1898, and 36 in 1897."

Week's Record of the Banks.

CASH DOWN FOR BERTHS.

PENNSYLVANIA COMPANY TO CEASE RESERVING BY 'PHONE.

Failure of People to Take Space Ordered in Pullman Cars Reason for the Change—Vanderbilts Said to Be Discussing Plan of Organizing a Corporation to Take Over Securities of Their Roads — Transportation Notes.

Hereafter patrons of the Pennsylvania railroad wishing to reserve space in Pullman cars must pay for the same at the time the application is made. That this innovation may work considerable inconvenience in particular cases the railroad company thinks possible until its operation becomes generally known, but at the same time it is put into effect with the object of giving to the public better service.

Heretofore any one was permitted to have reserved two or three days or perhaps a week in advance, a berth, section, or stateroom without purchasing the ticket. It not infrequently happened that at the last moment the space would not be taken. Others coming later were either compelled to take less desirable space or else could not be accommodated at all. Pullman cars, it is claimed, have gone out of Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburg, and other cities with space unoccupied which had been reserved, and for which there had been a demand from other patrons of the line. In this way travelers have not infrequently been disappointed and inconvenienced.

The new plan will prevent the reserving of space by telephone and to a great extent even by telegraph. At present the order applies only to lines east of Pittsburg, but it is stated that it will shortly be extended to the lines west of Pittsburg.

New Plan of Vanderbilts.

No information can be obtained here regarding the rumors that the Vanderbilts intend to form a new company to take over and hold permanently the securities of Vanderbilt roads. It is believed, however, that some such a proposition is under consideration, it being well known that concentration of stockholders, as well as of operation control, is the Vanderbilt policy. The outlines of a plan for bringing all of the Vanderbilt holdings of stock in such roads as form the New York Central system under the proprietary control of one company is said to have been discussed by some of W. K. Vanderbilt's most trusted associates and advisers. Definite action is said to await Mr. Vanderbilt's return from Europe.

Reports of Earnings.

Gross earnings of the Chicago Great Western railway for the second week of September, 1901, show an increase of $2,932 over the corresponding week of last year. For August the report is:

Gross	$738,[illegible]	$621,[illegible]	$117,[illegible]
Operating expenses	480,[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Oper. ex. and re'als	480,[illegible]	391,[illegible]	[illegible]
Net	258,114	230,115	27,999

Gross earnings of the Monon road for the second week of September were $92,754, against $82,688 for the corresponding week last year, an increase of $10,066.

Transportation Notes.

Chicago-St. Paul roads have decided to reduce fruit rates from Chicago and Milwaukee to 25 cents a hundred pounds. The rate has been 40 cents.

Traffic officials of the Western and Northwestern roads say there is not a particle of truth in the report that the Standard Oil company is getting better rates than independent concerns, and that in consequence the latter are suffering.

Railroad day at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, which was to have been celebrated on Sept. 14, was put off until Sept. 28. The railroad committee is out with a strong appeal asking the railroad people throughout the country to assist in making the affair a success. Senator Depew will be the orator at the Temple of Music.

FROM THE INSURANCE FIELD.

Trial of Policy-Holders' National Union Officers Postponed—Capiases Issued.

The trial of James T. Minehart, President, and William B. Walker, Secretary-Treasurer of the Policy-Holders' National union, which was set for Thursday afternoon, was postponed on account of the closing of the courts that day.

The case of J. L. Knoepfler of New Orleans against the officers in question comes up on Monday next before Justice Prindiville, while the other, that of W. D. Kent of Topeka, is set for Friday before Justice Wolfe. Capiases were issued yesterday for Minehart and Walker. Superintendent Sutherland of the Mooney & Boland detective agency, who has collected the evidence in the case, says that a good and sufficient collectible bond will have to be furnished. It is understood a civil suit is about to be instituted against the officers of the concern in question.

The assertions of the affidavit filed by Knoepfler are that Minehart and Walker knowingly entrapped him into the investment of $1,500 in the stock of the company and that they were well aware that few, if any, of the managers appointed by them had made any money, and that their representations were false. It is further alleged that the capital stock of the company was and is worthless and never has paid a dividend.

Knoepfler alleges that his experience, set forth to the court, is but one of many similar experiences.

The plan of the union, as set forth in the affidavit, was for the managers of the concern, after the appointment of district managers, to require on their part the purchase of shares of the capital stock of the company.

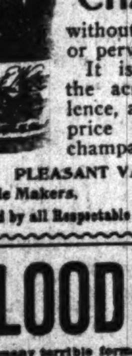

Chauncy P. Walker, traveling auditor of the union, who was arrested in New York City a short time since on charges similar to those preferred against Minehart and Walker in Chicago, and who furnished a cash bond of $1,000, has forfeited his bail.

Steps on Nail, Lockjaw Follows.

Abraham Lazaur, 7 years old, 205 Maxwell street, was removed to the County Hospital yesterday suffering from lockjaw, and his condition is said to be serious. During the hot spell the child ran about the streets in his bare feet and stepped on a rusty nail.

City Gets Judgment Against County.

Judge Neely has entered judgment against Cook County in favor of the City of Chicago for $3,823 for water furnished to the county during May, June, and July of this year.

BLOOD POISON
In its many terrible forms is doubtless the worst of all afflictions. The disease has baffled the skill of the most noted physicians. If you are suffering from Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula or severe skin disease, an old sore or ulcer, or any other trouble resulting from blood poison, do not be discouraged because all your efforts to obtain a cure have failed. A positive and permanent cure, wonderfully quick in its action, has been discovered. It is the discovery of the

SCHLESINGER MAYER

Fall styles in "that different" men's clothing.

Less than six months ago first shown in Chicago, and already its friends are numbered by thousands. Never before—here or elsewhere—has a new clothing business assumed such proportions in the same length of time as has this peerless "F. B. Q." ready-to-wear merchant tailoring—that high-class clothing in a single season has made S. & M. famous.

Fall and winter styles were never more tempting.

They await your inspection—they are here now and ready in all their beauty—bound to impress not only every wearer of "F. B. Q." clothing, but all of Chicago's best dressers who see them—a most complete showing.

Men's new fall suits—The "rightness" of these suits appeals to all good dressers—here the young men with up-to-date ideas will find the extreme military coat—cut in the right length, shaped to the form—and "peg-top" trousers. The man with more mature ideas will be equally pleased with the "F. B. Q." regularly cut coats in three lengths—short, medium and long. Hundreds of patterns to choose from, including black or blue cheviots, thibets and serges. We continue last week's great offering—now even more interesting—the phenomenal values in these fine suits at $14.75.

$14 3/4 $14 3/4

Men's new topcoats—In the topcoat race—every right kind. The long coat with broad military shoulders—with or without yoke—fancy plaids or plain colors—this just now seems the winner. Then there is the short length box coat in a variety of shades—silk or serge lined—all are here in assortment to suit every taste. Considering style and material, make and merit, never before have such values been offered.

$14 3/4 $14 3/4

SCHLESINGER MAYER

Fall styles boys' clothing.

A really remarkable offering of the new fall styles at prices interesting to all who appreciate the new—the stylish—and the well made in boys' artistic apparel. The feature of the season is the

New London suit.

This suit is for boys from 6 to 16 years and represents an American modification of the popular European style. It comes in stylish tweeds, cheviots, homespuns and serges—in patterns particularly adapted to the style suit. Confined exclusively (until copied later) to S. & M. and marked for this sale at $7.50 a suit.

→ Finer grades, $8.50, $10 and $12. Continuing the sale of the L'Aiglon suits—the new Irvington suits—the new yoke Norfolk suits—the new vest suits—the new topcoats and reefers—sizes from 3 to 15 years—a great offering at $5.

Large lads' long trousers suits—Military cut or regularly cut suits—tailored and shaped like the "grown-up" kinds—suits that will please every young man who likes the tailor-made styles—in liberal assortment of patterns—mixtures of plain blues and black—at $10.50.

→ Boys' hats and furnishings—Everything that is new and stylish for boys from 2½ to 20 years.

Sorosis: woman's best shoe

More feminine feet tread the sidewalks of Broadway and Piccadilly in the famous Sorosis shoe than any other shoes ever designed for women. In the great centers of wealth and fashion, such as London, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other leading cities, Sorosis has made its greatest success.

These shoes appeal to the critical taste of women who are looking for stylishness, durability and good fit, and the absolute certainty that Sorosis possesses these qualifications is demonstrated by the enormous sales of Sorosis to the fashionable trade of these great cities. Sorosis shoes are now made in over 80 styles—in all leathers—and are always $3.50 a pair.

$3 1/2 SOROSIS TRADE MARK.

Sorosis for misses and children.

Shapely, comfortable feet are possible only by correct training during the growing period. The new Sorosis shoes for children and misses have been welcomed by thousands of parents. These shoes are scientifically constructed upon lasts which insure perfect fit.

And besides they have the same "beauty, ease, extra long life" characteristic of Sorosis shoes for women. Every mother will find these Sorosis truths worthy of her attention.

→ Uniformly sold at $2.50 for children's and $3.00 for misses'.

The new autumn styles now ready—in profusion and richness as never before—every late Paris conceit, as in former seasons, now first found in the S. & M. showing. More than ever before, Chicago's most correct dressers must look to S. & M. for the latest, the really correct millinery fashions—for those swell, exclusive, proper effects—the real Paris styles from the Rue de la Paix. All are now ready—it's a matchless assembly—more than ever before a gathering rich in assuredly RIGHT styles—not a premature showing of hap-hazard creations, but an authoritative exhibit of the most fancied French fashions—an eminently correct reflex of French milliner-thought from S. & M.'s Paris house direct by the last transatlantic liner. New French room, sixth floor.

MANDEL BROTHERS.

New autumn veilings at 35c.

Brokaw Bros.' custom-made clothing.

When you put on a Brokaw garment you can tell right away that it is superior to the ordinary ready-to-wear clothing. In the common factory-made productions you can't tell whether you wear a 36 or a 38—sizes don't run regular—some are cut "more full" and some are cut skimpy—machines do the work instead of skilled cutters. Then, too, the Brokaw clothing keeps its shape because it's made right and is devoid of that shop appearance so distasteful to good dressers. We are exclusive agents for Brokaw Bros.' clothing, the style standard of the world.

Brokaw Bros.' clothing resembles in every respect the very finest made-to-measure clothing and every garment is up-to-the-minute in style. It is made from those exclusive fabrics identical with materials shown by high-priced tailors. The price is half what your tailor would ask for garments equal in style and quality.

Another shipment of elegant suits and overcoats—the celebrated Brokaw Bros.' clothing—just received and offered for your selection today at special prices. All made of the same materials, the same patterns and cut in the same style as your high-priced tailor would offer you at double our price

Basement: We have for today's choosing about 1,000 men's suits and overcoats—suits made from popular black and blue unfinished worsteds, also all the new, rich colors shown by the merchant tailor in single or double breasted styles. Overcoats made of kersey, vicuna and Irish frieze—some half silk lined, finished with raw edges and lap seams—just as your tailor would make them—the only difference is the price—which is less than half—

$10

Another shipment of those young men's suits just received—14 to 20 year sizes—either single or double breasted styles. Equal to the best $15 suits in Chicago, at $10

NEW BOOKS JUST ISSUED BY

A GREAT WORK OF REFERENCE

Dictionary of Philosophy and Psychology

Edited by J. MARK BALDWIN, Ph. D., Hon. D. Sc. Oxon., Hon. LL. D., Glasgow; Stuart Professor, Princeton University, with an international body of collaborators. In 3 vols., 8vo. Each $5.00 net. Volume One now ready.

The work is to be strictly a dictionary, and will have two general features: [1.] It will contain concise definitions of all the terms in use in the whole range of philosophical study. [2.] It will contain such historical matter under each term as may be necessary to justify the definition given, and to show that the usage suggested is the outcome of the progress of philosophy. The writers comprise many of the leading scholars both in philosophy and science at home and abroad. Prof. Baldwin has associated with himself a board of Consulting Editors for each of the languages, English, German, French and Italian. The work may be described as a Dictionary with Encyclopedic Features. It is also a Dictionary of Science as well as of Philosophy, since it includes the principal terms of the Physical, Natural and Moral Sciences.

Maryland as a Proprietary Province

By NEWTON D. MERENESS, sometime University Fellow in History in Columbia University. Cloth, crown 8vo, $3.00 net.

This is a history of the government rather than of the people. However, the absorbing interest of the populace is shown to have been in the struggle that gradually resulted in a transition from monarchical to popular government.

Lessons in Elementary Grammar

By GEORGE H. MIRICK, A. M., formerly Supervising Principal of the Strong District, New Haven, Conn. Cloth, 12mo, 50 cents net.

This book is intended for pupils in the last grade of the grammar school. It has been made in the classroom. Grammatical relations, leading to analysis, are treated in Part I. Grammatical forms, leading to parsing are treated in Part II. For teachers' use simple explanations of difficult points, and suggestions in methods of teaching are presented in a chapter entitled "Notes and Discussions." An appendix, containing numerous examples for analysis and parsing, is added.

The New Basis of Geography

By JACQUES W. REDWAY, F.R.G.S. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00 net.

This volume is designed to point out the salient features that constitute the "new" of geography. After presenting the gradual development of human knowledge concerning the form and size of the earth, the author shows the marvelous results of discovery that followed the blockading of trade routes between Europe and Cathay, etc.

Social Control

This is the latest volume in the now celebrated Citizens' Library, and is a timely volume. Its divisions are: I. The Grounds of Control. II The Means of Control. III. The System of Control.

Domestic Service

By LUCY MAYNARD SALMON, Professor of History at Vassar College. Second Edition. With an Additional Chapter on Domestic Service in Europe. 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Nothing could prove more clearly the necessity for this work than the fact that the author has been encouraged to publish this second revised edition of an already popular book.

School Hygiene

By EDWARD R. SHAW, Ph. D., Dean of the Faculty of Pedagogy in the New York University. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00 net.

This volume will mark a departure from the conventional treatment of the subject of school hygiene. The schoolroom is viewed as the unit first to be considered in the planning of a school building. The chapters are: The Schoolroom, The School Building, School Grounds, Warming and Ventilation, School Baths, School Furniture, Postures and Physical Exercise, Eyesight and Hearing, the Hygiene of Handwriting, Fatigue, Sanitation and Diseases which concern the School.

Experimental Psychology

By EDWARD BRADFORD TITCHENER. A Manual of Laboratory Practice. Volume I. Qualitative Experiments. Part I. Student's Manual, $1.60 net. Part 2, Instructor's Manual. 8vo, cloth, $2.50 net.

The general purpose of this book is sufficiently indicated by its title. The author has selected a number of classical experiments of Experimental Psychology, and has presented them in such a way that their performance should have a real disciplinary value for the undergraduate student. He has sought to show, in the first place, that psychology is above the laboratory, that instruments of precision are employed not for their own sake, but solely because they help us to a refined and more accurate introspection.

A New Book by George Horton.

The Tempting of Father Anthony

Mr. Horton has again happily chosen modern Greece for the background of a story. Americans know very little of the peasant life there, and Mr. Horton's clever descriptions bring them in touch with a new country in the world of fiction. He has lived among the people, and knows them thoroughly.

"Father Anthony" is the son of a village priest, and he hopes to follow the example of his patron saint by leading a life of stern self-denial. The story tells, in the most diverting manner, of the difficulties he encounters and why he finally gives up his ambition. The reader will be charmed by the easy, amusing style of the narrative and the novel situations the author has invented.

Of Unusual Interest.

JEANNETTE L. GILDER REVIEWS NEW BOOKS OF THE WEEK.

[By Jeannette L. Gilder, Editor of the Critic.]

WHILE small as well as great are writing novels as fast as their pens will fly over the paper it is not a harvest time for the beginner. If he has something that the public wants he will be heard—his time will come—but he must stand aside for the popular author. Travelers for publishing houses bring home the same tale: Buyers will not look at new authors. There are too many of them and their tales are uncertain. They will buy Hall Caine, Winston Churchill, Dr. Wier Mitchell and such by the thousand, but they turn a cold shoulder upon the new people. The latter often have their revenge by hitting the public fancy, then the haughty bookseller sends in his orders. He really has nothing against the young author, but he is so crowded with books that he must take what he knows to be a sure thing. All summer, as well as all winter, the presses have been turning out books, principally fiction, and there is hardly space on the booksellers' shelves to accommodate it. The consequence is that when the book of a new writer is laid before him he turns shudderingly away.

Publishers, on the other hand, take a different view of the new writer, particularly if he be a novelist. They hail him with joy, for he may turn out a bonanza, as he so often does. You take an author such as Kipling, for example, who leaves Mr. A. P. Watt to fight his battles, and there cannot be much more than glory in being his publisher. Strange it is, but Kipling, who is one of the best known writers today, is not one of the best sellers. There are half a dozen authors whose books have a much larger sale. Mr. Hall Caine, for instance, to whom Mr. Heinemann paid $75,000 for English rights in "The Christian," and says it was the best bargain he ever made. The publisher who paid Kipling as much for any one of his books would have no occasion to rejoice in the fact, any more than Messrs. Harper rejoiced over the purchase of "The Martians" for $50,000.

Mr. McClure, it is well known, paid $25,000 for the serial rights alone in Kipling's "Kim," but that is another proposition. With a serial he had a chance to get his money back, for he sold it to a syndicate of periodicals here and in England. The unhappy part of the story is that he does not get the book. That goes to Doubleday, Page & Co., who will publish it immediately in a cover uniform with "The Day's Work." The design of this cover was made by Mr. Kipling as a trade mark for the once firm of Doubleday, McClure Co. It is a ship under full sail and had the name of the firm under it. Curiously enough he spelled the name of McClure, his friend of years and who introduced him to American readers, as "McClure." When Messrs. Doubleday and McClure agreed to part the former, to whose share of the spoils the books fell, carried off the trade mark. It was never used for that purpose, however, but only as a cover design.

The London bookbinder who bound the first hundred thousand of Hall Caine's "Eternal City," boasts that it took twenty-two miles of cloth for the job. That is a good deal of cloth, no doubt, but, according to the same calculation, Messrs. Appleton, whose first edition of the same book was 200,000, must have used forty-four miles of cloth, and for "David Harum," with its sale of 600,000 copies or more, 132 miles of cloth! Let us hope that the London bookbinder has not set the fashion for a new estimate of book sales. I should much dislike to see publishers advertising, instead of copies sold, like this:

DAVID'S HAREM.
BY THE AUTHOR OF BEN WALLACE.
FIRST EDITION TWENTY MILES.

Mr. William Heinemann is out with another attack on the literary agent. He thinks that gentleman a public nuisance, and he does not hesitate to tell him so. From the publishers' point of view he is, but authors think differently. That is, popular authors—beginners he will not touch. He is in the field, not to make reputations, but to make money out of those whose reputations are already made. He does not want you if the publisher does not want you, and that is all there is about you. For the successful author he is the "wicked partner." He allows the agent to do things that he would hesitate to do.

What I particularly dislike about the agent is that he makes literature entirely an article of commerce. The author is the manufacturer, the agent the middleman who sells his wares to the highest bidder. There is no such thing as the old, pleasant personal relations between author and publisher. How can there be? The author knows that there is no use of establishing pleasant relations with Publisher A today if he is going to leave him for Publisher B tomorrow. The publisher, on his side, cares little for the author personally. They may never meet. Ten to one that they do not. The agent is the man whom the publisher cultivates, and the agent cultivates the publisher. He divides his best authors among his best patrons. He is afraid to give all the plumbs to Publisher A for fear that when he comes with something else to Publisher B he may be received with coldness.

Messrs. Appleton publish two interesting books this week. They are about the same size and of about the same general appearance, but in subject matter they are as wide apart as the poles. One is a story by the late Edward Noyes Westcott, "The Teller," with a batch of letters to the author's family, which are most interesting; the other is "The Private Life of the Sultan of Turkey," by Georges Dorys, translated from the French by Arthur Hornblow.

"The Teller" is not a remarkable story, but it has the same human qualities conspicuous in "David Harum." The title does not refer to a story-teller, but to an officer in a bank. The letters written by Mr. Westcott to his sister, Mrs. Margaret Westcott Mumey, are more interesting to me than the story. They refer chiefly to the fortunes of his now famous manuscript. Mr. Westcott's daughter, knowing that her father was busily engaged in writing something, urged him to let her see it. In response to her letter he wrote on Aug. 15, 1896:

"So far as the book that —— wrote you of—well, I fancy, the less said the better. It isn't a book yet, and I have not the smallest expectation that it ever will be. That work has filled up a good many hours which would otherwise have been dreary, and given me some amusement; but that's about all there is to be said about it."

The manuscript was finally finished, and Mr. Westcott decided to offer it to a publisher. "I have not really the smallest expectation that anything will result," he wrote, "except the return of the MS. in about two months or more, but I thought the experiment was worth trying." The MS. was returned with a formal declination. Then it was sent out again, to be again returned. This time, however, with a special letter in which the publishers said: "We have given the MS. careful consideration and have secured concerning it the counsel of an experienced literary advisor. His report is, in accordance with our preliminary impression, to the effect that the story is rather distinctive in its purpose and characterization, and is also well written. We regret, notwithstanding, to decide that, in connection with the present exceptionally depressed and overcrowded condition of the market for fiction, 'David Harum' (the name they gave it themselves, by the way) is not sufficiently assured of an extended or remunerative sale to make its publication a desirable undertaking considered from a business point of view. It is possible that in this conclusion we are in error, and we shall be pleased to learn that with the imprint of some other house the story has secured for itself a satisfactory success. Yours truly," etc., etc.

Mr. Westcott took such consolation as he might from the fact that the publishers sent him a civil letter, but he wrote to his sister:

"I think I will not press further at present upon a depressed and overcrowded market. I should never have made any move if it had not been for the opinion of other people. By the time I had typewritten it the second time I was so sick of the stuff that I could smell it when I opened the front door. You may imagine that it might be so when I tell you that there are 500 page nearly or quite two-thirds as large as this sheet and covering about 140,000 words."

The next publisher to whom it was sent returned it because the handwriting of the MS. was so bad that he had not read it in the time allotted by the author! Messrs. Appleton, who accepted it, say that it was one of the best typewritten manuscripts they ever received. The other publisher must have mixed his MSS. up, unfortunately for him. After the MS. had been returned several times, the author's sister asked him what he had done with it. He replied, "I have thrown it up on the shelf in my closet, and there I mean to leave it." He was utterly disheartened in regard to it, and "down on his luck" as to all the things, business and other, in which he was interested. He would often say, "When I am gone perhaps some of my affairs will turn up trumps, but as long as I live luck is dead against everything I undertake."

What he predicted came true, but it does seem hard that he had to die to change his luck.

The book on "The Private Life of the Sultan" is written by Georges Dorys, the pen name of the son of the Prince of Samos, who was at one time one of the Sultan's Ministers. Much of the material in the book must have been supplied by the father, as the son is too young to have personally participated in some of the scenes described. M. Dorys, of course, can never return to Turkey, so he consoles himself by living in Paris, where he acts as one of the correspondents of the London Times. The Sultan has condemned him to death, but he does not mean to put himself in a position to have the order carried out.

According to this writer there is no good in Abdul-Hamid. Although not yet 60 years of age, the Sultan is an old man in appearances. He covers the gray of beard and hair with a dye which he himself applies. The entire physiognomy of the Sultan, it is said, confirms his divers characteristics, even that of the hypocritical gentleness that he assumes at times.

Of medium height, slightly rickety on his legs, and painfully thin, he seems now only to have his breath left, and, in fact, it is his nerves that keep him alive. Such a constitution must necessarily influence his mentality. Abdul-Hamid is, in truth, a victim of neurasthenia, and is a monomaniac. His physical condition alone can explain the contradictions of his character.

His cruelty passes belief. Indeed, M. Dorys paints him such a monster that one cannot but feel that the portrait is overdrawn. If one allows for a certain amount of prejudice there is enough in the book to interest and entertain, for it undoubtedly reveals much of the inner life of his Turkish Majesty.

JEANNETTE L. GILDER.

"Kim." By Rudyard Kipling. Doubleday, Page & Co.

It has been quite the fashion of late to say that Kipling's strength was waning, that his message was already delivered, and that he had fallen into inconsequent repetitions. It is not unlikely, therefore, that many readers will open "Kim," his new book, which is to be published on Oct. 1, with a prejudice in its disfavor. They will have their fears realized if they look for a novel in "Kim." For, indeed, it lacks the qualities which constitute a novel. It is a womanless book, and no novel is entitled to consideration as such without woman. A fabric must have warp as well as woof. Even in India, where women are out of sight, the world moves to the tune of the clinking of their bangles—else were not India a part of the scene of things. But Kipling, like Stevenson, has always had an aversion to the consideration of matters of sex. In a way both of them have had the mind of boys—hearty, wholesome, clean, eager for action, avid for abstract ideas, delighted with that vast and ingenious toy, the universe. Both have had a fastidiousness which made them shrink from the consideration of sacred subjects; both have detested the morbid sex psychology which has occupied the pens of some of the greatest contemporary writers—Serao, Hardy, Moore, Zola, Bourget, D'Annunzio, Tolstoi. These two have not only had the clean and eager minds of boys, but they have celebrated boyhood. The adventures of the youth, still agape at the wonders of the world, the youth with an inheritance of courage and poetry and recklessness, have seemed to them to be the scene of romance.

Kim is, perhaps, the most mysterious and the most interesting boy of all the tribe. He is as cunning as Gavroche, as ingenious as the hero of "Treasure Island," and he is, above all, an example of the union of Europe and Asia in the body, the soul, and the mind of a man. That Europe, with all its effort and all its selfish reasons for so doing, cannot understand Asia seems to be conceded by those who have given the subject their attention; and Kim, half Irish, half Hindoo, is in the bewildering position of not understanding himself. Now the pride and simplicity of the European routs the subtlety and exclusiveness of the Asiatic; now the tenderness and patience of the Asiatic puts the rugged brutality, the inquisitive indelicacy of the European to shame. He stood on his feet to think, like a European, but he thought in Hindustanee. He could be humble, like an Asiatic who has learned the meaning of service, but he could fight like a European, and at times he had an inclination—nay, even a sort of nostalgia—for the truth.

"LOUIS, YOU ARE MY KING!"

—Final scene from "Lazarre," by Mrs. Catherwood.

"Lazarre," Mrs. Catherwood's romance of the Lost Dauphin, is certain to advance her fame as an author. She has chosen a most engaging subject and handled it with delicacy and care. The book in the short time it has been published has met with an astonishing success, and is already mentioned as among the best sellers. The picture herewith reproduced is the last in the book and depicts the last scene, where the Dauphin, or Williams, as he chose to call himself, is embraced by his lady love after he has consummated his supreme act of renunciation. The scene and terms of that renunciation form one of the finest passages in the book.

Kim was the orphan of Kimball O'Hara of the Mavericks, an Irish regiment in her Majesty's service in the East, and upon an occasion, when he had joined his vagabond fortunes to those of a lama, upon a quest for a holy river in which all his sins might be washed away, he came upon his father's regiment and was identified by them by means of a birth certificate, a Masonic document, and other papers. He was placed at St. Xavier's School at Lucknow and was educated there at the expense of the beggar priest, who in his own hill country was a rich abbot. Kim had, meantime, made many friends, among them a Mohammedan horse dealer, a man of much importance, whose trade was used to cover up the fact that he was in the secret service of the government. The existance of this secret service, which, according to Kipling, keeps its agents about the thrones of the petty Kings, at the passes and along the borders, in the bazaars and in the temples, was revealed to Kim quite accidentally, and, having become possessed of that knowledge, he used it with the intelligent selfishness of a European and the cunning of an Asiatic to his own advantage. Those high in authority made his acquaintance, and perceived in his marvelous precocity, in his mixture of tongues and his variety of knowledge and sympathies, a potential agent for the service. He was educated that he might serve the government, and the book, after following his adventures for a time, leaves him upon the threshold of a stirring, if dangerous, career—a career in which he would seldom enjoy the luxury of being a true man, but would nearly always be in disguise or under the necessity of informing upon the enemies to the government, his information being laid against those who were his blood brothers by the tally of at least half the drops of blood in his young body.

It is always a trifle difficult for the Anglo-Saxon mind to give hearty approval to a spy-hero. Perhaps the East Indian blood in Kipling, or at least his environment and his understanding of the Oriental mind, not to say his sympathy with it, lent an enthusiasm to his pen where an American or a native-born Englishman might have faltered in the handling of such a subject. Moreover, Kipling's chief idea, apparently, was to show the workings of this hybrid, alert, curious mind, and a life which called for association first with one race and then with the other was the best possible medium for such an exposition.

No one has ever written fiction which so revealed the almost inexplicable mind of the Asiatic as has Kipling; nor has he ever set forth previously, with so much adroitness and insinuation, the seeming inconsistencies of that mind—now profound almost to divinity, now simple almost to puerility; now disdainful of luxury, now rioting in it; now fairly dissociated from the material by the cultivation of spirituality, now besotted with sensuality; now supine with that deadly enervation of the soul which the children of the old races feel; now swift, fierce, relentless as tigers, virile with such interest as only the men who take vengeance in their own hands and lift themselves above the dull uniformity of law can feel.

If the book is prized for no other reason—and that is hardly conceivable—it must be prized as a close and sympathetic study of the mental characteristics of the two races which inhabit India at present—the millions of brown men and the handful of white ones. If any book upon this subject has equaled it in astuteness or in conveying an impression of the things which are not obvious enough to be quite explained or described, it is difficult to tell what that book may be. As a general thing, Englishmen are silent upon this subject, whether from inability or from disinclination to deal with it is not known. It in no way confirms the suspicion that Kipling's powers are declining. The book fascinates from the first page to the last, hinting as it does at a mode of thought, at a world of custom, as a morale uncomprehended by the European mind.

Charming Child's Story.

"The Lonesomest Doll." By Abbie Farwell Brown. Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

Even the babies have romances written for them nowadays, and one of the most delightful ones that ever came their way is "The Lonesomest Doll," by Abbie Farwell Brown. If one can only divest one's self of the burden of ideas and prejudices accumulated in the long road from 5 to 50 and get back to the point of view of childhood one will have no difficulty in becoming absorbed in this enchanting little idyl, which has to do with two maidens, one royal and one humble, and a doll as grave and ingenious as "Puss in Boots." The lonesomest doll, however, seems a more likely and probable personage than Puss in Boots, and her services to her royal mistress are of a more lifelike kind than those the faithful cat was able to render to his master, the miller's third son.

The story of the doll is this: She was a wonderful doll made of wax and painted by a famous artist in counterfeit of the little Queen Clotilde. Her frock was embroidered with jewels, and the crown upon her head held many precious stones, among them a wonderful pearl. This regal doll was shut up in the treasure chamber and once or twice a year was taken out to look upon her royal mistress, who, however, did not know how to play with her. Indeed, the little Queen had not learned how to play with anything and had never spent an hour of her life with another child. The child of the Chamberlain's porter, little Nichette, heard of this splendid imprisoned doll, and determined to see her and comfort her for all her sorrows, and she waited long for a chance to steal her father's keys that she might have access to the treasure chamber. After a time the chance came to her and she availed herself of it. When she was sitting in the treasure house with her arms about the doll the little Queen discovered her. Then follows a wild adventure, in which the Queen, hungering for a mother's kiss, goes to the child peasant's cottage and conceals herself in Nichette's bed that she may have the good night kiss intended for Nichette. Unfortunately when Marie, the mother, kisses the child good night her elbow presses upon the royal doll, which lies beneath the bed clothes and which gives out a piercing "Mamma." Terrified, the woman discovered a golden-headed changeling in place of her own little brown daughter, and when Pierre, the porter, comes in, rough and vociferous, the little Queen leaps out of the window and runs away. She hides by the roadside and is overtaken by two robbers, who recognise her and carry her away with them. But the jeweled doll, with its shrill cry of "Mamma," terrifies them, too, and, finding they are being overtaken by the soldiers who are everywhere searching for the lost Queen, they release the royal captive, tear the jewels from the doll, and place it in the Queen's arms.

Bruised and with torn clothes, in the darkness, with her mouth bound with handkerchiefs, the Queen sees her rescuers approach and has no way to let them know of her proximity, when she remembers the voice of her doll. She makes the doll cry "Mamma, mamma," and the guard, searching in the brush for a deserted baby, as they suppose, find their Queen. She rides back to the city on the horse of Pierre, the porter, and finds all the people awaiting her. Among them is Nichette, broken-hearted for the danger she has brought to her Queen, but Clotilde throws herself in her little friend's arms, and the two children ride through the city, side by side, in the white chariot brought for the Queen. After that the Queen and her doll were loved by many people, and played in the toy room together with Nichette, and visited at the home of the good peasants, so that all the kingdom came to know their Queen for one who loved true hearts and common folk.

The style is charming, the words so simple a young child can read, and the spirit of romance lurks in every page. The illustrations are by E. Pollak.

Not Too Much Swashbucklery.

"The King's Messenger." By Suzanne Antrobus. Harper & Bros.

"The King's Messenger," which has ushered Suzanne Antrobus into the list of the novelists, is a graceful story and gracefully told. Although of the historical vintage, there are few of the trademarks of swashbucklery upon it, and, accordingly, one is inclined to wonder at the announcement that it is to be scissored and pasted into a dramatic shape. One shudders, too, at the thought of how the pretty, fragile tale will look when it is stripped of literary style, cut down to a skeleton of action, necessarily baldly melodramatic, deprived of the illusion of atmosphere, and padded out with an extra number of encounters for "climaxes."

In the novel there is but one sword bout, and it occurs almost at the end of the narrative, being the easy, if not exactly artistic, way in which the bothersome husband and the plotting enemy of the heroine are disposed of by the authoress. Some readers may suppose that a heroine who needs to be freed from a husband should be the center of a problem novel instead of a costume romance, but Mme. Jeanne Poche is, nevertheless, a winsome body, wholly suited for the surroundings which have been given her. Nor is there anything of guilt in her love awakening, though her coarse and ambitious husband does not inspire it.

The Lady Jeanne is the King's messenger, the King is Cardinal Fleury speaking through the mouth of the Fifteenth Louis, and New Orleans, colony of France, is the scene of action and the place for which the message is destined. It is the delivery of the missive that halts, the messenger weighing little the commands of church and King against the seeming discovery that the message contains an order endangering the man whom she has begun to admire, if not to love—Captain Laville. The threats of the plotter, Rossart, Chief of Police, and an overly-ardent admirer, do not disturb her, and in a rose garden her dangerous romance grows as luxuriously as if it were sanctioned by every convention. Memory of a husband forced upon her in girlhood, and now separated from her by the wide Atlantic, does not restrain her from giving her heart away, though it does keep her from giving her honor with it. Then her husband comes, and she is between duty and love—and the King's message still undelivered. The plot turns in such a way that Captain Laville's life or her own good name seem likely to be sacrificed, but it is at that moment that the surplus characters conveniently take to broiling. Rossart kills the husband, and the King's message, when at last divulged, is aimed, not at the adored Captain Laville, but at Rossart himself. Which clears the stage.

The Heart of the Solitude.

"The Desert." By John C. Van Dyke. Charles Scribner's Sons.

"The Desert," by John C. Van Dyke, is a unique book. It is a series of picturesque dissertations upon the waste places of earth. The heart of the solitude is set forth, the vagrant moods of the wildest and most lonely rivers, and the ways of the creatures who haunt these spots where man may not live—these grim reserves of nature, these peculiar privacies. Mr. Van Dyke has not found the deserts taciturn, and he makes no complaint because all of earth is not to be given over to man for his irreverent handling. One of the keenest and most experienced observers living today, he has scrutinized the desert at every hour of the day and at every season of the year. He knows the voice with which it speaks, its presages, its melancholy, its wild cheer. Moreover, he has brought definite scientific knowledge to assist him in making his observations and his commentations. But in spite of his knowledge, he prefers, apparently, his sense as an artist, and oftenest uses his artistic perception in making up the pages of this curious book. Indeed, he openly defends his preference for illusion over fact. He says:

"It is known, for instance, that Castle Dome, which looks on the Colorado River from western Arizona, is a turret of granite—gray, red, brown, rock-colored, whatever color you please. With that antecedent knowledge in mind how difficult it is for us to believe the report of our eyes, which says that at sunset the dome is amethystine, golden, crimson, or perhaps lively purple. The reality is one thing; but why are not both of them truthful?

"And how shy people are about accepting a pink air, a blue shadow, or a field of yellow grass—sunlit lemon-yellow grass! They have been brought up from youth to believe that air is colorless, that shadows are brown or gray or sooty black, and that grass is green—bottle green. The preconceived impression of the mind refuses to make room for the actual impression of the eye, and in consequence we are misled and deluded."

The following shows how kindly an inclination Mr. Van Dyke has for the places which most men reject as unworthy of their occupancy:

"How silently, even swiftly, the days glide by out in the desert, in the waste, in the wilderness! How 'the morning and the evening make up the day,' and the purple shadow slips in between with a midnight all stars! And how, day by day, the interest grows in the long overlooked commonplace things of nature! In a few weeks we are studying bushes, bowlders, stones, sand-drifts—things we never thought of looking at in any other country. And after a time we begin to make mental notes on the changes of light, air, clouds, and blue sky. . . . Lying down there in the sands of the desert, alone and at night, with a saddle for your pillow, and your eyes staring upward at the stars, how incomprehensible it all seems! The immensity and the mystery are appalling; and yet how these features attract the thought and draw the curiosity of man." Mr. Van Dyke's style is too well known to require compliment.

Hints for Young Writers.

"Talks on Writing English," by Arlo Bates. Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

The first book of Arlo Bates' "Talks on Writing English" was devoted largely to the more technical details of the subject, and while the second series of talks, just published, also in parts concerns itself with much that is purely grammatical, still "takes up the more delicate matters of composition which would have been out of place in the earlier and more general course." This second book is made up from material used in a lecture course by Mr Bates. It is not too much to say that, coming as it does from a college man, a college professor, and himself a successful author of fiction, verse, and essays, the book should be an invaluable aid to young writers—invaluable if they read no farther than the end of the opening paper on "First Considerations." The sound sense of this chapter, and also that in the one on "Composition and Revision," cannot be too highly commended.

The matter contained in the paper called "Little Foxes" is of such nature that hardly a public writer of today but could be benefited by it. Another valuable bit of advice, instructive without in the least being pedantic, is devoted to the use and misuse of gerunds and participles. Mr. Bates says with truth that "the finesse of style may be said to depend largely, and indeed chiefly, so far as word forms are concerned, on the use made of participles, particles, and parallel construction." What he has to say under these heads is, as he says, "instantly practical," and certainly makes for greater refinement and delicacy of expression. The examples he gives of the use and abuse of these grammatical forms are, as a rule, from well known and contemporary writers, and Mr. Bates makes his point in each case clearly and without finickiness. Unlike many writers of similar books, he does not make the untrained reader rise from a perusal of the volume feeling hopeless of succeeding where so many distinguished authors have erred. He does not hold that Thackeray, for example, is not a genius simply because he is slovenly in places. On the contrary, it is shown that Pater, the jurist, is unsufferably dull because in remembering the style he forgot the matter. Some excellent hints are to be found in "End and Beginning," "The Point of View," "Figures," "Description," "Narration," and "Dialogue." The pleasing thing about the book is the general absence of that tone of didactic finality which characterises books of this sort written by pedagogues, that oracular decision which seems to indicate that the last word has been said upon a subject, which as a matter of absolute fact rejects all hard and fast rules save those governing grammar and good taste.

To Please the Little Ones.

"The Wouldbegoods." By E. Nesbit. Harper & Bros.

"The Wouldbegoods," by E. Nesbit, is what the children would call "a gorgeous" story. It has to do with the efforts of eight young persons to live up to the ideals they have inherited or created for themselves and the difficulties they encounter in pursuit of this laudable endeavor. In spite of the English environment and the distinctly English phraseology of these immature knights errant, there is a quality to the book which seems to be peculiarly American. One is reminded at moments of two or three American authors—Louisa M. Alcott, Frank Stockton, and Mark Twain.

It would seem as if the author of this roaring story had read all of these excellent writers and been influenced by them and not to his detriment. This is not saying that the book is lacking in originality, for the situations and escapades are a liberal education in innocent folly. The book has 312 pages—a most unusual number for a child's book—and it is never dull. It is quite safe to say that the older members of the family will enjoy the volume quite as much as their juniors—perhaps even more. For example, the octogenarian room—so called because it had eight sides—might move the risibilities of a person saddened by geometrical knowledge than one unburdened by such learning.

The struggles of the Wouldbegoods to adapt themselves to a naughty world and their still greater struggles to adapt their ideals to their inclinations is irresistible; and along with the fun is a wholesome sweetness which makes one love the children. The author is not scrupulous in his grammar, but he has so much to say of an enjoyable and inimitable character that the propriety of his language is a tertiary consideration.

Brief Mention.

The St. Nicholas Magazine announces a new departure for the coming year. It will no longer have serial stories, but every other issue of the magazine will contain a long story complete in that one number. The new departments, "Nature and Science" and "St. Nicholas League," have attracted the attention of educators everywhere and have done much to increase the circulation of St. Nicholas.

M. R. Morfill, the distinguished historian and authority on Russian history, has just completed a history of Russia from Peter the Great to Alexander II., founded on the study of original documents, and though necessarily brief it promises to be the most comprehensive narrative in existence. Considerable attention has been paid to the social and literary development of the country and the recent expansion of Russia in Asia. James Pott & Co. will be the publishers for America.

Ex-Judge Henry E. Howland, one of the best known New York lawyers and after-dinner speakers, has written an article for the October Century on "The Practice of the Law in New York," explaining in untechnical language the present methods of procedure in the courts. The artist Keller has illustrated it with typical scenes in courtrooms and lawyers' offices, and there are also reproductions of two of Sargent's portraits, including one of Ambassador Choate. Mr. Howland declares the slowness and uncertainty of the administration of criminal justice in New York to be a serious evil, and points out how it could be remedied.

The advance comment on Channing Pollock's novel, "Behold the Man," which shortly comes off the presses of the Neale Publishing company, Washington, evidences a notable degree of expectancy on the part of literary critics. The Cleveland Plain Dealer remarks that "Mr. Pollock's former works speak well for his development of characters, locale, and plot," while the Boston Herald declares "anything by Mr. Pollock will be awaited with interest." A writer in the Washington Times, who appears to have had a preliminary peep at the manuscript of the tale, says "It has unquestioned merit, but, even without that, must create a genuine sensation."

"Tolstoy and His Problems; Essays by Aylmer Maude," is a book which comes at an opportune time, as Tolstoy is probably the most talked about man today.

Mr. Maude, having had the privilege of Tolstoy's friendship for many years, is well acquainted with the views of the great Russian novelist; he does not attempt to praise Tolstoy's views, but merely explains them.

When first issued the essays were sent to Count Tolstoy who on four different occasions wrote expressing his approval. Of the first essay in the book he wrote "I very much approve of it. It is admirably constructed, and what is most important is given."

The volume will be issued on this side by A. Wessels company.

Miss Zitella Cocke, whose "Grasshopper's Hop, and Other Verses for Children," is among the fall publications of Dana Estes & Co., was born in Alabama. Her first literary work was done on the plantation. With the money received for translations from French and German she was able, when only 17 years old, to put her younger sister in school. Before coming to Boston, seven years ago, Miss Cocke had had poems accepted by the Century and Harper's, and had published anonymously numerous prose translations. Her first book of verse, "A Doric Reed" (Copeland & Day, 1895), was cordially received by the press. Many of Miss Cocke's verses for juvenile readers originally appeared in St. Nicholas and the Youth's Companion, and a number of them which have been set to music are widely popular. Miss Cocke is a resident of Boston, and is a constant contributor to the magazines.

William L. Scruggs, the author of "The Colombian and Venezuelan Republics," which is now being read by those interested in the controversy between those two South American countries, is a Southerner by birth, and at present a resident of Atlanta, Ga. From 1873 to 1877 he was United States Minister to Colombia, having been appointed before he was 30 years of age. From 1877 to 1883 he was a United States Consul stationed in China. From 1883 to 1887 he was again Minister to Colombia, the grade of the mission having been raised to that of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary during his incumbency. From 1889 to 1893 he was Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Republic of Venezuela. From 1894 to 1899 he was Special Agent and General Counsel (or "Legal Adviser," as the commission styled it) of the Venezuela government, and intrusted with settlement of the Guiana boundary dispute with Great Britain—a controversy which he finally brought to friendly arbitration. No one knows the industrial and political conditions of Colombia and Venezuela better than he. The volume referred to is published by Little, Brown & Co. of Boston.

"Blossom Hosts and Insect Guests" is a complete compilation of all that William Hamilton Gibson ever contributed, either in the way of text or illustration, to the subject of the fertilization of flowers, a branch of botanical knowledge which he was the first American to investigate. The book is not only valuable on the side of theory, but in its practical application to many of the common wild flowers of the Eastern States, as all the information, at present available, for some 260 species is tabulated in a form convenient for reference in a supplement of about twenty pages. Gibson's "Blossom Hosts and Insect Guests" is the first volume of Gibson's nature studies, a second volume treating of birds and a third of insects being now well under way. These books consist of selections from William Hamilton Gibson's works, edited, with a special view to their use as supplementary readers in schools, by Miss E. E. Davis. The series was planned a little more than a year ago for publication by the Harpers, Mr. H. D. Newson, the President of Newson & Co., being at that time in charge of their educational affairs. At Mr. Newson's solicitation the Messrs. Harper kindly consented to go forward with the enterprise, by arrangement with Messrs. Newson & Co. after the organization of that house.

The proverbial last straw in the matter of historical fiction, so-called, would seem to be Mr. C. F. Pidgin's "Blennerhassett" (C. M. Clark Publishing company, Boston). Purporting to be a defender of Aaron Burr, his arraignment is ten-fold more terrible than any his detractors ever made, and the Lucifer-like figure of history, fallen from its high place through overambition, is not recognizable in the base, intriguing craven of this narrative. For the Burr of history a stint of admiration is mingled with the ignominy, but this man merits but contempt. The only feeling akin to pity is excited by the fate of Theodosia Alston, and Burr's love for this beautiful daughter is the only phase of his character his tardy defender has succeeded in beatifying. Even sympathy is withheld from the unfortunate Blennerhassets, Blennerhasset being portrayed as an insufferable pedant, devoid of the high idealism of the Irish patriot, and spurred on to a part in Burr's schemes by his wife, shown as a brilliant and ambitious woman, tired of the seclusion of her island home, and dreaming of an empire of which she should be the Queen. Out of Mr. Pidgin's failure some cleverer writer may see an opportunity to surround the tragic figure of Burr with a halo of romance that shall lessen the obloquy of his name. Even were the present analysis of his character acceptable, the language is not. The book will not bring its author fame nor change in any way the pages of history. Mr. Venable's "A Dream of Empire," covered the subject in a much better way.

SLIGHT GAIN IN WHEAT.

MORE FROSTS DO NOT PREVENT LOSSES IN CORN.

Changes in the Grain List Are Unimportant, the Chief Speculative Activity Being in Provisions, Which Have Sharp Advance Under Covering by Shorts, Lard Leading the Way—Higher Prices for Hogs a Factor—Packers Are Buyers.

Wheat alone of the leading grains failed to show a loss at the end of the session, responding more than corn to the sympathetic influence of a strong market in hog products. The gain was small, however, only ⅛c of a total advance of ¼@⅜c being left at the final tap of the bell. The firm belief that wheat is worth more money in comparison with other grains and provisions was the underlying motive of what investment buying there was, but this was by local operators and not in sufficient volume to lift and sustain the price against the pressure of hedging sales for the Northwest, offerings of that character appearing on all hard spots and forcing the final reaction. December opened at 71¼c, sold down to 70⅞c and up to 71⅝c, reacting to 71⅛@71¼c. September closed at 69c and May at 74⅝@74¾c.

Dec. Wheat Range.

Opening prices were a shade higher on steadiness at Liverpool and the fact that receipts in the Northwest, 1,113 cars for two days, did not look excessive, compared with 409 cars for one day last year, while local receipts were only 163 cars. Reports of good export sales at Duluth and of a sharp flour demand at Minneapolis encouraged longs and there was some buying on an Argentine cable to a New York exporting house, saying: "All crops suffering from drought. Unless rains come soon very serious." The fact that crop reports from South America are as contradictory as they well can be was shown by a Broomhall cable announcing: "Argentine weather all that can be desired for all crops and all crops in satisfactory condition." The reaction from best prices was made not alone on Northwest selling but on the clearances, which, though 806,000 bu for the day, were only 3,840,000 bu for the week, much the smallest for any week since July 1, and comparing with 6,648,000 bu the previous week and 3,536,000 bu last year. The primary receipts for two days were not burdensome at 1,829,475 bu. The Price Current called attention to the liberal marketings in the Northwest and the restricted offerings by holders. Brosseau, Dunn, and Comstock were the leading buyers, with pit traders playing the short side. Argentine shipments were small at 192,000 bu. Liverpool futures were unchanged to ¼d lower, compared with a 1c break here Wednesday, and spot was ½d lower. Antwerp came unchanged. Except for the Duluth claims the cash demand was reported dull everywhere. There were no sales locally and only 160,000 bu at the seaboard.

Erratic Corn Market.

Corn started in at a slight advance from the previous close on frosts in Kansas and Tennessee and lighter Argentine shipments, but the market met the liquidation of a good sized local line, which was poorly absorbed. However, on the break there was short selling by pit traders and on scattered commission buying, and the sharp advance in provisions shorts covered freely, and there was a reaction of ⅝c. But on this bulge there was free selling by the interest which bought so largely on Tuesday, and the market turned weak again, closing near the bottom at net losses of ⅛-¼c. September closed at 56⅝c. December sold from 58½c to 59⅜c, closing at 58⅝c, and May closed at 60⅜-½c.

The Kansas frosts did not have much effect on the pit mood, the theory being that there was not much corn in that section which could be injured, and a large section of the local trade was inclined to accept the dictum of the Price Curren that "corn yield is not appreciably affected by frosts." Predictions of fair and warmer weather through the corn belt also hurt the price, although all the damage frost can do to the crop has probably been done already. The leading holders were confident a few days more would reveal large losses in yield, but were not attempting to bull the market. The early selling which hurt was for Robson and through Barrell. On the last bulge Schwartz-Dupee were sellers. Provision interests were buyers on the theory that with hogs selling at $7.27½ per 100 lbs corn is worth much more money for feeding on the farm and will not come to market. Country acceptances were somewhat more liberal, but still small, and Kansas City was again outbidding Chicago in western Iowa. There was a fair cash demand, mainly from Philadelphia, with sales aggregating 300,000 bu, and the seaboard reported 80,000 bu taken for export. Clearances were 242,683 bu for the day, but for the week only 611,000 bu, compared with 771,000 bu the week before and 2,134,000 bu last year. Receipts for two days at primary points were small at 479,437 bu, and local cars were 197, with only 4 contract, but 495 are estimated for today. Argentine shipments fell to 928,000 bu. Liverpool futures were steady, spot ¼d higher.

Shorts Active in Hog Product.

About the only sensation of the day was furnished by the provision pit, in which there was an urgent short demand for both September and October product, and in a lesser degree for the January delivery. The buying pressure at one time put September 5c premium over October, a condition which does not often prevail. The net advance in September lard was 42½c, in October 40c, in January 22½c, and in ribs 15c on October and 20c on January. The short interest, a large one in the whole list, made itself apparent soon after the opening and was pronounced in its activity throughout the session. It was, however, a much scattered interest and apparently a hard one to fill up because of the scarcity of offerings. At such times as the price proved attractive to holders a little property came out, but in a general way the offerings were scant. Owing to the steadiness with which the demand kept up there was not much reaction in prices at the close. Both the foreign markets on hog product and the local stocks of the same were against the shorts. Liverpool lard was quoted 50s, a higher point than it has reached in recent years. Local lard stocks are 10,000 tcs smaller than a year ago and 182,400 tcs under last year's supplies at this time. The day's shipments of cured meats were 2,593,000 lbs, against 4,108,000 lbs a year ago, and of lard 1,274,000 lbs, compared with 3,676,000 lbs last year.

An early advance in oats was not quite sustained, closing prices showing a loss of ⅛@¼c. An elevator demand made itself apparent early, this carrying December up to 36⅞c and May to 39c, but with its satisfaction came a reaction and the final loss noted. Trade was only moderately large. Receipts were only 92 cars, where 110 were expected. The estimate for today is 230 cars. The seaboard cleared 32,200 bu.

Rye was about firm, and followed the ups and downs of the more important grains. December sold at 56½c, at 56c, 56½c, 56⅜c, and was finally quoted at 56c bid. September was offered at 1½c under December, with 1¾c under bid.

Barley was firm without quotable change, a good demand existing for desirable grades and offerings being sufficient for trade requirements. Screenings sold at 36@45c, thin barley 50@53c, fair 53@54c, good 55@57c, and choice 58@60c.

Timothy was dull but steady. September selling at $5.45 and October at $5.25. The general cash range was $4.50@5.00. Contracts clover was called nominally $8.75.

Flaxseed was steady all around, with a moderate trade in October from $1.48@1.49. December was $1.46 and September $1.62 asked in small lots, and 2c lower in round lots. There were sales of No. 1 Northwestern at $1.64 and $1.63, and of Southwestern at $1.61.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Estimated receipts for today are 200 cars wheat, 475 cars corn, 230 cars oats, and 20,000 hogs.

There were sales of No. 3 white oats on track at May price and a shade better.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 192,000 bu, compared with 624,000 bu last year. Total shipments since Jan. 1 are 29,538,000 bu, compared with 65,018,000 bu for the same period last year.

Argentine exports of corn for the week were 928,000 bu, a falling off of 432,000 bu from the previous week and comparing with 384,000 bu last year. Since Jan. 1 Argentine has exported 32,600,000 bu, compared with 19,020,000 bu last year. The visible supply at Argentine ports was 1,840,000 bu, a loss of 368,000 bu from the previous week, but larger by 1,130,000 bu than the corresponding date in 1900.

A. H. Bliss spent a day in Ogle County, Ill., and came back a firm believer in the proposition that corn has been injured greatly by frost. "The corn all along that section in the bottom lands," he said, "needed fifteen to twenty days to mature, even the cobs being soft, and it has been 'cooked' by the frost. The farmers throughout there say the frost has caused a loss of 25 to 50 per cent of the growing crop."

The Iowa crop bulletin for the week ending Sept. 16, 1901, says:

"Corn harvesting operations have been retarded by showery weather, but the work is being pushed rapidly as possible in all sections, and a large amount of forage of the best quality will be secured in the corn fields. The bulk of the crop is now beyond danger of injury by frost, and practically all of it will be well matured with a few more days of warm and dry weather. The crop as a whole is likely to exceed any official estimate yet put forth for this State. The pastures are much benefited, and the potato crop will probably receive some help from the rainfall."

Provision Shorts Run In.

An altogether unusual movement in the September and October deliveries of lard attracted enough attention to make that pit the leader in speculative interests. A sharp short demand sprang up for this product, bringing with it an equally quick advance in values. It required but a couple of hours for September to sell up from $9 87½ to $10.25, with October less than 5c under it. Closing figures showed a net advance for the day of 42½c and 40c respectively. The demand was so scattered as to have less special significance than would otherwise have attached to it, but packers—at least the brokers who usually represent them—were doing the bulk of the buying. The Anglo company was a big buyer of ribs, taking about 1,000,000 lbs. Armour bought the deferred delivery of both lard and ribs. Fort, presumably for the Continental, bought all three deliveries. Hately, who frequently represents exporters, bought October and September lard. Geddes sold quite a lot of ribs on the advance, and there was talk that these were for Armour, who was earlier put down as a buyer. Wolff was quite a buyer of ribs, and it was said the English traders were getting off the short side of both deliveries of lard. Cash lard was at a premium over October all day, quite an unusual circumstance. The general pit belief is that the packers, who are supposed to know most about the hog situation and the conditions of lard supply and demand, are as badly on the short side of the market as any of the rest of the traders. The shorts are in a bad position from any point of view. Liverpool is quoting lard at 50s, the highest point on record. Lard stocks are unusually light and are not being added to. The consumptive demand is heavy, and nearly all packers, in-

BANKS GAIN MORE CASH.

FORECAST INDICATES AN INCREASE OF $8,927,409.

Shipments to Interior During Four Stock Exchange Days Are Heaviest of Season—Amalgamated Copper Directors Declare Regular Dividend of 1 1-2 Per Cent, but Omit Usual Extra Disbursement — Full Report of American Linseed Company for Year

A large gain in cash holdings is indicated by the New York bank statement forecast. Known movements of money show an increase of $8,927,409. Call rates were easier in New York yesterday at 4 per cent, which was the ruling and the last rate. Money closed at 4 to 4½ per cent.

The general feeling is that the prompt measures adopted by the Secretary of the Treasury and the prospect of extensive gold imports, a small one being announced yesterday, will prevent a stringency and enable money to work easier than indications a few weeks ago promised.

"Considering the fact that there were only four Stock Exchange days in the week ending at the close of business yesterday, the shipments of money to the interior were the heaviest of the season, aggregating $5,380,256, against shipments of $3,737,818 last week and $3,869,500 in the week before that. The receipts were $2,460,665, making a loss on this week's movement of $2,919,591, compared with receipts last week of $2,894,450.

"The loss of the New York Subtreasury to the banks up to Thursday night was $11,847,000. Last week the Subtreasury collected on its own account $307,000 and the previous week $2,534,000. The Subtreasury statement up to Thursday night showed the following disbursements: Bonds purchased, $12,476,965; pensions, $1,900,000; Pacific gold, $775,871. There was transferred by telegraph to the interior through the Subtreasury $760,000."

No Extra Dividend on Copper.

The problem as to what dividend Amalgamated Copper stock would pay this quarter was settled yesterday by the declaration of the regular disbursement of 1½ per cent. The usual extra ½ per cent for the quarter was omitted.

The directors who resigned from the Amalgamated board at the time of the absorption of the Butte and Montana mines to avoid entanglements under the injunction suit in New Jersey, as they were directors of the companies absorbed, were reëlected. H. H. Rogers was reëlected President. The board now is as follows: H. H. Rogers, F. P. Olcott, Robert Bacon, James Stillman, William Rockefeller, William G. Rockefeller, Anson Flower, and A. C. Burrage.

The New York Central railroad has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent, payable on Oct. 15.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railway has declared the regular dividend of 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock, payable on Oct. 21.

The New York and Harlem railroad street car line has declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent, payable on Oct. 1.

The General Chemical company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable on Oct. 1.

American Linseed's Heavy Losses.

The annual report of the American Linseed company has been made public and shows substantially the results published recently. After the first seven months of operations the inventory showed a loss of $858,469 and the $5,000,000 fund turned over to the Reorganization committee had shrunk to $4,141,530. Of this sum $270,812 was one quarterly dividend on the preferred stock. A further loss of $841,530 during the seven months was not shown in the inventory, but involved in current contracts, so that the total loss for the period was $1,700,000, which reduced the cash capital to $3,300,000. This decrease was made up on the books by an increase in the book value of the plants.

Earnings of the company during the year ended on Aug. 1, 1900, were $2,184,458, and dividends aggregating $1,136,625 were paid out of this, leaving $1,047,833. Adding this balance to the previous cash capital of $3,300,000 made cash assets at the beginning of the year of $4,347,833.

In the year ended on Aug. 1, 1901, the company's net loss was $1,402,491. This was caused by heavy losses in several items, amounting to $2,335,178. Against that sum $932,686 manufacturing profits were deducted, leaving the net loss of $1,402,491. The total of $2,335,178 was made up as follows: Seed sales, $1,208,053; dividend paid on Sept. 15, 1900, $293,125; expense of indemnity, $60,000; bonds, $690,000; shrinkage in value of treasury stock, $72,000.

Gold Imports.

The beginning of a gold import movement was announced yesterday. Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. have engaged $500,000 at Paris, which will be brought over on the steamship Champagne, sailing today. Exchange is not yet at import point, but it is estimated that gold could be brought from Paris at a small profit if exchange rates were a little easier.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Under the leadership of Amalgamated the local market today pursued an irregular course. The fluctuations in Amalgamated were of an extremely variable character, owing to conflicting reports regarding the action on the dividend. There was evidence at times of manipulation in the issue. New York figured as an early seller of the stocks, while Boston was the buyer. Amalgamated opened fractionally weaker at 105½ and then receded still further to 104⅛. A rally carried it to 108½. Aside from the movement in Amalgamated the 10-point bulge in Erie Telephone was the feature of the day. Call loans, 4½@5 per cent; time loans, collateral, 5 per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent; clearing-house loans, 4 per cent.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says: The British reverses in the Transvaal exerted a depressing influence on the stock market at the opening today, with the result that initial prices were generally lower. Then American stocks showed strength and the market rallied somewhat in sympathy. Tintos sold down to 52⅝ on rumors that the Amalgamated Copper company is overstocked with material. American stock opened up firm and then eased off on liquidating sales. Prices in turn hardened in the early afternoon and were buoyant at the close on New York's all round support. Gold to the extent of £50,000 has been sent to Egypt.

Money on the Continent.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Prices were irregular on the bourse today and had a heavy tendency. There were some repurchases at the last hour and the market closed with prices slightly better. Rentes were offered. Foreigners were supported, especially Spanish 4s and Brazilians, owing to better exchange. Metropolitans and Thomson-Houstons were heavy. Rio Tintos were weak on the fall in copper, but were steadier at the close. De Beers and Kaffirs relapsed on the south African war news, closing with a slight recovery.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Prices opened weak on the boerse today owing to the British reverses in south Africa. The unsatisfactory reports in connection with home industries caused banks and industrials to droop. Canadian Pacifics were easier. Transvaal rails relapsed.

Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—Today's statement of the Treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $187,409,914; gold, $105,940,739; silver, $22,051,478; United States notes, $9,910,550; Treasury notes of 1890, $157,263; national bank notes, $9,113,529.

MARKET TONE IRREGULAR.

AMALGAMATED COPPER CAUSES CONSIDERABLE FLUCTUATION.

Differences of Opinion Regarding Dividends to Be Declared Send Prices Up and Down the Scale—Dealings for Day Amount to Nearly Fifth of Total Transactions on the Floor—Interior Taking Money from the East—Bond Purchases Are Beneficial.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The stock market today displayed some irregularity at intervals owing largely to extraordinary and erratic movements in Amalgamated Copper, but the sentiment in the main was confident and the tone at the close steady, a majority of the list showing net gains. Amalgamated Copper opened a shade higher, at 106, declined 2 points, then advanced an extreme 4½ per cent, reacted 3 points, and left off at a net gain of 2 per cent, at a recession of a point from the best figure of the day. It overshadowed every other individual issue, counting for more than one-fifth of the entire dealings, the transactions exceeding 148,000 shares.

The price of the stock appeared to be governed by the slightest conflicting opinions regarding the action likely to be taken by the directors on the dividend question. The final burst of strength was due to a confident assertion just before the close of business that the dividend would be maintained. Some time after 3 o'clock official announcement was made that the management, being restrained by injunction from collecting a large sum of money from the Boston and Montana Mining company, which it purchased some months ago, had decided to omit the ½ per cent usually declared, in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 1½ per cent.

London was again a seller in this market, its offerings on balance being estimated at about 40,000 shares. Its action appeared to be chiefly due to a desire—which was also shared by many local operators—to secure profits on purchases made within a week. The temper in British financial circles was reported less cheerful than of late, owing to the reverses sustained in the Transvaal and the expectation of early withdrawals of gold by the United States. An advance of ¼d in the London market, to 76s 5¾d, in the price of American eagles, at the moment makes purchase of eagles cheaper in the Paris market, and accordingly an engagement of $500,000 at that center for import to New York was announced today.

At the time the Clearing-House committee of the associated banks made appeal to Secretary Gage to release a part of the money that was being locked up unnecessarily in the Treasury vaults to the detriment of the business interests in the country, superficial critics deprecated the step as an admission of weakness by the banking community. The known movements of money for the week published today indicate the wisdom of the appeal, as, but for the timely relief afforded, the cash resources of the local banks would by this time have been reduced to nominal proportions.

Although the week contained only four active banking days the direct shipments by the banks to the interior by express were the largest in any week so far this season, exceeding $5,300,000, or $2,919,591 in excess of the receipts. This loss in cash to the interior was much more than offset by payments by the Treasury department in excess of its collections, amounting to $11,847,000. The preliminary estimates allow for one day less in the bank statement week than will actually be reflected in tomorrow's statement of averages. In addition, today's bond purchases by the Treasury department exceeded $2,000,000. The sterling exchange market was a shade firmer, although the closing was a little below the highest figures.

The aggregate dealings in stocks were considerably lighter than on Wednesday, while the transactions in railway bonds showed an increase of approximately $1,500,000. Southern Railway common was again the leader of the railway list in extent of business, with Erie common and Union Pacific following in the order named. All three scored fractional net gains, although the final figures, except in the case of Erie, showed concessions from the highest prices. This was true also of St. Paul, Ontario and Western, Norfolk and Western, Southern Pacific, Atchison common, and Pennsylvania railroad. The last named left off more than a point under the early highest price.

In the forenoon operations New York Central scored an extreme advance of nearly 3 per cent, of which only a fraction was retained at the finish. Belief in a plan providing for the welding together of all of the Vanderbilt properties is growing, and speculative sentiment is that such a combination will have a sympathetic favorable influence upon the general market.

In the less active issues Rock Island, on transactions of 1,400 shares, showed a net gain of 3¼ points, Missouri, Kansas and Texas preferred and Toledo, St. Louis and Western preferred rose 1¼ net each, Lake Erie and Western preferred 4⅝, Chicago Terminal preferred and common 2 and 1⅛ per cent respectively, and Wheeling and Lake Erie issues recorded net improvements of 2 to 3½ per cent.

In the industrial list trading, aside from Amalgamated Copper, was generally light. The United States Steel issues were neglected and left off practically unchanged. Consolidated Tobacco 4s rose nearly a point and American Can issues made further progress upward.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The principal incident in today's stock market was the recurrence of the consideration of speculators to the money market outlook. The unexpectedly heavy movement of currency to the interior for the week by express, as reported by the banks, was the immediate cause of this development. The early advance in the stock market was checked when the published estimates made their appearance and prices sold off, practically wiping out the earlier gains. The estimates do not include today's operations, and as yesterday was a holiday and practically no business was done on Saturday, the showing is for only four days. Yet the shipments of money to the interior by banks were the heaviest of any week in the season, reaching $5,380,256, compared with $3,737,818 last week. Allowing for the receipts the net loss by the banks on the express movement was nearly $3,000,000.

The announcement late in the day of an engagement of $500,000 in gold at Paris for import had only a slight effect on the market, as the exchange rates are considered too high to bring any considerable amount of gold yet. The violent and erratic fluctuations in Amalgamated Copper were also a disturbing influence in the market. This stock sold as low as 104 and then rallied to 108⅛.

Railroad bonds were moderately active and strong. Total sales, par value, $3,489,000.

Close: Money on call steady at 3¾@4½ per cent; last loan and ruling rate, 4 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 5@6 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 484¾@485 for demand, and at 482⅝@482¾ for sixty days. Posted rates, 483½@486. Commercial bills, 481⅝@482¼. Bar silver, 58⅝. Mexican dollars, 45½. Government bonds steady. State bonds steady. Railroad bonds strong.

WEEKLY WOOL MARKET REVIEW.

Trade Has Been Neglected on Account of President's Death, but Roosevelt's Policy Restores Confidence.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 20.—The Commercial Bulletin will say in tomorrow's report on the wool trade of the United States: "The death of the President has cast a temporary gloom over the wool market and only trivial attention has been paid to wool by either buyers or sellers. Absolute confidence reigns in President Roosevelt's tariff policy, and this sentiment, coupled with the smart general advance of 5@10 per cent at the opening of the London auctions on Tuesday has maintained stiff prices here. Of course, the market has not this week responded to the European advance except on some sales of English and Irish wools, which seem to show that holders, even of old lots, in this market are not disposed longer to sacrifice for less than cost of importation. The receipts of wool in Boston since Jan. 1 have been 209,645,145 pounds, against 137,823,765 pounds for the same period in 1900. The Boston shipments to date are 185,456,053 pounds, against sales of 103,453,000 pounds in same period in 1900.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1901.

Saloons and Anarchists. The Excise Commissioners of Newark, N. J., a city which, like Paterson, has become notorious for harboring the most pestilent and outspoken Anarchists, have taken a step which will go far toward driving these pests out of their peculiar haunts and make them less conspicuous and less likely to influence the weak-minded and vicious. Anarchists, as a rule, do no work of a useful kind. Their time is largely spent in saloons. Their meetings are usually held there. Their plots are laid there. It is there they are most likely to meet with those they can use as agents for their nefarious designs. The saloons of Newark have been their resorts, but they will be so no longer, as the Commissioners have resolved, and so notified saloonkeepers, that any one found harboring them or permitting them to hold meetings and make speeches against the government and the good order of the community, or in any way counsel violence, shall not only have his license revoked but shall be debarred from receiving a license to do business in the city again. It would be a wise precaution to take in other cities cursed with anarchism.

The State Street Wreck. Various causes are assigned for the sudden wreckage of the Rothschild department store on Thursday night. The members of the firm are inclined to the belief that the collapse was due to a gas explosion, caused, possibly, by crossed electric wires. Others think that a water tank fell through the floors and in some way caused an explosion. Fire Chief Musham, on the contrary, believes that the dividing wall collapsed because the workmen had not placed proper supports, and that by the giving way the tank came down. If this theory should prove correct it would indicate gross carelessness upon the part of the contractors. The most gratifying feature of the accident, whatever may have been the cause, is that it occurred at night, as was the case in the similar accident in Madison street some months ago. Had it happened in the daytime, with the store filled with customers and employés, the loss of life might have been great, but this exemption does not lessen the duty of all concerned to make a thorough investigation and ascertain the cause.

Perils of Lake Sailors. During the closing weeks of navigation on the great lakes there is almost always to be recorded a series of wrecks and marine disasters of other kinds, which often involve loss of life as well as the destruction of large amounts of property. The current year has been no exception in this direction. Several times within the last month the loss of large lake boats has been reported, and yesterday the climax was reached in the announcement that the big steel steamer Hudson had foundered and gone down in a gale on Lake Superior, and that its crew of twenty-five men had been drowned. It may well be questioned whether ship owners are justified in keeping their boats in commission so late in the season as almost certainly to expose them to the storms which sweep the inland seas at this time of year. Certainly the chance of profit must be large and the risk to life and property less than it appears to a landlubber to make such late trips justifiable from any standpoint. It is also said that many lake Captains do not pay as much attention as they should to the warning signals of the Weather bureau. When there is a great demand for boats a delay of a day or two in starting from port may mean a serious loss in time and earnings, and an ambitious Captain, trusting in the staunchness of his boat, is likely to put out to sea and run the risk of weathering the promised storm. But recent losses have been so numerous and so shocking as to sober even the most avaricious, and to make it clear that the storm signals of the Weather bureau should not be disregarded. The company which will permit its Captains to take heavily loaded boats out in the face of the official storm warnings should be held strictly responsible for whatever may result in the way of loss of life or property.

Boers Grow More Aggressive. Lord Kitchener's recent dispatches to the War office make it apparent that his forces in south Africa are not the only ones which are doing some active "bagging," to use his own inelegant word. The Boers have inflicted three new disasters upon the British, the most important being at Utrecht, near the Natal border, where 200 men were ambushed by the Boers and killed, wounded, or captured. Three British guns were included in this "bag." Another reverse was suffered by General French in an engagement at Elands River Poort, in which he lost [tw]enty-three killed and thirty-one wounded. The total British loss at these two points is [illegible] men and officers, besides the guns and horses. The third disaster reported by General Kitchener occurred at Vlakfontein, where the Boers have captured a company of mounted infantry and two guns, inflicting casualties that include the death of one officer. In addition to this series of reverses there is the significant fact that General Botha, who dealt the blow just noted at Utrecht, is evidently about to make an aggressive raid upon British territory. His threatened invasion has brought new consternation to the inhabitants of Natal. Some weeks ago it was announced officially that the war would come to a formal end on Sept. 15, and any Boers found with arms in their hands after that date would be treated as outlaws and not as foes of war. The proclamation to that effect seems to have stirred the Boers to greater activity than before. Evidently Botha and his men do not share Lord Kitchener's belief in the polite fiction that the war is over. The unfortunate British soldiers whose names have just been added to the long list of south African casualties certainly have had no reason to cherish that theory.

STAMPING OUT ANARCHISM.

With the passing of the first wave of sorrow over the nation's bereavement the thoughts of the people have turned swiftly and instinctively to the punishment of the assassin and the suppression of the class to which he belongs. The passing of more stringent laws against anarchism is the thought that is uppermost in the public mind. How intense is the feeling on this subject may be judged from the sudden and dramatic outburst of popular approval that greeted General Black's reference to it in his address at the Auditorium. The same subject was touched upon in almost every funeral oration throughout the country.

That the national hatred of anarchism aroused by the assassination of President McKinley will take concrete form in various bills in the next session of Congress is certain. No doubt the tragedy will leave numerous marks on our governmental system. It is proper that it should do so, but the subject is one that should be approached in a calm and judicial frame of mind and not in the passionate mood that has led the Virginia constitution-makers to blot out free speech from the State bill of rights. It is fortunate that the tragedy occurred at a time when Congress was not in session. There will have been opportunity for sober second thought by the time that body meets in December.

Many of the suggestions on this subject have been hasty and unwise. Congressman Adams showed the proper attitude of mind when he said: "It may be well to give jurisdiction of such cases to the federal courts. It will not be necessary to change the constitution nor to enlarge the definition of treason nor to abridge the right of free speech." Senator Hoar spoke in the same sensible strain when he said the matter should be dealt with soberly, after the tempest of grief has passed, adding: "We shall go as far as we can without sacrificing personal liberty to repress the doctrine which in effect is nothing but counseling murder." Archbishop Ireland put the thought in oratorical form when he said: "Not against liberty must we unsheath our swords, but against license, that daughter of hell which drapes itself in the robes of the daughter of heaven and dares call itself liberty." Cardinal Gibbons and ex-President Cleveland both referred to the need for the teaching of a better citizenship, more respect for the constituted authorities, and greater horror of any insult or injury to them. This idea was acted upon in a practical and commendable way by Superintendent Cooley in the address which he caused to be read in all the Chicago schools.

There is a general feeling that more stringent measures should be taken to exclude European Anarchists from the United States. Commissioner Powderly of the Immigration bureau is reported to be working upon a bill of this kind. It would be unfortunate, however, if too sweeping a law should be enacted against immigrants. The alien residents of Chicago showed their detestation of Czolgosz and his crime by the part they took in the parade of Thursday. The number of Anarchists among the immigrants to this country is infinitesimal compared with the total. The problem is to exclude none but the unfit. There is a measure of this nature already prepared which may meet the emergency. It was drawn up in 1894 by Secretary Carlisle, amplified by Senator Hill, and reported favorably by the Immigration committee, but it was crowded to the wall in the rush and excitement over the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill. The measure is moderate, effective, and well matured. Congress might do well to consider it before doing anything more radical. In any case, the whole subject of legislation against anarchism should be approached with caution and with a determination not to do any harm to liberty while striking at this vile abuse of freedom. Liberty of thought and political liberty must be preserved. This does not include violence against lawful authority or advocacy of violence or expressions of approval of it. Such advocacy must be restrained by law. It is criminal.

CLOSE UP THE RANKS.

It is time to close up the ranks. With the passing of the funeral pageantry on Thursday comes the call to take up duties and responsibilities for the moment lost sight of in the universal grief. For nearly two weeks the public mind has been in a turmoil, swayed alternately by anger, fear, hope, and sorrow. The ordinary processes of every day life have been interrupted. The regular current of things has been disturbed.

Now the suspense is over. The "well-beloved" President has been laid to rest. Among all the honors which have been paid to his memory there remains still the final one. It is that his countrymen shall take up and carry on their work in the same high spirit in which he laid his down. Let them differ as they will with men in high public office, but let them give such men credit for sincerity and patriotism. Let them "hold up the hands" of those who are called to great responsibilities and let bitter partisanship end with the counting of the ballots.

Let all men of every party learn the lesson of kindliness and sympathy which was the great secret of McKinley's power, and let them carry into their private lives what he taught them in his life. Not even the grief of a nation can long delay the progress of events. Not even the death of a President can permanently affect the onward march of a great people. As an army closes up about a new leader when the old has fallen, so the nation must close up its ranks and go on to meet what the future may have in store.

TWO SCHOOL YARDS.

Shermerville is a little country community three or four miles west of Glencoe, and the road leading thence to Glenview, as much farther to the south, runs between fruitful fields and past a number of attractive farmhouses. From a public point of view, however, the most interesting spots along this highway are two school grounds. In the center of one stands the typical single room schoolhouse, painted white, and possessing nothing noticeable unless it be its green blinds. The small yard itself, however, is noticeable, for it is completely inclosed by a hollow square of soft maple trees perhaps a dozen years old. They temper the season, stand guard night and day over the little temple of learning, and bespeak respect and affection for the spot.

Farther on upon the same road is another schoolhouse, fresher in its white paint, but bare and uninviting in its contrasted destitution of shade. The trees, however, were planted last spring, even around this building, and although they give little shade or shelter as yet, they will soon afford both. They are interesting because they indicate the tree planting movement which, under the stimulus of Superintendent Bright and others, has recently been going on in the 125 country school yards of Cook County. Two years ago perhaps one-quarter of these had trees in them. Today perhaps only one quarter are still without trees.

One of the finest of these yards is the "Wilson" District in the Town of Worth. It has twenty-five or thirty beautiful trees, which were planted twenty years ago by the people of the district, and at an entire cost, as a participant in the work recently stated, of not more than six dollars. Trees are the one inexpensive though permanent decoration, and the belated "quarter" of school yards in Cook County ought all to have tree plantings next season.

THE PRESIDENT'S APPOINTMENTS.

President Roosevelt's appointment of William B. Ridgely of Illinois as Controller of the Currency is a further proof that he intends to maintain the policy and fulfill the desires of President McKinley as nearly as possible. Not only has he retained every member of his predecessor's Cabinet and made no changes in other offices but in appointing Mr. Ridgely he has done what President McKinley desired and intended to do. There is abundant reason to believe that Mr. Ridgely will make an excellent Controller, as he has had large experience in financial affairs. It appears that President McKinley also had intended to appoint Dr. Rixey as Surgeon General of the navy upon the expiration of Dr. Van Reypen's term. The public will approve heartily of President Roosevelt's determination to make this appointment in due time. Dr. Rixey's faithful care of Mrs. McKinley through the trying scenes of the last two weeks has exhibited but one phase of the high qualifications which fit him for such a post. It is also reported that the President will retain Secretary Cortelyou as his own private secretary. It is to be hoped this is correct. Mr. Cortelyou is a man of exceptional poise and executive ability. Among all those who surrounded President McKinley in his last hours the figure of his private secretary stood out in clear relief from first to last. To this man's quick and accurate judgment it was largely due that not an instant of time was lost in performing the operation after the shooting. He was equal to every emergency, never losing his presence of mind, and his devotion night and day was unwavering and always practical. Mr. Cortelyou is a man whom any President well might wish to have at his elbow.

WHERE IS THE POET?

The tragedy at Buffalo sounded the whole gamut of human emotions. Love, hate, fear, anger, sympathy, compassion—all the primal passions were aroused. Nothing could have been more dramatic than the spectacle of a single, cowardly, skulking wretch throwing a nation into tears. Nothing could have been more pathetic than the deep, yet hopeful, silence in which the people waited for the news from Buffalo. Nothing could be more inspiring than the way in which they rallied from the shock and faced the future with the confidence that "God reigns and the government at Washington still lives." Nowhere was ever given a more beautiful example of devotion than that which bound together the President and his wife. Never was a deathbed illumined more brightly by the light of a Christian hope and faith. There was everything to inspire the poet. Yet though yards upon yards of verses have been written, the first poem has yet to appear. Do we lack the poet? Or is the event yet too near for poetic treatment? It may be that the canvas is too large, the picture too heroic in size for poetic treatment. At any rate it would seem that the great tragedy must inspire a poet, if there be one among us, to the writing of something which shall be worthy of the theme.

CZOLGOSZ'S ADMISSIONS.

The editor of a Polish newspaper in Buffalo has at last succeeded in making the wretch Czolgosz open his mouth, and the interview is a significant one in many directions. No theory of insanity will fit his case or tend to account for the deed. The Buffalo journalist, his countryman, affirms that he spoke freely on all subjects except the assassination, and talked intelligently and entertainingly on a variety of other topics, showing no indications of mental aberration but, on the other hand, a high degree of intelligence.

The simple statement of Czolgosz as to the assassination convicts him out of his own mouth as clearly as if he had pleaded guilty in the courtroom instead of maintaining a brutish, sullen silence. He condemns both himself and the hideous system in which he believes. He says, "I killed the President. I am an Anarchist and simply did my duty. That's all I'll say." And that's enough.

It would have been gratifying if some admissions could have been obtained from him clearly indicating a conspiracy and furnishing clews by which the conspirators could have been detected and punished. But if there were such he is keeping the secret to himself. But he has made a most important admission, and one which throws a strong light upon the working of the system. He killed the President because "I am an Anarchist," and as an Anarchist "I simply did my duty."

The law will punish Czolgosz for murdering the President. It also will "simply do its duty," and it will do it promptly. It remains for legislation to devise well-considered schemes for the restraint, if not the suppression, of a system which makes murder the "simple duty" of its advocates.

A Scarcity of Preachers. From McCormick Theological Seminary comes word that there is a somewhat alarming scarcity of theological students. This will be news to the general public, which has been led to believe that the ministry is overcrowded. This statement has been made so often of late years by people who apparently spoke with authority that it is small wonder young men have been discouraged from entering the theological seminaries. The statement that the ministry is overcrowded has been emphasized and amplified, and it has been declared that the present effort of the church is not so much to increase the number of candidates for holy orders as to raise the standard of intellect and character among them. It has been pointed out in the religious press and elsewhere that the old system of paying the living and other expenses of theological students was a mistaken one, because it put a sort of premium on incompetency and idleness, and demands have been made for all sorts of reforms. All this agitation was, of course, based on a sincere wish to make the ministry a stronger and more effective agency for good, but it has also undoubtedly had the effect of driving many young men into other lines of work. Doubtless the present call for more men will be promptly answered, however, and it may be that out of the criticism of the ministry and its members may grow much benefit to the young men who come forward to take up the work.

The Carcass and the Eagles.

Stranger (after the fire)—"What is that undersized policeman doing?"

Shrewd Strategy.

Mrs. Selldom-Holme—"How do you manage to keep your hired help at home when there is a circus parade?"

Mrs. Jenner Lee Ondego—"My husband is a man of considerable influence, you know, and he usually manages to have the procession pass the house."

The two fleas that had been traveling with the menagerie were comparing notes.

Hint for Future Managers.

"You bought nearly everything that was sold at auction at that church bazaar," snapped the wife of the rich musical crank, "and bid twice what the things were worth."

"What did they recommend?" asked Brooks.

"Quinine."

THE SECOND DUTCH PRESIDENT.

A Knickerbocker President is something new to present generations of Americans. Van Buren was Roosevelt's one predecessor from the Dutch stock. When that venerable, but little venerated, "public functionary," James Buchanan, was whirled into oblivion by the cyclone of civil war, the Presidency was carried off to the West and out of the social class to which, with only the terrible break in the case of Andrew Jackson, it had been assigned as by prescriptive right. Of the series of Western Presidents succeeding Lincoln, only Harrison had a "grandfather." The two New York Presidents who have broken into the Western line, though of most respectable lineage, could neither of them be said to have been "born in the purple," like Theodore Roosevelt. Like Jackson and Johnson, Arthur was of Irish ancestry, and Cleveland of New England stock. The great Virginian line were all of English stock. The new thing for modern days in Roosevelt's succession is that once again the Dutch stock sits in the President's chair. It speaks volumes for the homogeneity of the nation after all that to this day no representative of the German, French, Italian, Spanish, or other continental race except the Dutch—neither Scandinavian, Slav, nor Hebrew—has been President.—Boston Transcript.

An Autumn Day.

 The light that warmed the flowers to life is gone.

 And nature yields its very heart to tears.

"On what cast of the dice, professor, did you base your forecast?" "Two pairs," said he; "sixes and treys. In all my experience I never knew two pairs to bring rain." Then, again, I am always leery of men that wear long hair in a short-hair age: I always think of a circus; I seem to hear a voice crying in the wilderness: 'Remain seated, ladies and gentlemen! THE COURT OF INQUIRY.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—At the rate we are proceeding with the inquiry we shall be finished by Christmas at the latest. We expect, by the end of September, to get in all the "opinion" of Admiral Sampson's friends, and that taken and ruled out we shall be free to go after the facts. We spent the first day of the inquiry in tin-canning Admiral Howison, and today we filed Admiral Higginson's testimony in the cook stove. Admiral Dewey was a trifle twisted, confusing opinion with fact; but during one of the recesses, taken to allow the larboard watch to swab the toolshop floor, I took George one side. "I wish, Admiral," said I, "to direct your attention to the fact that opinion is one thing and fact another. In your zeal to get at all the facts you have mixed your babies up. The public knows you are not partisan and will overlook your break, but if you will take my advice you will rule out Admiral Higginson's valuable opinion." "I guess you're right," said George, and when the session was resumed he made short work of the alleged evidence.

We also took some dopey testimony from Captain Harber, which doesn't strike me as being valuable. The Captain thinks he was ten miles from land, whereas Major Wood makes it two miles. We expect to show that Captain Harber was in his cabin during the blockade, playing seven-up, and got his bearings from the boatswain. If we can prove this we shall be able to throw out some more testimony and tin-can Harber.

Making the Desert Blossom

THE announcement that a company of Chicago capitalists has completed arrangements for building a large irrigation plant which is expected to redeem 20,000 acres of arid land in Wyoming marks another step in the new inning of the West. Perhaps no single undertaking now under way means so much to the country and to the world at large as the supplying of sufficient water to this great region, aggregating in area over four-tenths of the total area of the country, and over which the average yearly rainfall is less than half the average in the Eastern States.

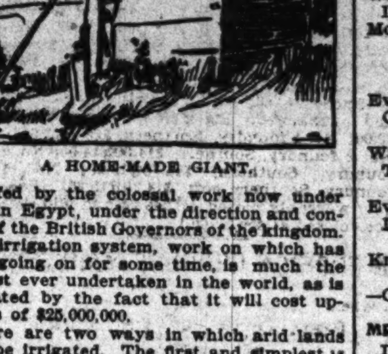

A MERRY-GO-ROUND WIND ENGINE.

Much has been accomplished already. Utah and southern California owe their greatness as agricultural countries to the irrigation ditch, and in a dozen places in Colorado great tracts of land have been redeemed from the desert and made most productive farms. These great plants are as a rule controlled by large companies which have invested thousands in building ditches and reservoirs and which furnish water to a multitude of farmers as gas is furnished elsewhere. In western Kansas individual farmers have largely built their own irrigation plants, and in one corner of the Sunflower State there are more than 1,200 windmill irrigation plants owned by individuals. But after all is said about the wonders which irrigation has accomplished the fact remains that the work still remaining is infinitely greater. Roughly speaking, it is said that there are now not much more than 8,600,000 acres under irrigation, while the total area which it is estimated may be profitably brought under irrigation, and which will not be productive without it, is estimated to be over one hundred million acres.

As a fair example of what irrigation will do for a country and its people Rocky Ford, in the Arkansaw Valley of Colorado, may be cited. Men still young have hunted buffaloes over the site of one of the greatest sugar beet factories in the world, and in a single year Rocky Ford sends to market 300,000 sheep and 800 carloads of melons. All this is due to irrigation, and as a result land has increased in value from $25 to $250 an acre.

In eastern Colorado, near the Kansas State line, the largest irrigation system in the country has just been completed. It will furnish sufficient water for 260,000 acres of land, and more than a million dollars has been spent in its construction. The system consists of five great reservoirs, covering 13,000 acres of land, and provided with seven great canals and a number of subsidiary ditches, with a total length of more than 800 miles.

But even this irrigation system is entirely

dwarfed by the colossal work now under way in Egypt, under the direction and control of the British Governors of the kingdom. This irrigation system, work on which has been going on for some time, is much the largest ever undertaken in the world, as is indicated by the fact that it will cost upwards of $25,000,000.

There are two ways in which arid lands may be irrigated. The first and simplest is by means of the so-called gravity ditches, according to which water is diverted from a river or reservoir and flows by the force of gravity through irrigation ditches to the land it is desired to water. In hilly and mountainous country this system has been generally followed and has proved immensely profitable and successful. But gravity ditches are not practicable on the flat prairie lands which make up so large a part of the arid West. As a means of taking their place it was long ago discovered that over almost all the flat desert country a plentiful supply of water may be reached by sinking shallow wells. Then came the question of finding power to raise this water to the surface, and out of that need has grown a great demand for huge wind mills of curious construction. As for the necessary power, it has been estimated that the free winds which sweep over a single acre of Kansas prairie during a year develop more power than all Niagara during the same length of time.

So immensely important is this question of irrigation that the national Department of Agriculture has devoted much attention to it. Under the direction of the department a corps of experts is kept constantly in the field with the idea of helping the irrigation farmer. One expert, for instance, is kept busy experimenting with pumps and endeavoring to determine what style is best for the purpose of irrigation. Another expert drives over the arid country and determines the depth from the surface to water in various places and also what is the nature of the water supply. All the results of the experiments and tests are printed in pamphlet form by the Agricultural department and are sent free of charge to any one who may be interested.

One of the great benefits of irrigation is often lost sight of. Not only does the irrigation of a considerable section of land reduce the probability of crop failure in that district to a minimum, but it also has a beneficial influence on other fertile lands which lie contiguous to it. The intensely hot winds which blow across the leagues of barren and heated desert have a bad effect on the crops of the fresher and more fertile lands beyond, as was shown by the partial destruction of the Kansas corn crop during the recent summer by the hot winds blowing from the west. When a desert region is redeemed through irrigation the winds which blow over it lose their sting and are tempered to the growing crops. In this way a desert does harm far beyond its own limits and an irrigated district scatters blessings outside its own boundaries.

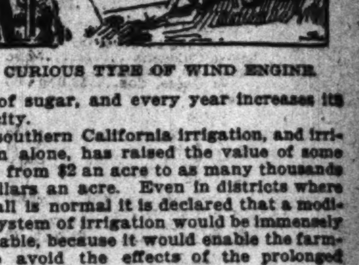

Of the hundred million acres of arid land still remaining in the West the government experts have made a thorough survey, and they report that a sufficient water supply is easily available to redeem 95 per cent of it. Government lands open for free settlement are becoming scarcer, but this enormous tract still remains practically untouched, and simply waiting for the touch of water to blossom. It is said by those competent to judge that forty acres of properly irrigated land in Kansas or Colorado will furnish a surer and a larger competency that 160 acres in the East.

The experience of thousands of irrigation farmers has been practically the same. They pay perhaps $1.25 or $2, or perhaps even $5 an acre for their land in an arid and entirely unproductive state. At an average cost of not more than $100 each of them puts up a tower sixty feet in height and surmounted by a sixteen-foot windmill. This windmill works an eight or ten inch pump in a well twenty feet deep. The water brought to the surface is stored in a reservoir about seventy-five feet in diameter, and which will cost another $100 to build. With such a plant a man can irrigate thoroughly at least ten acres of land. If he plants ten acres with alfalfa he will have water enough for twenty acres in all, for the alfalfa needs to be irrigated only in the winter time, for its long tap roots run down so deep below the surface that they will find a sufficient supply of moisture even when the surface of the ground is baked and hot.

In this way, with an expenditure of not more than $250 for an irrigating plant, a man may raise the value of his land from $2 or $3 to $40 an acre, this being a conservative average of the value of irrigated farming lands along the lines of railroad.

A few years ago there was a big boom in the formation of huge irrigation companies. Many of these companies failed because the plants they built were built in the most expensive way possible, because they were not properly planned and managed, and because they failed to secure for residents on their irrigated lands responsible and intelligent farmers and fruit growers.

More recently several large irrigation companies have been successfully launched, most of them building at the same time a great beet sugar factory, where the product of their irrigated lands might find a quick and profitable market. The Rocky Ford factory produced last year more than 15,000

In southern California irrigation, and irrigation alone, has raised the value of some lands from $2 an acre to as many thousands of dollars an acre. Even in districts where rainfall is normal it is declared that a modified system of irrigation would be immensely profitable, because it would enable the farmer to avoid the effects of the prolonged droughts and other abnormal weather conditions.

"EVEN AS A CHILD."

The Boston Globe prints the following poem by James Whitcomb Riley on the late President McKinley:

Even as a child to whom sad neighbors speak
 In symbol, saying that his father "sleeps"—
Who feels their meaning, even as his cheek
 Feels the first teardrop as it stings and leaps—
Who keenly knows his loss, and yet denies
Moans, drowses—rouses, with new-drowning eyes—
 Even as a child.

 Clasped sudden to the heart all hope deserts—
With tears that blur all lights on sea or land—
 The lip that quivers and the throat that hurts—
Even so, the nation that has known his love
 Is orphaned now, and, whelmed in anguish wild,
Knows but its sorrow and the ache thereof,
 Even as a child.

MR. CORTELYOU'S MEMORY.

During the four and a half years that George Bruce Cortelyou served the late President McKinley, first as assistant private secretary and later as private secretary, he developed a remarkable trait of memory.

As assistant secretary it was part of Mr. Cortelyou's duty when the President was traveling to see the reporters from the various newspapers and to furnish them the particulars of the Chief Executive's plans and movements. Hundreds of reporters throughout the country thus became personally acquainted with Mr. Cortelyou, who not only remembered their faces in connection with the newspapers which they represented but in the great majority of cases remembered the personal names of the interviewers themselves.

One day, when a surprised individual mentioned the fact to Mr. Cortelyou that he must be the owner of a remarkable memory, he said:

"O, I don't know. It seems to me one might as well do it right as otherwise."

Which seems to indicate that the late President's secretary does not realize that he has the remarkable memory which he really has.—New York Times.

HIS LABOR LOST.

Mr. and Mrs. Bixtable resided in an apartment house, but as theirs was the lower flat they exercised a kind of supervision over the little lawn in front. One morning Mrs. Bixtable discovered her husband in the rear of the building engaged in strapping the lawn mower on the handlebar of his bicycle.

"Why, Gerald," she said, "how ridiculous! Don't you know——"

"But——"

"I know what I am doing, Miranda. Don't bother me."

She said nothing more. With a vast amount of work he succeeded at last in tying and strapping the implement across the front of his bicycle and started to trundle the machine out to the road.

Then he made a discovery.

"Why, Miranda," he exclaimed, "it's too wide to go out through any opening we've got!"

"I know it, Gerald," quietly responded his wife. "That's what I was trying to tell you."—Youth's Companion.

Crowned.

 Where loyal peoples marble arches raise;
 Within no palace halls I pass my days,
Before my throne no lords and ladies bend.
No trumpet-tongued salutes my paths attend
 For me no fires of splendid triumph blaze—
I have no mighty kingdom to defend.

Yet I am royal, for thy lips have said:
 "My queen, I love thee even more than life,
 And my believing heart to thee I bring."
So shalt thou place a crown upon my head
 And bring me purple with the name of wife,
 Because thou art my lover and my king.

stead of tiercing lard, are putting it in small packages for the trade. These stocks are now only 40,000 tcs, as against 55,600 tcs on Sept. 1, 62,200 tcs the previous month, and 1,138,000 tcs at this time a year ago. A source of considerable disturbance to the short interest in the provision list has been the country hog situation. Packing for the week at all Western points is only 330,000 head, 10,000 less than two weeks ago. While the decrease is not alarming it shows that hogs are not coming out freely, and tends to confirm the recent government report of a considerable shortage. The best hogs sold yesterday at the yards at $7.25, a record-breaking price. These prices compare with an average of $6.75 at all prominent points during this week, against $6.45 the previous week, $5.35 a year ago, and $4.45 two years ago. Ribs were bullishly affected 15@20c, and were subject to an excellent demand from much the same interests which were buying lard. Armour, it is said, holds the bulk of this product.

FARM PRODUCE TRADE HEAVY.

Dealers, Being Generally Well Cleaned Up, Take Larger Quantities of Produce.

There was a big trade on South Water street yesterday, especially pronounced in poultry, fruit, and some of the more popular vegetables. Supplies were unusually large, no consignments having been rescinded the previous day. Prices were generally steady. An exception was potatoes, which weakened about 5c.

Quotations for round lots were as follows:

Cotton Opens Higher.

Cotton — The market for cotton futures opened firm, with prices 5 to 8 points higher on fairly general buying to cover shorts for Wall street account and on European buying. Liverpool was 2½ higher than was expected, receipts were surprisingly light, the weather South was unfavorable to late cotton and picking, while revised estimates as to the yield this year showed further reductions. But despite the bullish news at hand the market gave way to bear pressure before the end of the first half hour, and January eased off 7 points. Reports that frost had appeared over northern portions of the central and western sections of the belt last night, and a forecast for more frost pretty much over the entire northern district of the belt tonight, started buying to protect oversales. Then came the figures for the amount of cotton brought into sight this week, 177,000 bales, against 224,400 last year, 275,000 in 1899, and 233,000 in 1898. On general buying which followed January advanced from 7.75c to 7.88c. From this level there was some reaction later under profit-taking, but the market as a whole was decidedly firm in the last hour. Trading was more active than at any time of late, and business through commission houses showed an increase. The market was finally steady with prices 8 to 10 points higher. Spot closed steady, 1-16c higher; middling uplands, 8⅝c; middling gulf, 8⅞c; sales, 1,297 bales. Futures closed steady; September, 7.83c; October, 7.81c; November, 7.82c; December, 7.84c; January, 7.85c; February, 7.85c; March, 7.86c; April, 7.86c; May, 7.88c.

Corn-fed Westerns sold at $4.90@6.20; Missouri and Iowa fed Texas, $5.60@6.10; native yearlings, 840@1,069 lbs, $5.25@6.05. About 600 grass Westerns sold steady at $4.25@5.20 for steers and $3.40@3.85 for cows. Ten loads of straight Texas steers averaging 906@965 lbs sold at $3.75@3.80. Native cows ruled steady at $1.50@4.50; heifers unchanged at $2.25@5.00; and bulls firm at $2.00@4.50. Veal calves sold about 25c higher, at $5.00@7.25. Stockers and feeders firm at $2.20@4.30.

Hogs—One load of 279-lb hogs sold to a packer at $7.25, being 5c higher than Wednesday's top. Three loads averaging 287@320 lbs sold at 7.22½. The market was active and prices ruled steady to 5c higher. The better grades ruled the strongest, there being a weak spot in the market for heavy packers. Both packers and shippers purchased freely from the start. Speculators were free buyers and competition was lively on the better grades. Receipts were liberal and the quality good, there being a liberal proportion of choice butchers and prime heavyweights among the arrivals. Most of the offerings sold at $6.80@6.95. Quotations follow:

Selected butchers', 220@270 lbs	6.95@7.20
Selected bacon, 150@195 lbs	6.80@7.05
Mixed grades, 180@240 lbs	6.75@7.15
Heavy shipping, 260@350 lbs	7.00@7.25
Heavy, 280@400 lbs	6.75@6.90
Rough heavy grades	6.50@7.10

Sheep—The best grades of sheep sold at steady prices, but the bulk of the offerings had to go at a further decline of 10c, making a reduction of 40@50c from prices paid one week ago. Lambs sold weak to 10c lower, only a few lots of fancy stock selling above $4.60. Feeding lambs met good demand and sold freely at steady prices, sales being largely around $4.00@4.10. Native sheep sold at $1.50@4.00, bulk $2.80@3.50; Westerns, $3.00@3.50, bulk around $3.40@3.50; native lambs, $2.50@5.00, bulk $3.80@4.50; Westerns, $4.00@4.50, bulk $4.40@4.50.

AGAINST AWFUL ODDS.

FIREMEN FORCED TO FIGHT FOR THEIR LIVES.

Accustomed to Danger, They Disregard Ordinary Precautions—The Story Told by a Survivor.

Fighting in the midst of flames and suffocating smoke, his life threatened by falling walls and timbers, the fireman follows his duty without thought of himself. The thrilling escapes and dramatic incidents of which the public hears are not the least of his dangers. To be roused by the alarm, to dash through all kinds of weather to the scene of disaster and to find himself, after the fierce fight with the flames, drenched and chilled—these are more homely perils, but equally grave. Accustomed to danger and hardship, the fireman often does not take ordinary physical precautions. This was the case with Joseph V. Watson of Astoria, Oregon, who had a narrow escape. He tells the story himself as follows:

"In 1896, while in the fire department, frequent exposure brought on an attack of rheumatism. It grew worse and finally got so bad that I couldn't do any work. I partially lost the use of my right arm and side and suffered the horrible pains that only those who have rheumatism can feel. Part of the time I was confined to my bed. For a while I was under the care of a doctor in Seattle, but he did not do me any good. He only gave me powders to soothe the pain so that I could get some sleep. I also tried massage, but without any relief. Then I went to our regular doctor here, but he could do nothing for me. He said he thought I was slightly touched with palsy.

"Since doctors seemed unable to help me I felt discouraged. But my wife noticed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People advertised in some paper, and so we gave them a trial. This was in 1899, and two months after I began their use I was a well man. I do not need to take any medicine now and I feel like another being. I can candidly say if any person will follow the directions he will be relieved."

Mr. Watson is now engineer in charge of the Hattie, one of the many yachts that ply upon the Columbia River, as hale and hearty a man as one could wish to see, and he attributes it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. His address is No. 468 Irving avenue, Astoria, Oregon.

The cure of the severest cases of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People has occurred all over the land and their power in ordinary cases is proportionately greater. These marvelous vegetable pills go directly to the seat of the trouble and exert a powerful influence in purifying and enriching the blood by eliminating poisonous elements and renewing health-giving forces. They are a specific not only for rheumatism, but for all ailments arising from a disordered condition of the blood or shattered nerves, such as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, nervous headaches, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in boxes at fifty cents a box or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE "WONDERFUL WEBER TONE" IS CELebrated throughout the world and the WEBER PIANO, combining the highest perfection of artistic and mechanical skill in its construction, with the most unyielding durability and the matchless quality of tone which distinguishes it above all its competitors, makes it today the favorite of the artist, the musician, and the discriminating public. We sell pianos exclusively.
We have been making WEBER PIANOS since 1852.
The work comes as near perfection as human ingenuity can make it.
Every piano is personally inspected before leaving our hands. We warrant every piano to be precisely what we say it is.

Agents Wanted.

AGENTS—HONEST WORKERS WANTED. I can and will convince at my own expense that I have the best thing in, on, or out of the earth for the people. A line of articles, absolute necessities, needed by every one, that have no equal, that sell themselves over and over again. I protect my agents; they stay with me because the demand grows and they receive all benefits therefrom. If you've been nipped by fakers, frauds, and sharks who advertise for quick-money SUCKERS and want to make an honest deal with an honest man, who never fails to do more than he promises, who has all the money he needs to conduct his business, to credit his agents, write to me and give me the names of five references that I may know I can safely trust you with goods to start with. No experience necessary, no capital required. Men and women, old or young, make more money selling my articles than any others, and stay selling them, making money and friends always. A permanent, pleasant, profitable, and growing business. No fakers need apply. I refer to all mercantile agencies, to any bank or reputable business concern in Chicago, and before you receive any proposition I must know if you are trustworthy. THEO. NOEL, Chicago.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

Affair Is a Romance of the Siege of Pekin—Bridal Couple Soon to Go to Manila — Miss Elizabeth Frances Patterson and Mr. James Henry Young to Be Married on Thursday Evening — Movements of Chicago People.

Miss Laura Conger and Lieutenant Fred E. Buchan, U. S. A., were married last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McConnell of 4359 Lake avenue. Miss Conger is the daughter of the United States Minister to China, and with her mother spent the summer in America, a part of the time with Mrs. McConnell, who is Mrs. Conger's sister. The courtship which ended in last night's wedding ceremony was begun in Pekin, for Lieutenant Buchan was with the American forces in the relief column and afterwards was stationed at the Chinese capital with his regiment. Only twenty-five guests, mostly relatives, witnessed the ceremony, owing to the fact the bride's father could not be present to give her away. There were two attendants, both cousins of the bride. Miss Mary Pierce, who acted as maid of honor, is also one of the heroines of Pekin and a member of the Conger household. Her own wedding to Lieutenant Hammond of the American forces at Manila will take place before Mrs. Conger sails this autumn to join Mr. Conger in Pekin. Miss Lavinia Pike McConnell was bridemaid.

The groom was unattended. The bridal party stood under a canopy of green foliage and white flowers. The Rev. J. W. Hanson read the marriage service, Miss Ada Harbinson singing. The bride's gown was of white crêpe embroidered in chenille and trimmed with lace. She wore no veil, but carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Pierce wore pale blue and Miss McConnell pink costumes and carried bridemaid roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Buchan of Kansas City, and Miss Hughes, Miss Alta Baldwin of Washington, Mr. Ray Conger of Pasadena, Cal.; Mr. Willard Chase and Mr. Lorin Chase of Des Moines, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conger of Benton Harbor. Lieutenant and Mrs. Buchan leave today to visit in Kansas City. They will sail for Manila in October, where Lieutenant Buchan will remain until next spring.

At St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday evening next the marriage will be celebrated of Miss Elizabeth Frances Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James March Patterson of 4452 Berkeley avenue, to Mr. James Henry Young of Rushville, Ill. The Rev. Herman Scripps of Detroit, a cousin of the bride, will perform the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock, assisted by the pastor of the church, Dr. Robert McIntyre. Miss Margaret Patterson will be her sister's maid of honor and there will be two bridemaids, Miss Josephine Miller of Arlington Heights and Miss Esther Montgomery of Quincy. Mr. Paul C. Patterson will be best man and the ushers Mr. J. Locke Scripps and Mr. Eldredge Spenny of Rushville, Mr. Ralph Peters, and Mr. Frederick Musgrove.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Blanche Randolph to Mr. George Skinkle at 8 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 9, at the Church of the Atonement, Edgewater. The Rev. J. M. Davidson will officiate. Miss Myrtle Hartwell will be the maid of honor and the bridemaids Miss Cornelia Drake and Miss Alice Skinkle of Chicago, Miss Grace Peake of Rockford, a classmate of the bride at Vassar, and Miss Adah Baker of Milwaukee. Mr. Will Jaques will be best man and there will be the following ushers: Mr. Jack Van Nortwick, Mr. John Van Burton, Mr. Stephen Keller, and Mr. Robert Randolph of Boston, the bride's brother. A reception will follow the wedding ceremony at the bride's residence, 2611 Kenmore avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Bergey have issued invitations for Friday, Sept. 27, from 2 till 5 and from 8 till 11 o'clock to view a collection of pictures of country children.

The Exmoor Country club at Highland Park will give a harvest home dinner on Saturday evening, Sept. 28. Among those who are spending the autumn season at the club are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hammond, Mr. J. M. Cutter, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Clarke, Mr. Graham Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Channon, and Mr. J. H. Barnard.

Colonel Otto L. Heim, former commandant of West Point, is in the city, the guest until Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Madison B. Kennedy of 3656 Michigan avenue. Colonel Heim is on his way to Manila.

Miss Catherine Eddy and Miss Porter, daughter of the Ambassador to France, will go to Lenox for the season. Miss Porter has been Miss Eddy's guest this summer at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Mrs. James T. Harahan of 5126 Washington avenue will return from Europe early in October.

Mrs. Charles W. Rhodes has returned from an absence of five months at Bayreuth.

Mr. Edward Rose and family of 4619 Prairie avenue have returned from Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Requa of 3629 Grand boulevard have returned from Rye Beach.

Miss Edith Kennedy has joined a house party at Duluth, Minn.

Mrs. W. Vernon Booth and Mrs. B. D. Armour arrived in New York on Thursday on the Teutonic.

BISHOP WHIPPLE LAID TO REST.

Faribault, His Home City, Suspends All Business While Impressive Obsequies Are Held.

Faribault, Minn., Sept. 20—This city is again in mourning, for today the earthly remains of Bishop Whipple were consigned to their last resting place. The services were solemn and impressive, and were witnessed by thousands of people, only a portion of whom could gain admittance to the Cathedral of Our Merciful Savior, where the final exercises took place.

The day's program opened with the celebration of holy communion in the Bishop's chapel for the members of his family only. Bishop Edsall and Dean Slattery officiated. Holy communion was celebrated in the cathedral at 9 and at 10:45 a. m. for the members of the parish and visitors, Dean Slattery and the Rev. Dr. Kedney officiating. The Bishop's body lay in state in the cathedral from 11:30 to 1:30 p. m., and was viewed by thousands of sorrowing friends.

The funeral service began at 2 o'clock. Business of all kinds was suspended during the hours of the funeral. The services were presided over by Bishop Tuttle, Missouri, assisted by Bishops Edsall, Millspaugh, Morrison of Duluth, Morrison of Iowa, Hare, and Grafton.

At the close of the service the body was lowered into the crypt beneath the chancel of the cathedral, where it is being walled up with solid masonry. Several hundred Sioux and Chippewa Indians were in the city to attend the funeral of their lifelong friend.

NOVEL CLUBS FOR FARMERS.

Committee Plans Organization of Twelve Families, Plan Being to Include the Entire State.

At a meeting of the Farmers' Institute Committee on Clubs and Organizations in the Sherman House yesterday, elaborate plans were made for the coming year. Clubs of twelve families each are to be organized in all parts of the State. When organized the clubs are to meet once a month, the day being the Wednesday when the moon is nearest full.

In the morning the men will go about the farm where the gathering is held and inspect the crops, stock, fences, and other features of farm life, criticising as well as commending the condition of the farm. In the afternoon, according to the program, the women are to discuss the problem of domestic science on the farms. The evening will be the time for the younger members of the families, the features of the evening program being social, literary, and musical.

Those present at the committee meeting were: Charles F. Mills, chairman, Springfield; Walter R. Kumay, Tamaroa; W. R. Hughes, Lake County; Ralph Allen, Delavan; A. Hostetter, Mount Carroll; W. R. Goodwin, Naperville; J. R. Clark, Chicago.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

THE DEATH BITE: A LOVE TRAGEDY.

BY GERALD BARTON.

BERTIE, old chap, Nara is madly in love with you; any one may see that with half an eye, and——"

"Nonsense, Philip, you are joking! She is beautiful, I admit, but give me a bonny, blue-eyed, golden-haired English girl before a woman of any other nation on the earth."

"Such as Miss Rennell, for instance?"

"Exactly! Some of these Hindoo maidens have lovely eyes, most perfect forms, and rare grace and witchery of motion, I grant you, but they are too deep for me; their moods are as variable as the monsoons peculiar to these latitudes."

Bertie Adams, perhaps, was three or four years his senior; and both were firm and constant friends.

Colombo, in Ceylon, was the locality in which they were, and the time early morn. The aspect of morning is sweet and refreshing in the East. Night's deep and cool shades had restored every object to an agreeable temperature, and the eye could rest refreshed upon the face of nature until there came the glare that prevailed after sunrise.

Before the pedestrians was a glorious landscape richly covered with verdure. The fan-palm with its giant leaves, sage palm, cocoanut trees, the bahar, the Acacia Arabica—whose bright yellow ball-like flower, so richly scented the air in the rainy season—the sandal and the bamboo, these all mingled together in the form of a patch of jungle, and towards which the friends were making. Philip Marstern had dropped into a grave silence, presently he again spoke.

"Bertie, old fellow," he remarked; "I am quite sure you haven't flirted with Nara, Miss Rennell's friend. You are too much the gentleman for that. Being——"

"Engaged to the Major's daughter, such conduct would be distinctly dishonorable, you would say, Philip. You are quite correct, chappie. But Nara knows of this betrothal, and surely, if even the dusky Hebe were weak enough to think twice of such a commonplace personage as myself, the fact of my engagement to her friend would prevent her regarding any attentions I may have paid her otherwise than in the light of friendship only."

"I question if it would be quite safe to gauge the conduct of a Hindoo maiden, even of high standing—as Nara undoubtedly is—by the same rules that govern the emotions of a lady of our own country." Philip Marstern spoke with a gravity his friend thought scarcely justified by the circumstances.

"I say, Philip, dear boy, why doesn't this beautiful descendant of a Rajah of Jeypoor—the belle of Ceylon as she is termed—fall in love with you? By jove! what a handsome pair you'd make. Now, there'd be some sense in that arrangement," cried Bertie Adams, with enthusiasm.

The reply Philip Marstern was about to make was never uttered, for at the precise moment a gun shot was heard, then a form came from the jungle in front of the young men.

"Bertie! Philip!" he hailed, in a hearty tone. "Delighted to meet you, lads. Come to see little Edith and her old dad, eh?"

"Yes, Major, the rice plantation will get on well for an hour or two without Philip or yours to command. Hope you are quite well, sir; and Edith, how is she?" said Bertie Adams, seizing the old man's hand.

The Major was a widower, and when not at the military station of Colombo spent most of his time at his house close by with his daughter, an only child, and his life-long friend, Professor Gibbons, a tall, thin, refined-looking old man, with long, iron-gray hair and great black-rimmed goggles.

"I'm fit, dear boy, fit. Edith, the little puss, must answer for herself. Hang it, she'll welcome you both like mad. We're devilish dull at the bungalow. You see the professor's so infatuated with his studies and experiments for that forthcoming great work of his on venomous reptiles—or something of the sort—that there's no getting him to leave his 'museum,' as he terms it—rigged up in our grounds, you know—for ten minutes at a time. Just at present he's so terribly smitten with the charms of a live boa constrictor that Edith states she's getting quite jealous of the reptile, and wishes she could transform herself into a great serpent of any rare species, in which event, she firmly declares, she would make it her business to destroy all such unreasonably enthusiastic devotees as the professor, as a warning to all bachelors who unduly neglect the other sex."

"If, in her transformed state, Edith intends to hug her victims to death, I think I'll make haste to become an enthusiastic naturalist," laughingly remarked Bertie Adams.

"One might well meet with a worse death," put in Philip, whereat all three laughed.

Although he usually termed it "the bungalow," Major Rennell's dwelling was really a handsome white house with extensive porticoes, windows closed with green Venetian blinds, and the place surrounded with plantations of mangoes, jacks, and other Oriental forest and shrubbery trees, and over its flat roof was spread a wide awning where the delicious cool of morning and evening could be enjoyed.

The old officer, his daughter, and the two visitors were soon upon the roof, where coffee and cheroots were brought by a native attendant. Miss Rennell and Bertie Adams somehow contrived to place their cane chairs some yards away from the Major and Marstern.

The lover greedily contemplated the sweetly beautiful profile of Edith Rennell as she sat by his side nestling in a billowy sea of cool-looking white muslin.

The loud, hearty tones of the Major were heard: "Dear old Gibbons!" he was saying. "I wish he would join us. But not all the riches of the diamond mines of Golcondah and Orissa would induce him to leave his experiments today."

"I'm dreadfully jealous! Terribly jealous!"

"I know!" Bertie's merry laugh rang out. "You want to be transformed into a boa-constrictor."

Edith's pout increased, and a diamond-like tear glistened in each eye. "Don't joke, Bertie! I am jealous—and—and—of Nara, she loves you! Loves you!"

"Bosh! I've already heard something of this. Who told you, darling?"

"I've seen it for a long time, and when I plainly told Nara, she only smiled and displayed her pearl-like teeth."

The young man took one of the dainty little hands into his own. "Edith, darling, you are my own sweet little affianced wife, and I love you ten thousand times more than any other being on all the earth! Why can't Nara fall in love with Philip? I'm sure——"

"Perhaps I ought not to feel any resentment against my friend," interrupted Edith, thoughtfully; "for, after all, I don't see how any girl could help loving you, Bertie."

The moments of happiness are fleet. Two hours had gone as if they were but two minutes, and Philip and Bertie were almost due at the plantation they jointly managed. The host insisted that his guests should make use of his palankeen and bearers, for the sun had appeared, and hung in the heavens like a great shield of burnished copper.

Before their departure Bertie Adams and Philip Marstern had promised to attend a picnic planned by Miss Rennell for an evening or two hence.

The following evening Adams presented himself at the crumbling ruins of a palace in which the sire of the belle of Ceylon still lived and made some pretense of keeping up its past barbaric state of rude grandeur.

The lovely Hindoo maiden chanced to be alone, and one of the many natives about the place took the Englishman into her presence. Nara affected European style when abroad, but in her home everything about her was distinctly Oriental. The dusky beauty gracefully reclined upon a divan, a native fanned her, while others attended to her slightest whim. On seeing Adams she imperiously waved her bangle-covered arm, and the natives shrank from her presence.

As this proud descendant of a long line of Hindoo nobles gracefully rose and glided towards him Bertie Adams was fain to secretly acknowledge her wondrous beauty. As if by an uncontrollable impulse, Nara seized one of his hands, covered it with a shower of passionate kisses, and then as suddenly stepped back, as if conscious of the immodesty of the act.

"Mine is a painful task," commenced the young man, after a pause, and in a confused manner. "Our names—yours and mine—have been coupled together. I am soon to become the husband of your friend, Miss Rennell."

"My love for you was not of my seeking," came in a low, musical voice. "Why come here to trample upon my heart?"

"I want to say how sorry I am——"

With an imperious gesture Nara pointed to the entrance of her boudoir. The visitor meekly bowed his head, and without a word further departed. The girl then wearily threw herself upon the divan, as a tempest of mingled passion and despair raged within her bosom and shook her soul.

The picnic duly took place. From the long ago of the days of the Major's wife the favored spot had been under the grateful shade of a majestic banyan tree, which stood on the fringe of a small jungle within easy distance of the house.

On these picnicking occasions it had always been the custom with the late Mrs. Rennell to do without the aid of servants, and herself wait upon all assembled, and ever since her mother's death Edith had held this to be her own pleasing duty.

As the result of a keen sense of delicacy Adams' visit to the Indian maiden remained untold. He and his friend arrived punctually. The Major explained, with a smile, that he tried in vain to tear the professor from his beloved reptiles. The three gentlemen soon appeared in high spirits.

The simple, trusting Edith had invited the dusky beauty, Nara. The latter had sent some fine melons and grapes and a note, in which indisposition was pleaded as an excuse for not coming.

The fact of being the only lady present was slightly embarrassing to Miss Rennell, but there was the compensating secret joy of knowing that the attentions of her lover would not be shared by another of her sex.

After a most dainty meal, and when the gentlemen were about to light up their cheroots, the Major's daughter, with an arch smile of mystery, held up the key of a large hamper she had as yet not unlocked.

As she threw back the lid of the basket the girl's sweetly smiling face remained turned towards her lover. He suddenly uttered a cry of warning, sprang up, and bounded to her side.

Shouts of horror rent the air; but before the girl could tell what had taken place a dead serpent—its head crushed under heel—lay at her feet.

"Thank heaven, she is safe!" Adams pointed to the reptile—at least three feet in length!

"God bless you, my dear boy, for your timely intervention. Another moment and its fangs would have pierced my poor girl's neck!" gasped Major Rennell, ashen gray with terror.

Edith had caught a glimmering of her past danger, and then fainted in her sire's arms. But in a brief time consciousness returned, and by this all signs of the peril had been removed.

The Major's daughter was soon herself again. Adams was looking slightly pale, but would not listen to the proposed return to the house on his account.

Edith, in reply to questions, stated that the hamper had remained on the veranda for some time after she had received the fruit, and covered it with soft, cool moss. It was, therefore, concluded that the serpent had, unseen, crept into the thickly packed moss for shelter from the heat of the sun.

Two hours passed, then the cool of the evening invited the return of the party, which took place on foot.

The Major's pet room—it was the coolest, he insisted—was at the rear of the house, and into this the party filed. A few moments elapsed, then a shriek of alarm burst from Edith. Her arms were clasped around the neck of Bertie Adams, where he had fallen upon an ottoman from sheer exhaustion, and his handsome features were drawn in silent agony.

"Merciful heaven!" muttered Edith's father. "The lad was bitten, and has hidden the fact from us all. Look at the spots of blood upon his wrist!"

The alarming cries reached the outbuilding in which the naturalist pursued his studies and kept his collection of dead and living subjects.

Professor Gibbons hurriedly entered the house. "Dear, dear! What has happened, friends?" he asked. "You've quite spoiled my last experiment."

The Major excitedly related the incident at the picnic, and also the sequel, to his dismayed old friend.

The reply to this was that Abuel, the native servant mentioned, had not been seen since the departure of his master and daughter for the picnic.

Philip Marstern sprang up from the side of his friend and darted from the house. He was back again in so short a time that it seemed as though he had flown.

Gibbons gave a hasty glance at the dead snake the former had handed him. "When—how long ago?" he asked in trembling tones.

All knew his meaning. "Two hours and a half," was the reply.

"Then—but I'd rather you sent for a native doctor. His opinion and treatment will be best."

Marstern knew of an Indian reputed to be learned in the matter of snake bites. Two dusky attendants shot off with one of the Major's palankeens, containing Marstern. In ten minutes he had returned with the man facing him in the chair between the bearers.

Gibbons looked extremely grieved, but even in the face of this calamity his ruling passion—or erudite vanity—displayed itself.

"The reptile is of the hooded snake species—colu-ber naja, cobra de capello—called by the natives the 'good' or 'sacred' serpent. This singular reptile is found all over the hottest parts of India, and receives its name from having the power to dilate the skin of the head into the form of a hood. The hooded snake is greatly dreaded for its venomous bite, which is generally mortal, producing a universal gangrene in two hours, and, at the end of the third, death."

"But you—who have passed years in the study of these beastly things—surely know of a remedy?"

"Eau de luc and a quantity of warm Madeira taken inwardly. The Tonjore pill. These are said to be useful, but in all the experiments I have made on live stock, such as dogs, guinea pigs, and fowls, I have found these so-called antidotes simply positive frauds."

"Cauterize the wound. Something must be done!"

The naturalist shook his head.

"But for the ignorance of those living in Eastern countries, deaths from the bite of venomous reptiles would be rare. In this case, a bandage firmly bound round the arm, and the burning away of the flesh in the immediate vicinity of the wound instantly after the attack, would have saved the life of the bitten man.

"But he, doubtless under the impression that the snake was of one of the harmless species, has allowed the poison more than ample time to spread throughout his veins. My dear Rennell, it deeply pains me to say it, but there is no hope for poor Adams."

The Major's distress was extreme. He was about to return to the back room, when the native doctor came out to seek him.

"Sahib, the young man has already fallen into the stupor that precedes the end. It is two hours and forty-five minutes since he was bitten. The end of the third hour will find him dead."

A great sob came from the officer.

The professor then went back to the room with the Hindoo doctor. Presently the former again came into the hall and found the Major looking even still more troubled.

"A native has just brought me this, and then vanished. It was in a sealed envelope. Read it, please."

"I bribed your servant, Abuel Meer Dara, with ten sicca rupees to find a venomous snake and place it in the hamper under the fruit and moss. I knew well that Miss Rennell would herself open my hamper and take out the fruit. Alas! Abuel has brought me the terrible intelligence that instead of slaying my rival I have killed the man I love! There is not the least hope for him. Abuel—eager to please me—took one of the largest and fiercest of the sacred reptiles from the collection of Professor Gibbons. But Nara will not survive her darling's death. Before you read these words her heart will have ceased to beat. NARA."

Gibbons had scarcely waited to hear the concluding words of this cruel epistle, but had darted away to his museum. In a thrice he had returned.

"It is quite true. Abuel has stolen my finest specimen of the hooded snake species," he cried excitedly. "Bertie Adams will suffer a little longer, then the stupor will pass away. The poison glands of a venomous snake refill but slowly. Nara, the human snake, is outwitted, for in my experiments yesterday I all but exhausted the deadly virus of the fierce creature that bit Bertie Adams, and—God be praised!—the dear boy will live!—the dear boy will live!—will live!"

CLUB TO MEET IN SCHOOL.

HULL HOUSE WOMEN GIVEN THE USE OF TWO ROOMS.

Request for Branch Library in Blaine Building Referred by Committee to the Superintendent—Fruit of Agitation Last Winter for Making District Structures Social Centers — Mr. Cooley to Take a Further Vacation to Rest from Complaints.

The movement toward making social centers of the schools, which was thoroughly agitated last winter, is being manifested in the opening of the school year by numerous requests to the Board of Education for the use of buildings.

Two such requests were heard by the Committee on Buildings and Grounds yesterday. The Hull House Woman's club was granted permission to use two rooms of a branch of the Polk Street School at 208 Taylor street. A request by residents that a branch library be established at the Blaine School, Grace street and Janssen avenue, was referred to the Superintendent.

The Hull House Woman's club, through its President, Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham, explained that its purpose was to form a mothers' club. The club will meet on two Saturday afternoons of each month to talk over matters of interest and especially to discuss the work of children in the schools. The teachers of the school will be asked to meet with the mothers as often as possible.

New School for Deaf Needed.

Crowded classrooms will result in the establishment of another school for the deaf at the Talcott School, Ohio and Lincoln streets. The enrollment at the eleven schools for the deaf now open is in advance of last year's, and many children desiring instruction have been turned away on account of inadequate accommodations. At the adjourned meeting of the Board of Education, to be held next Wednesday night, Superintendent Cooley will recommend that a twelfth school be opened at the Talcott building.

Superintendent Cooley leaves today for a further vacation of a week, which he will spend in the northern woods. Persistent efforts of employés to work their "pulls" for various favors have worn him out.

ARMOUR INSTITUTE IS OPENED.

Number of Engineering Students in Attendance Promises to Be Larger than Ever.

The Armour Institute of Technology formally opened yesterday, and the attendance at the school on the first day indicates there will be a greater number of engineering students than ever before. The incoming freshman class thus far numbers over 150, which will be considerably increased before the end of next week.

In spite of additions to the available room for engineering purposes since the abolishment of the cooking and sewing departments, President Gunsaulus expects the capacity of the building to be reached before the new shop building relieves the pressure.

The reconsideration of the act of the trustees barring all girls from academy work allows the young women students of last year to finish the work they had begun. The registration of girls thus far this year has not been large, though many of them who had but one more year to continue before graduation have returned to win their diplomas.

LODGE'S SECRETS TO BE COPIED

Sovereign Body of Oddfellows Votes to Have Duplicates of Original Book Printed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 20.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge, the supreme body of the Order of Oddfellows, voted today to allow duplicate copies of the secret work of the order to be made. At every session for twenty years or more an attempt has been made to this end, but until today every attempt has failed.

Since the founding of Oddfellowship there has been only one copy of the secret work of the order. This is not printed, but is stamped on parchment. It is kept by a guardian specially appointed for that purpose. No one is allowed to cast his eyes on it unless that one is an officer or a grand representative in the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

There was a spirited discussion on the resolution, its adoption having been stubbornly opposed by many of the prominent representatives. Strong speeches were made in its favor, however, and on the vote the resolution was carried by a good majority.

"SOPHS" WIN PRINCETON RUSH

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The rush between the freshmen and sophomores at Princeton University was pulled off tonight around the historic cannon in the college quadrangle. The sophomores arranged themselves in compact order around the old relic, which they were to defend against the freshmen. The first year men, 400 strong and arranged in two divisions, hit the solid ranks of the sophomores on the run. There ensued a scene of the wildest disorder for ten minutes. The fighting, swirling mob surged around the piece of old iron, fists flew promiscuously and smashed against unprotected faces, and the clothes of some were badly torn. When the fight had ceased a freshman was found near the cannon, which was also locked in the grasp of several sophomores, who claim the victory. Nobody was seriously injured, but several had to be supported when the fight was finished.

BROBST ASKS FOR A DIVORCE.

Evangelist Who Was Charged with Cruelty Says It Is He Who Was Abused.

The Rev. Flavius J. Brobst, who came into prominence three years ago, when his wife filed a bill of divorce, charging him with cruelty, now asks the courts to grant him absolute separation from the woman. According to the evangelist, Mrs. Brobst has a liking for the merry side of life and even has carried her frivolities to a point of inducing a negro porter to belabor him with a club. Such a wife, says Mr. Brobst, fails to maintain the dignity of the family and he desires to be rid of her.

MRS L. GILLETT IS DYING.

Mother of Mrs. Richard J. Oglesby Lies in Critical Condition at Her Home in Elkhart.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—Mrs. L. Gillett, widow of John D. Gillett, is dying at her home in Elkhart. She is the mother of John P. Gillett, the banker and wealthy land owner, who died a week ago at Elkhart; Mrs. Richard J. Oglesby and Misses Nina and Jessie Gillett of Elkhart; Mrs. Dr. William Barnes of Decatur, and Mrs. James E. Hill, wife of Major Hill, United States Army, who is Governor of a province in Luzon.

Eighth District W. C. T. U. Adjourns.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The eighth district convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in session in this city, adjourned today. The following district officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. M. E. Hopper, Chicago; Vice President, Mrs. Clara Allen, Woodstock; Secretary, Miss Emma Norton, Marengo; Treasurer, Mrs. Ines K. Sutphen, Aurora.

Railroad Day, Pan-American.

Which was postponed to Sept. 28, will be one of the great days of the exposition. There will be "something doing" every minute, with special features. The Michigan Central, "The Niagara Falls Route," will sell tickets Sept. 27 to Buffalo and return for coach excursions, good to return until Oct. 2, for $10.50 (1 cent per mile). City ticket office, 119 Adams street, Chicago.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright, 1901, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.]

At the obsequies of European monarchs the presence of foreign royalties is as far as possible discouraged, since, while it is a compliment, it entails no end of trouble, worry, and work of all kinds at a moment when every one pertaining to the defunct sovereign's immediate family, court, and government have their hands more than full with other difficulties. Emperor William, who used formerly to have a mania for inviting himself to the funerals of foreign royalties, and who literally forced himself upon the Viennese court at the obsequies of old Archduke Albert and of Empress Elizabeth, has frequently exposed himself to snubs in connection with this tribute which he desired to pay to the dead, the last occasion being at the funeral of King Humbert, which he was determined to attend, being only deterred at the last moment by an exceedingly curt intimation from King Victor Emmanuel that his coming to Rome at that juncture would merely add to his troubles and difficulties, and that therefore he was anxious that the Kaiser would stay away.

It will be found that it is this knowledge on the part of King Edward that foreign Princes are not always welcome at state funerals in moments of national bereavement that deterred him from putting into execution the project of sending the Duke of York to attend the funeral of President McKinley at Washington, and that has caused him to refrain from pressing the matter.

There is no doubt that by the American public at large the Duke's presence at the obsequies would have been looked upon as a British tribute of regard for the lamented President and of sympathy for the United States. But, on the other hand, it would have thrown an immense amount of responsibility, work, and "tracasseries" upon President Roosevelt and the national authorities, added to which it might have embarrassed them by appearing to commit the new President at the outset of his administration to an undue and excessive intimacy with Great Britain.

If the Duke of Cornwall, therefore, has not been present at the McKinley obsequies, as at one moment contemplated, it must not be construed as any lack of respect or consideration, but merely as a regard for the wishes of the new President and of the United States authorities, and of the difficulties by which they are confronted.

From the East I hear that the conduct of the new Queen of Servia's relatives is becoming a source of great scandal at Belgrade. They seem to be arrogating to themselves the rights of Princes and Princesses of the blood, one of the worst sinners in this respect being Draga's sister, Mme. Petrovitch, whose husband was a mere clerk of the Bank of Servia at the time when King Alexander married Draga.

Recently the King dismissed General Beskovics, principal of the Military Academy at Belgrade, for reprimanding a nephew of Queen Draga who happened to be a cadet at that institution, and so great was the indignation excited in military circles by this step that when General Lazarevics was nominated by the King to the vacant post he declined to accept it. Matters are now being brought to a climax by the action of Queen Draga's brother, Nikodje Ljunevitza, who is adopting the airs and putting forward the pretensions of an heir to the throne, and who is even endeavoring to organize a party in the Legislature to secure his nomination as such.

Emperor William has just met with a somewhat severe setback at the hands of the principal tribunal of the German empire, which sits at Leipsig, and which is known as the "Reichsgericht." It seems that some time ago he found that he had been odiously defrauded in connection with his stables, and accordingly he caused some two dozen employés of the department of the master of the horse to be indicted as if they had been government officials who had rendered themselves guilty of dishonesty towards the state. German laws provide for heavier penalties for those who defraud the government than for those who victimize private persons.

The lawyers of the prisoners appealed against the form of the indictment, and the Supreme Court at Leipzig has upheld their objections, declaring that the members of the imperial court and of the Kaiser's household cannot be regarded as servants of the state, but merely as employés of private persons, and that they can only be punished as such, and do not come into the category of dishonest state officials. The Kaiser is so disgusted that he has made up his mind to abandon the prosecution of the men altogether.

At length we are treated to a royal pronouncement about the Dreyfus case, and if I call attention to it here it is because it sheds an altogether new light upon the affair. It has always been imagined until now that foreign royalties entailed a good deal of sympathy for the prisoner of Devil's Island, and were convinced of his innocence. Yet this does not appear to have been the case, judging from a private letter written by the late Prince Henry of Orleans to a friend two years ago without any idea of its ever being given out for publication, but which that friend has considered himself at liberty to communicate to the press since the premature death of the Prince.

The Prince in this letter scoffs at the notion of any royal personage believing in the innocence of Dreyfus, and declares that both he and his sister, the Princess Waldemar of Denmark, have frequently heard the present Czar and the Empress mother of Russia denounce Dreyfus as a traitor in the most scathing terms. He declares that the only reason why no royal denial has ever been given of the story according to which foreign royalty was convinced of the innocence of Dreyfus was because the Kaiser had declared officially in the most positive manner that Dreyfus was unknown to the German government, and had never been employed by the latter. It was impossible for the Czar, the King of Denmark, the King of Greece, King Edward, etc., who were all cognizant of the ex-Captain's guilt and of the fact that he had been a spy in German pay, to make any public admission of the fact, since it would have been a flagrant affront to the Kaiser, equivalent to calling him a liar.

And then Prince Henry went on to say that nearly all the royal families of Europe being related to one another, it was imperative for the members to observe a certain consideration and respect for one another, and to do nothing that could impair the prestige of any of their number, since they all belonged to the same caste.

Had this letter appeared during the lifetime of Prince Henry I would have been inclined to doubt the statements contained therein, and to have believed that they were written with an ulterior purpose in view. But this letter was never written with a view to publication. It was a mere private explanation to a personal friend, telling clearly of royal belief in the guilt of Dreyfus, and the reason why no royal admission thereof could be given to the public, although it would have settled many doubts and much controversy.

MOTHER GIVES HER LIFE IN CARING FOR HER BABY.

Gasoline Explodes and Mrs. Frank Samuels, While Burning to Death, Carries Child to Safety.

A mother's solicitude for her baby cost a life yesterday morning, when Mrs. Frank Samuels, 30 years old, died in the County Hospital of burns caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove in her residence at 30 Bunker street.

Mrs. Samuels arose from bed shortly after 2 o'clock in the morning, and, going to the kitchen, made preparations for warming some milk for the child. As she touched a match to the stove the gasoline exploded and she was covered with the burning fluid. Seizing the baby, Mrs. Samuels ran into the room where her husband was sleeping and there fell fainting on the floor.

Before Mr. Samuels could extinguish the flames his wife had been fatally burned, he himself receiving painful injuries as he carried her from the building. The baby was uninjured.

NEW OWNERS FOR THE ARGYLE.

Jackson Building Company to Take Over the Structure and a Hotel May Be Built.

The Jackson Building company of Chicago was incorporated at Springfield yesterday by Noble B. Judah, Monroe L. Willard, and George W. Popham. The present purpose is to take over the Argyle Building at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard, but the ultimate end in view is building a new hotel on the corner. The capital stock of the new corporation is $300,000, the price paid to the Peck brothers last July by Bryant H. Barber for the building and ground fronting 171 feet in Jackson boulevard, with a depth and frontage in Michigan avenue of 38½ feet.

TRADES LIBERTY FOR A SKIRT.

Italian Girl Weeps When She Is Sent to the House of the Good Shepherd.

Belle Brignadello, a pretty Italian girl, wept bitterly yesterday when she found that she had traded her liberty for a new silk skirt. The girl's relatives are among the wealthiest residents of "Little Italy." Notwithstanding this she stole a watch, pawned it for $8, and invested the proceeds in the skirt for which she longed.

But the order of the court was obeyed.

Home for Poor Children Closes.

The summer home for the poor children of Chicago, located in Kenosha, was closed yesterday for the season, and seventy little girls who had been cared for on the lake shore were brought back to the city. The home is under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary, who will make an effort to raise funds for the erection of a home at Kenosha which will accommodate at least 400 children.

Sues for Breach of Promise.

Because her sweetheart broke his often repeated promise to marry her, she says, Josephine Kucera has sought the balm of damages in a court of law. The defendant is James Mazonec, and from him she asks $30,000 for her blighted affections. Mazonec is engaged in the meat business at Eighteenth and Halsted streets.

CURRENT NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Hedda Gabler.

Enough persons were interested in the idea of an Ibsen performance to nearly fill Powers' Theater yesterday afternoon. Perhaps they came expecting to approve what they saw, and in any event they quickly were won to that state of mind. On the whole, also, the approval was intelligently given and there can be no question but that it was bestowed upon an intelligent interpretation on the part of Miss Blanche Bates and of several of her companions. That a performance even and untheatric throughout should have been witnessed was indeed beyond the limits of probability and they were not exceeded, but there was little that proved annoying and nothing that did serious injury to the general effect.

Apart from the fact of Miss Bates' devotion to the Ibsen drama, it is easy to understand why she desired to introduce "Hedda Gabler," never performed here in English, to a Chicago audience at this time. Her rôle of Cigarette in "Under Two Flags" has been dashing in spirit and high of color, but has given her no chance to display repose or intellectual insight, and its surroundings have been tawdry. No better contrast to it than the portrayal of an introspective character like that of Hedda Gabler could be found in the dramatic catalogue. And in particular the actress could tell with something approaching certainty what the result would be, for she had enacted the rôle in Washington over a year ago and more recently in San Francisco.

She has every reason to be stimulated by her experiment. It proved her versatility, for there were not many of the traces of Cigarette in the bearing of Hedda and nothing at all of the personality. It showed that the promises for her future made for her by Eastern admirers have not been exaggerations. Nothing but accident can keep her from coming in good time into a place of much prominence on the American stage. She has temperament, stage presence, and talent, and she is attaining technique. She is attaining it, too, by just such venturesome work as that of yesterday, and one of these days not so far distant it will be written, "She is the mistress of it."

Yet, in saying this, one reserves the right to question the correctness—mind, not the intelligence—of her interpretation of the Hedda Gabler that Ibsen created. Primarily, it seemed that Miss Bates acted the part a bit too much and lived it not quite enough. The consequence was pictorially attractive, for it illuminated the monotones in which the Norwegian master of stage craft drew the character; but the monotones were not meant for illumination. Miss Bates also was occasionally more abrupt in utterance than she should have been. Had Hedda spoken as Miss Bates spoke in several scenes, even the stolid, book-imbrued, self-centered Jorgen Tesman speedily would have discovered that his bride gave him neither love nor respect, while simple Mrs. Elfsted would have understood at once that her enemy stood before her and Ejlert Lovborg would have known when he was being led to ruin. The errors of the actress, however, were all in the degree of the manner and the emotion which she donned and displayed and not in the kind of them. Such mistakes yield readily to study.

It could not be said, either, that more than two parts in the play were played in the wrong key. One of them was the minor rôle of Aunt Juliana, acted by Mrs. F. M. Bates. That was the trouble with it, though it must be said that it is hard for a veteran actress not to act a small part. The other was Mrs. Elfsted, whom Mabel Howard evidently did not understand. Mr. Albert Bruning would not have conformed to the Norwegian idea of a professor, but he hit the American notion neatly and gave Miss Bates the best support she had, though he was sometimes fussy. Campbell Gollan was not the short, plump Brack whom Ibsen placed in the "triangular" arrangement, but he was nonchalant and quite different from his ordinary stage self. Eugene Ormonde had the masculine emotional rôle of Ejlert Lovborg, and that is a hard rôle in an Ibsen play, and if the feeling was to frown upon his hysteria, justice had to force the admission that some of his scenes spell hysteria. Restraint, however, might have leavened them without loss of power.

Perhaps a dissertation on the literary and problematic aspect of the play may be expected here, but one does not intend to delve deep into it. It is too late in the day for an Ibsen lecture. The stage phases of "Hedda Gabler" are comprehended in the statement that it is an acting drama, direct in its progress, clear in its characterizations, clever in mechanical craft, and conveying by simple means the illusion of reality. No higher praise can be given a dramatist than to say his personages seem to live. Their life may be among surroundings which one does not know, their actions even may seem improbable, or impossible, but when they pass through them as we can surmise that real men and women would pass through them, then has genius set its mark upon their creator, and before genius the world bows.

Hedda Gabler, morbid in girlhood, mercenary in marriage, heartless in her plots to tear her former lover Ejlert from the only influence which ever gave him manhood, sending him to death in the hope that he will kill himself "beautifully," mortified that he should shoot himself clumsily in the body instead of poetically in the temple, taking her own life rather than live under the restraint of both her husband and the sinister Brack, does not seem a person likely to have existed, but on the stage her reality is not to be denied.

That is sufficient reason for her, though one wonders if the art which makes her doom appear inevitable could not also have shown how such a person could have directed her pent up discontent to some purpose of life. One halts also at accepting the fall of the curtain as the end of the play. The end of Hedda it certainly is, but what of Mrs. Elfsted, what of Tesman? There is no answer, and because there is none the scene seems of the theater and not of life.

One usage in the translation of the play employed by Miss Bates was in the worst of taste. It was the address of Tesman as Miss Hedda and was without any sort of sanction.
